PREFACE.

PERHAPS the most interesting and most widely approved of event of the year, in connexion with the Peerage, was the promotion to an Earldom of that veteran statesman, the Rt. Hon. Arthur James Balfour, following shortly after the rare distinction of the bestowal upon him, as a Commoner, of the Knighthood of the Garter.

The rapidity of the promotion of the ex-Lord Chancellor, Lord Birkenhead, from Baronet to Earl in four years, a step upwards in every year since 1918, is probably unique in modern times.

Two figures of the rapidly diminishing band of the Gladstone era disappeared with the passing of the Marquess of Breadalbane and of Viscount Bryce, while the premature death of Viscount Northcliffe has removed from our midst a personality forceful alike in journalism as in national affairs.

During the year a Royal Commission, presided over by Lord Dunedin, sat to enquire into the question of the bestowal of honours. Recommendations for honours for political services are in future to come under the scrutiny of a Committee of the Privy Council before submission to the Sovereign.

The last few years have certainly seen a very remarkable increase to the Peerage and Baronetage. In the Baronetage alone over 500 new creations have been made from and including the year 1900, and the roll of Baronets now numbers between 1,520 and 1,530 names. It must however be remembered that the Empire has just passed through the most fateful years of its history, and great services have been rendered by many of its sons during those years.

In this connexion it may be noted that the Statutes of the Order of the British Empire have lately been amended, the most interesting alteration being the limit fixed upon the membership of the various Classes of the Order. This and the fact that the Military O.B.E. is now being given where the D.S.O. would previously have been awarded will, in the course of time, raise the value of the Fourth Class of the Order which, by perhaps a too free distribution, has become somewhat cheapened in public estimation.

A preliminary recognition of the right of Peeresses "in their own right" to take their seats in the House of Lords was followed by a later and definite rejection of the claim by a subsequent Committee.

This book has been corrected up to the 11th December but, where circumstances have permitted, while the sheets were passing through the press, events of a subsequent date have been incorporated. The Companionage section has been under very close revision.

The Editor again thanks his many correspondents in all parts of the world for the various suggestions and notices of events which they have been good enough to send him. It is requested that letters may be posted so that they may reach the address below not later than the 1st November, 1923.

DESCRIPTION OF TITLE-PAGE.

THERE is here either patent or latent a considerable amount of illustration of the following pages. Turning first to the corners, we have representations of the Stars of the Orders of the Garter, the Thistle, St. Patrick, and the Military Division of the G.C.B., exhibiting the correct form of a Maltese Cross (the clefts in which are, however, in some cases deeper). Next as to the coronets in the oval design surrounding the letter-press, we need only remark that "Nephews" corresponds to "Princes and Princesses of the Blood," and "Royal Dukes" to "Princes of the Blood Royal," whilst the "Cap of Dignity" or "of Maintenance" has been not only a head-dress of Royalty (much favoured by Henry the Seventh), but is met with in the coats of arms of forty of the nobility, including the Dukes of Norfolk, Hamilton, Richmond, Grafton, St. Albans, Leeds, Rutland, and Northumberland, together with several Peers so recently created as Barons Howard of Glossop, Norton, Brabourne, and Playfair: it is borne also by twenty-one Baronets. As to the Archbishop's mitre, which some protest ought in no wise to differ from a Bishop's, our remarks under the headings of these two Orders will suffice to make our position clear in the matter. The intermediate devices connected by chainwork are intended to show the forms of the Collars worn by the respective four Orders of Knighthood just described, to each of which belongs that quarter of the Collar lying nearest to its own figured Star. Thus perpendicularly under the Garter corner is a medal-garter depicting one of the twenty-six which are worked into the actual Collar; and on each side of it, though interrupted by the coronets, is a true-lovers' knot as described in loc. The adjacent upper quarter is devoted to the Thistle, and exhibits the device of that symbol with the intervening sprigs of rue as they are found in the Collar of the Order. Against the quarter of St. Patrick will be found the harp, rose, and knot, the series of which three make up the St. Patrick Collar. Lastly, against the Bath corner we have the crown of four arches (which we have ventured to call the Albert Crown from its having been the form worn by the late Prince Consort), the device of rose, thistle, and shamrock, and the knot. The entire chainwork, being double, may also be said to belong more particularly to this Order, as in the Collar of the Garter it appears on the inner margin only, and in those of the other two Orders the objects are attached together by their edges and without chains. Surmounting the entire oval of the title-page are the St. Edward's or Imperial Crown, and the Sceptre Royal.

WHITAKER'S PEERAGE

INTRODUCTION.

(I.) THE SOVEREIGN.

THE KINGDOM, ITS RULERS, AND THEIR TITLES.—An English Sovereign is now Sovereign of the entire United Kingdom, but, as all are aware, this has not always been the case: in Scotland the sovereignty was not amalgamated till 1603 and the countries with their Parliaments not till 1707, whilst in Ireland the country was first subdued by Henry the Second and the Parliaments remained distinct up till the close of 1800. For three centuries from the Plantagenet times the English Kings were styled "Lords of Ireland"; Henry the Eighth was the first to substitute the title of King; but this remained a separate clause in the royal list of honours until the Union of 1801.

King George the Third at his death left seven sons, of whom the first and third succeeded him as the Fourth George and William. Both of these, however, died without leaving issue, as had the second son, the Duke of York, already before them. The fourth son, the Duke of Kent, had also passed away (only six days before his father), but he left, as his only offspring, the Princess Victoria, who became Queen, taking precedence, by the law of succession, of the fifth son.

The words "Defender of the Faith" were originally bestowed upon King Henry the Eighth by Pope Leo the Tenth, in recognition of his pronouncement against the doctrines of Luther; but upon Henry's turning Protestant the Pope withdrew the title, upon which the imperious monarch got it renewed by his own Parliament. The title of "King of France," which had been borne from the time of the Third Edward, was dropped by George the Third at the Union. Up to the death of William the Fourth our Hanoverian Sovereigns were also Kings of Hanover, but the Salic Law excluded Queen Victoria from that rule, so the fifth son of George the Third, Ernest, Duke of Cumberland, came to occupy that position. He was succeeded by his son as George the Fifth, who, in 1866, relinquished his crown at the fiat of Prussia.

REGALIA.—The robes and insignia worn by His Majesty on state occasions are those of the Sovereign of the Order of the Garter, but the term "Regalia" is understood to apply only to the crowns, orb, sceptres, swords, and spurs. Of the crowns more or less familiar to us we note the St. Edward's, the Heraldic, Queen Victoria's, King Edward's and King George's. The last of these, however, is practically identical with the second, and we shall in the further portions of this Introduction designate the form of crown worn by our Sovereign by the older term "Heraldic," and we shall apply the word "Imperial" to that of his early predecessor. The Heraldic or King George's Crown (figured at top of title-page) has its surmounting "arches" rising sharply from their bases to an elevated summit; the well-known Imperial or St. Edward's Crown has these bulging at first outwards, and then brought back and forming a summit slightly depressed at the centre; whilst in the Victoria Crown they rose almost perpendicularly to the bend, at which they were nearly square. The Heraldic Crown was so styled from its adoption upon royal arms, coins, and so forth, but its contour was followed in the miniature "half-crown" worn on semi-state occasions by Queen Victoria. The term "an imperial crown" is often applied vaguely to any regal crown as distinguished from a coronet, but in this Introduction we shall use it exclusively of St. Edward's Crown, which was so called from a supposed resemblance (though a very remote one, for the original had probably no "arches") to the one worn by Edward the Confessor, and before him by Alfred the Great. It has the minor distinction of having the upper edge of its principal circle entirely level, whilst those of the modern Crowns are wrought into festoons; all three concur in possessing upon this rim four crosses-pattée alternating with four fleurs-de-lis—the former ornaments denoting the Sovereign's religious headship, and the latter being a survival of his French dominion. The crown in each case is wholly of gold, but covered over in every part with a blaze of jewels, that of our present King being enriched by the addition of the great diamond known as the "Star of Africa" in the centre of its circle. The four crosses-pattée are frequently called Maltese crosses, but we believe incorrectly, their limbs not being cleft at the extremities. The arches rise from behind the crosses, and above their intersecting point over the crown of the head is a miniature of the "orb" to be presently described—both arches and ball being completely overlaid with jewellery. The entire crown of Queen Victoria contained nearly 2,800 diamonds (brilliant, rose, or table), 377 pearls, 17 sapphires, 11 emeralds, and 5 rubies, including one stated to have belonged to the Black Prince. Its weight was 3 lb. 3¼ oz. troy, and we read that a crown worn in mid-English history scaled up to something over 7 lb., whilst even that of George the Fourth weighed 5½ lb. Since the Regalia never leaves the United Kingdom, a special Crown was made for His Majesty to wear at the Coronation Durbar in India.

Next among the insignia comes the Orb or Mound (the latter word derived from the French monde, so that the idea of a world-wide domination is implied equally by either name). This is a somewhat ponderous emblem of sovereignty, consisting of a globe 6 inches in diameter surmounted by a cross, which brings up the entire device to a height of 11 inches. The globular portion is of gold, and is engirt with a band set with diamonds, emeralds, rubies, and pearls; on its summit is a large amethyst, from which springs a golden cross bedecked with diamonds, pearls, a sapphire, and an emerald. Next in order we note three sceptres—the Sceptre with the Cross, or Royal Sceptre, in the top of which is now set the "lesser Star of Africa," borne in the King's right hand; St. Edward's Staff (ending in an orb said to contain wood from the true Cross), over 4½ ft. in length, carried before the King in the coronation procession; and the Sceptre with the Dove, or the Virge, 3½ ft. in length, placed in the King's left hand: these are of gold, set with jewels, and finished by a "mound," from which the dove, when there is one, appears to spring. The Queen Consort has also her Sceptre with the Cross and two Sceptres with the Dove, one of these being known also as the Ivory Rod. The Sword of State claims the next notice: it is girded on to the Sovereign at his coronation, and this was done even in the case of Queen Anne, but Victoria, who was not then out of her teens, was better satisfied by having it placed in her hands. There are three other swords borne before the Sovereign at this ceremony, but, like St. Edward's Staff, they are not personal insignia: the Sword of Mercy (called, like King Arthur's weapons, by a proper name, "Curtana"), an unpointed weapon; the Sword of Justice to the Spirituality, which is pointed, but rather obtusely; and the Sword of Justice to the Temporality, which is sharp-pointed. Finally come the Spurs, called the Great Golden Spurs (used at the coronation only), which are without rowels, but highly wrought, and are attached to embroidered velvet straps. The Bracelets have been wholly discontinued. The Ring has been ranked among the Regalia, but it was not among those figuring at the last two coronations. Other royal insignia or accessories of these ceremonies may be thus described:

The Coronation Chair or King Edward's Chair (distinct from both the Recognition Chair and the Throne) is a venerable oak structure said to have been made in the reign of Edward the First, who had brought from Scotland the sacred Inauguration Stone, and had it embedded beneath the seat of this chair. This famous stone is of a sandy granular formation, consisting principally of quartz, but with an intermixture of felspar, mica, and hornblende, and measuring in inches 26 × 16¾ × 10½; it is called the Stone of Destiny, and possesses a mythical origin. It is traced from Scotland to Ireland, thence to Spain (where a king of Scottish race had given it to his son, Simon Brek, whom he sent to Ireland with an army), and before even this it was said to have come from Egypt—in fact, it was the identical stone used by Jacob for a pillow! Another story represents it to have been hauled up out of the sea, in the form of an already constructed chair, by the sailors of Simon Brek himself. Sir Archibald Geikie has thoroughly disproved these fables, for, speaking as a geologist, he pronounces the stone to have been almost certainly quarried in the sandstone district between Argyll and the Forth.

The Ampulla, called also the Golden Eagle, is a golden vessel in the form of that bird, with its wings outspread, its feet resting upon a stand, the head made to screw off for reception of the oil, some 6 oz., which is poured out through the beak. There is a legend that this Eagle was presented by the Holy Virgin to St. Thomas à Becket, who gave it in charge to a monk of Poictiers, who again secreted it—with other similar treasures and a written account of the vision—in a church at that place, whence they came into the hands of the Black Prince, who deposited them in the Tower.

The Anointing Oil is now pure olive; formerly it was a marvellous compound designated chrisma or cream. It is consecrated previous to the ceremony. In an account of Queen Anne's coronation we read that the Dean of Westminster followed the Archbishop and wiped off the oil with "fine linen or fine Lombart wool."

The Anointing Spoon is of pure gold with four pearls in the broadest part of the handle and finely chased in the bowl. Its extreme thinness makes it appear to be very ancient. Its length is about 10 ins., the bowl 2½ ins.

The Colobium Sindonis is a sleeveless garment of fine white linen, worn by Kings only. This is the first of the garments to be put on after the anointing, and it corresponds to the alb of a priest. The Supertunica, which follows, has short and very wide sleeves, and is made of rich cloth of gold with purple embroidered tissue. A "girdle" used in the coronation ceremony is also called the Stole, Armil, or Armilla. Lastly the Dalmatic Robe is added (called also the Imperial Mantle or Pallium), which hangs loosely over the shoulders; it is embroidered with golden eagles, roses, shamrocks, and thistles.

The Ruby Ring, which has been styled by some "the wedding ring of England," is of pure gold, with at the back a large violet ruby marked with a cross of St. George and encircled with 26 diamonds; it is jointed like a bracelet to adapt it for different sizes. There is a legend attached to this ornament also. King Edward the Confessor is related to have been once asked alms of by a certain "fayre old man," to whom, having nothing else at hand to bestow, he gave this ring. Soon after this two English pilgrims happened to lose their way in the Holy Land, where "there came to them a fayre ancient man, wyth whyte heer for age." Having learnt their mishap and who they were, he "comforted theym goodly, and . . . brought theym in the ryghte waye agayne . . . And whan he shold depart fro theym, thenne he tolde theym what he was, and sayd, 'I am Johan the Evangelyst, and saye ye vnto Edward your kyng, that I grete him well by the token that he gaff to me thys rynge with his own handes, whych rynge ye shalle delyver to hym agayne;' and whan he had delyvered to theym the rynge, he departed fro theym sodenly."—Goldene Legende, p. 187.

The King's Champion formerly figured at coronations, riding fully armed into Westminster Hall and challenging any gainsayer to single combat. The office is stated by Sir W. Dugdale to have been founded by William the Conqueror, who bestowed it upon Baron de Marmion, in whose family it remained till, by the extinction of the direct line, it passed to that of Sir John Dymoke, by one of whose descendants, Frank S. Dymoke, Esq., it was held up till the Coronation of King Edward VII., when the decision of the Court of Claims against the application must be regarded as the extinction of the office itself.

Accession of a New Sovereign.—From the time of Henry the Eighth it has been a recognised constitutional principle that immediately upon the death of a monarch his heir becomes his already constituted successor. We may now follow up the course of occurrences upon the decease of his late Majesty. This event, which took place at a quarter-to-twelve on the night of Friday, the 6th of May, 1910, was personally witnessed by his present successor, as well as others of his family. A meeting of the Privy Council was summoned on the following morning of St. James's Palace, at which orders were given for the proclamation of the new King. Those present were then re-sworn as members of the newly-constituted Council. Several public announcements followed in the course of that day, the first signed by the male members of the Royal Family, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Privy Councillors in attendance, and the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and other officials of the City of London—making known the event of his late Majesty's decease, and pronouncing the succession to have come to "the High and Mighty Prince George Frederick Ernest Albert," whom they accordingly proclaimed as "our only lawful and rightful liege lord George the Fifth, by the grace of God King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India" (this being a shortened form). The next entry in the London Gazette gives the words of the King's first speech to the Privy Council. Then follows a notice of his having taken the oath relating to the security of the Church of Scotland: and to this was prefixed a list of the members of the Council (over a hundred) who were present on the occasion. The Houses of Parliament met in the afternoon of the same day for the purpose of taking the oaths of allegiance and supremacy (up to the Reform Act of 1867 the House was subject to dissolution on a change of Sovereign, but this is so no longer; on the contrary, the existing Parliament must meet at once, and even in the event of its having been dissolved it is temporarily resuscitated, and permitted to last for so long as six months if its successor has not before that been elected). The formal public proclamation of the new monarch took place on the morning of Monday, the 9th of May, at nine o'clock, when "the Officers of Arms habited in their tabards assembled at St. James's Palace and, attended by the sergeants-at-arms, proceeded to the balcony in Friary Court, where, after the trumpets had sounded a fanfare, the proclamation was read by Garter Principal King of Arms, in the presence of the Earl Marshal, several of His Majesty's Ministers," and many other officials, in addition to various personages of distinction. A state procession of officials, with trumpeters, heralds, and an escort of Life Guards, was then formed, and started for the City, reiterating the reading of the announcement at Charing Cross. At Temple Bar, where the Lord Mayor in his state carriage was awaiting them, the High Bailiff of Westminster, who had thus far headed the procession, filed off and returned. A barrier had been erected on the site so the famous but now removed archway, and on arriving there Blue Mantle, Pursuivant of Arms, dismounted and advanced between two trumpeters, preceded by two Life Guards; the trumpeters founded thrice, and demand was made for admission into the City to proclaim the accession to the throne of King George the Fifth. Being admitted, and the barrier again closed, Blue Mantle was conducted by the City Marshal to the Lord Mayor, to whom he delivered the Order in Council, and who thereupon ordered the barrier to be opened and the procession allowed to pass. At the close-adjoining corner of Chancery Lane the proclamation was re-read by Norroy King of Arms. Then the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, Recorder, Sheriffs and other City officers fell into line with the pageant, which now moved on to the Royal Exchange, where the final reading was given by Somerset Herald, the guns in St. James's Park and the Tower being by signal simultaneously fired.

Coronation.—This solemn and elaborate ceremony is the formal public ratification of an event which, as was above stated, is already of binding force. The date of its occurrence is thus unfixed. having in its last incidence taken place on the 22nd June, 1911, some thirteen months after the accession, in the case of Queen Anne, on the contrary, the interval had been for less than eight weeks. Before the coronation of His Majesty Westminster Abbey was for a considerable period closed to the public during the construction of an annexe for a vestibule outside the entrance door, and for the process of a gorgeous decoration within. The carpets and hangings were of dark blue and silver-grey, and the chairs and boxes were equally handsome. Entrance was made by the annexe and the western door and thus along the Nave: and near the centre of the edifice, where the Transepts divide that portion from the Choir, a raised square platform termed the Theatre was erected. In the front of this, facing up the Choir and towards the Altar, were placed the two Thrones, that of the King elevated by five steps and that of the Queen by three. Near by the Altar, where they were placed sideways on the South side of the area, stood the Recognition Chairs. Before the two Thrones was the Reading Desk, and then the Coronation or King Edward's Chair, in front of which and near to the Altar was the Faldstool at which the Queen was to be crowned: this was consequently in the centre line, the Recognition Chairs were on the South side, and the Prelates on the North, whilst on each side of the Altar was a door opening into King Edward's Chapel where stands St. Edward's Altar. The South Transept was assigned to Peers. with the Princes of the Blood Royal in chairs before them, and the North Transept to Peeresses, similarly preceded by the Princesses: all in their robes, but with their coronets thus far borne in their hands—by pages, however, in the case of those Peers who had to take part in the ceremonies. Nearly all round the Abbey there were raised galleries for the accommodation of spectators, some five thousand in all; the Members of the House of Commons in galleries which stood high above the Peers in the South Transept. Visitors had to appear either in full court dress or in uniform, Members of Parliament, however, having the further option of morning dress; ladies were restricted to court dress without trains.

There were three distinct processions to the Abbey (as there were upon entering it), those respectively of the Royal Representatives and guests, the Royal Family, and the King and Queen. Of these the first was made up of fourteen dress carriages, preceded and followed, as were the other two, by escorts of the Royal Horse Guards: trumpeters heralded the first only. Field-Marshal the late Viscount Kitchener of Khartoum had the marshalling of the troops. The procession of the Royal Family contained five carriages. In the King's own procession there were first four dress carriages, then a long train of Officers on horseback including Orderly Officers, Aides-de-Camp, General and Staff Officers, Marshalmen, Yeomen of the Guard, Equerries Extra and in Ordinary, with Escorts of Colonial and Indian Cavalry besides the Horse Guards; then the gilded state coach conveying their Majesties, attended by the Duke of Connaught and other Princes on horseback, and high officials followed by Equerries and Grooms in the rear, a further Escort of Horse Guards closing up the whole.

The Great Officers of State and other participators in the ceremonies arrived at an early hour in time for preparations, and the Regalia were allotted in the Vestibule as follows:

The Queen's Regalia.

The Ivory Rod with a Dove, to the Earl of Durham.
The Sceptre with the Cross, to the Marquess of Waterford.
Her Majesty's Crown, to the Duke of Devonshire.

The King's Regalia.

St. Edward's Staff, to the Duke of Roxburghe.
The Spurs, to the Earl of Loudoun and Lord Grey de Ruthyn.
The Sceptre with the Cross, to the Duke of Argyll.
The Pointed Sword of Temporal Justice or Third Sword, to Field-Marshal Viscount (aftds. Earl) Kitchener of Khartoum.
The Pointed Sword of Spiritual Justice or Second Sword, to Field-Marshal Earl Roberts.
Curtana, or Sword of Mercy, to the Duke of Beaufort.
The Sword of State, to Earl Beauchamp.
The Sceptre with the Dove, to the Duke of Richmond and Gordon.
The Orb, to the Duke of Somerset.
St. Edward's Crown, to the Duke of Northumberland, as Lord High Steward.
The Patina, to the Bishop of London.
The Chalice, to the Bishop of Winchester.
The Bible, to the Bishop of Ripon.

The Royal personages of the two preliminary processions having taken their seats, that of His Majesty now entered the Abbey. First came the Chaplains in Ordinary, the Prebendaries of the Abbey (in dark crimson copes), and the Dean. Then the Heraldic and Knightly group—the Pursuivants in medieval array, and the Officers of the Orders in mantles of purple or blue velvet; Heralds in cloth of gold, the standards of the Dominions, the blue and gold standard of Ireland, the orange and red one of Scotland, the red banner of England, and the flag of the Union (borne by the Duke of Wellington). Next came the Keeper of the Crown Jewels, the four Knights of the Garter appointed to hold the golden canopy at the Anointing (Lords Cadogan [the late], Rosebery, Minto, and Crewe), in mantles of dark and white. Then the Lord Chamberlain and the Lord Steward of the Household, the Lord President of the Council, Chancellor of Ireland, the Prime Minister, the Archbishop of York, the Lord Chancellor (England), and the Archbishop of Canterbury. Four Pursuivants came next, ushering in the Queen's Regalia. Her Majesty, who was attired in purple and wearing a golden circlet on her head, walked up to and stood by her seat in the chair by the side of the King's Recognition Chair, with two Bishops and five Gentlemen-at-Arms (in scarlet tunics and with white plumes), standing on each side of her, her train borne by the Mistress of the Robes, supported and followed by Gentlemen of the Suite and her Ladies of the Bedchamber, Women of the same, and Maids of Honour. The King's own attendants came next, introduced by Richmond, Windsor, and York Heralds, with the bearers of the Regalia. Then the Kings of Arms in gold and emblazoned tabards; the Lord Mayor, accompanied by the City Mace; and Black Rod; Earl Carrington (now Marquess of Lincolnshire), the Lord Great Chamberlain; the late Duke of Abercorn and the Earl of Erroll as High Constables of Ireland and Scotland; the Earls of Crawford and Shrewsbury as Scottish and Irish High Stewards; the Earl Marshal; Earl Beauchamp bearing the sword of State; the Lord High Constable; and the Duke of Northumberland, as Lord High Steward, bearing upon its cushion St. Edward's Crown, whilst the Duke of Somerset on his right carried the Orb, and the Duke of Richmond on his left the Sceptre with the Dove. These were followed by the Ecclesiastical group, conveying the Bible, Chalice, and Patina. The boys of Westminster School enjoy the special privilege of witnessing coronations and shouting "Vivat" as King or Queen enters.

The Queen, who had been standing by her chair, took her seat on the King's arrival to take the one by her side. He was attired at this stage in his crimson Royal Imperial Mantle, with his Cap of Maintenance of the same hue and his Collar of the Garter. The Nobles who were bearers of his train were in red and white, whilst the Bishops of Durham and Bath and Wells with ten Gentlemen-at-Arms were on each side of him; the other three Bishops, bearers of the Bible, Chalice, and Patina (plate for the bread), stood near the Pulpit, the Nobles with the Four Swords on his right, and the Lord Chamberlain of the Household and the Groom of the Robes behind him. On their entrance the Anthem "I was glad when they said unto me" was sung, and at its conclusion the Archbishop (Dr. Davidson), attended by the Lord High Chancellor, the Lord Great Chamberlain, the Lord High Constable, and the Earl Marshal, proceeded to make the Recognition. The form of words was this: "Sirs, I here present unto you King George, the undoubted King of this realm; wherefore, all you who are come this day to do your homage and service, are you willing to do the same?" The "people" then reply with repeated acclamations, "God save King George the Fifth!" and the trumpets sound. This form was gone through four times over, addressed to each point of the compass. The King, who had been standing, now resumed his seat, whereupon the Archbishop proceeded to the Altar and the Litany was sung by the Bishops of Bath and Wells and of Oxford. The Archbishop then read the Prayers of the opening portion of the Communion Service, Sir Frederick Bridge's adaptation of Purcell's "Introit" was here brought in, and then the Bishop of Winchester read the Epistle and the Bishop of London the Gospel. Next followed the Sermon, preached by the Archbishop of York, from the text "I am among you as he that serveth."

The Coronation Oath was now taken, the King having, on the 6th of February, 1911, made and signed the Declaration against Popery in the presence of both Houses of Parliament. The following questions were first administered by the Archbishop of Canterbury:

ARCHB.: Will you solemnly promise and swear to govern the people of this United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and the Dominions thereto belonging, according to the statutes in Parliament agreed on, and the respective laws and customs of the same?

KING: I solemnly promise so to do.

ARCHB.: Will you to your power cause law and justice, in mercy, to be executed in all your judgments?

KING: I will.

ARCHB.: Will you to the utmost of your power maintain the laws of God, the true profession of the Gospel, and the Protestant Reformed Religion established by law? And will you maintain and preserve inviolably the settlement of the Church of England, and the doctrine, worship, discipline, and government thereof, as by law established in England? And will you preserve unto the bishops and clergy of England, and to the Church therein committed to their charge, all such rights and privileges as by law do or shall appertain to them, or any of them?

KING: All this I promise to do.

Following upon these words His Majesty proceeded to the Altar attended by his Supporters and the Lord Great Chamberlain, the Sword of State alone being borne before him. At the Altar steps he removed his Cap of State, and, kneeling, pronounced the words, "The things which I have herebefore promised I will perform and keep—so help me God." He then kissed the book and set his sign manual to a transcript of the Oath. The King now returned to his Chair, and while their Majesties knelt, the Hymn was sung by the Choir, the Archbishop reading the first line: "Veni Creator Spiritus."

The ceremony of Anointing follows, the Archbishop first reading the Prayer commencing, "O Lord, Holy Father, who by anointing with oil," &c., and then the Choir singing the Anthem "Zadok the Priest." The King was then divested, by the Lord Great Chamberlain, of his crimson Robe, took off his Cap, and removed to the Coronation Chair, where he was surrounded by the four Knights of the Garter, who held the pall of cloth of gold over him so as to conceal him from the view of the spectators; whereupon the Dean of Westminster poured some of the consecrated oil from the Ampulla into the Anointing Spoon and handed it to the Archbishop, who then anointed the King, in the form of a cross, upon the head, the breast, and the palms of both hands, the Blessing after Anointing following, during which the King knelt at his faldstool, and then returned to the Chair, when the Dean invested him in the Colobium Sindonis and the Supertunica of cloth of gold. The Great Spurs were now brought from the Altar, when the Lord Great Chamberlain knelt before the King and touched his heels with them. The Sword of State was next delivered to the Lord Chamberlain of the Household, and by him to the Keeper of the Crown Jewels, who in its place gave to the Peer who had borne it another sword, in a scabbard of purple velvet, which sword the Peer passed to the Archbishop, who, after another prayer, placed it in the King's right hand. The Lord Great Chamberlain then girded it round him, and the King himself ungirded it, when it was placed upon the Altar and then redeemed for a hundred shillings by the Peer, who now drew it from the scabbard (which he passed to the Groom of the Robes) and carried it naked for the remainder of the ceremonies. The King was now invested by the Dean in the Armilla or Stole and the Imperial Mantle or Dalmatic Robe, handed to him by the Master of the Robes. The Orb was placed temporarily in the King's right hand, the Ruby Ring upon the fourth finger of the same, and a glove handed to him by the Lord of the Manor of Worksop (the Duke of Newcastle, who a few years back had purchased that estate from the Duke of Norfolk), an Exhortation or Prayer accompanying every stage.

Now succeeds the Coronation itself. The Sceptre with the Cross is placed in the King's right hand and that with the Dove in his left; and then the Archbishop stands before the Altar with St. Edward's Crown upon it, takes it up and consecrates it, lays it down again, and, attended by other Prelates, proceeds to the side of the King, when the Dean brings to him the Crown, which he now places upon the King's head, whereupon the "people" shout "God save the King," and the Peers put on their coronets, the Bishops their caps, and the Kings of Arms their crowns, the trumpets sound, the drums are beaten, and the guns of the Tower and the Park are, on signal, fired off. An exhortation is now spoken, and the Choir sing "Be strong and play the Man." The Bible is next handed to the King, and then the Archbishop pronounces the Benedictions, which the Bishops and Peers accompany with frequent "Amens." The process of Enthronisation succeeds, when the King is lifted into his Throne by the Prelates and Peers around him.

Lastly comes the Homage, which is pronounced kneeling by a leading representative of each of the various ranks in succession—by the Archbishop for the Lords Spiritual, by the Prince of Wales for the Royal Family, and by the senior Peer of each degree—each touching the Crown and kissing the King on his left cheek. The words as uttered by the Peers were in this form: "I, Henry, Duke of Norfolk, do become your liege man of life and limb and earthly worship; and faith and truth I will bear unto you to live and die against all manner of folk—so help me God." For the Princes the form is the same, but for the Prelates there was substituted for the latter clause, "And I will do, and truly acknowledge, the service of lands which I claim to hold of you as in right of the Church."

The crowning of the Queen had now to follow. When the Homage and Anthem were completed, Her Majesty, who had been sitting in the State Chair by the side of the Recognition Chair, now removed to the Altar, where the Archbishop of Canterbury repeated the Prayer of Consecration. She then knelt at her faldstool, where four Duchesses (Portland, Sutherland, Hamilton, and Montrose) held over her a pall of cloth of gold, whilst the Archbishop anointed her head, put the Queen's Ring on the fourth finger of her right hand, and then the Crown upon her head. The Princesses and Peeresses hereupon put on their coronets, and the Archbishop put the Sceptre with the Cross in her right hand and the Ivory Rod in her left, upon which she rose and was conducted to her own Throne, bowing reverently to the King as she passed him. They both now made the customary Offerings or Oblations of a pall of cloth of gold, the King accompanying his with an ingot of gold of a pound weight and the Queen hers with one of a "mark weight." The remaining and principal portion of the Communion Service then followed, the two Archbishops and the Dean of Westminster first communicating, and then the Archbishop of Canterbury administered the bread and the Dean the wine. After this the Choir sang "Glory be to God," and the Archbishop pronounced the Blessing.

Their Majesties then passed into King Edward's Chapel, the King by the South door and the Queen by the North. Here the King was disrobed, by the Lord Great Chamberlain, of his Royal Imperial Mantle and invested with his Royal Robe of Purple Velvet, together with his Crown of State (his own Crown, not that of St. Edward). They then returned through the West door of the Abbey wearing their Crowns and bearing their Sceptres: the Four Swords were borne before them, and the Princes and Princesses followed wearing their coronets. The three processions, in reverse order, now made their return journey, taking the route of Parliament Street, Whitehall, Cockspur Street, Pall Mall, St. James's Street, Piccadilly, and Constitution Hill.

(II.) RELATIVES OF THE SOVEREIGN.

THE QUEEN-CONSORT.—When, as now, a married King occupies the throne, his consort holds a specially privileged position, having her own officers distinct from those of the King and being in a legal point a single rather than a married woman. She has her personal revenue from reserved portions of the rents due to the Crown, as well as from a variety of perquisites. She is crowned on the same occasion with the King himself, or by special ceremony after her marriage if this takes place after his coronation; but in either case the act proceeds as performed at his injunction and not by the will of the people. The Queen-Consort's Crown, much like that of St. Edward, and known as "the Ancient Queen's Crown," is one of the Regalia to be seen at the Tower.

THE QUEEN MOTHER.—This royal lady, so styled when the occupant of the Throne is her son or daughter, as at the present time, otherwise the "Queen-Dowager," remains in most respects in the same position as when she was Queen-Consort, but it is no longer high treason, as it then was, to conspire her death. No man can marry her without permission from the reigning Sovereign, but she does not forfeit her royalty by marriage with a subject.

THE CONSORT OF A REIGNING QUEEN.—The Constitution has never attached any special privileges to this personage, conformably with the maxim that a woman can receive honour from her husband but cannot confer it upon him. We have had only three examples in our history. Philip of Spain, though designated King-Consort, and though the statutes were enacted under the joint names of "Philip and Mary," was most rigidly excluded from anything more than a nominal dignity, and in disgust thereat quitted England after a year. The late husband of Queen Victoria, again, after having for years been known simply as "Prince Albert," received the title of "Prince Consort" by individual creation, as he had previously received that of "Royal Highness." Prince George of Denmark, husband of Queen Anne, constitutes the remaining example.

THE HEIR TO THE THRONE.—This Royal personage is styled "the Heir Apparent" if a son or grandson of the Sovereign, but if any other relative, "the Heir Presumptive" (even if a daughter, as it is "presumed" that there may be born a son to displace her). In either case such personage, though still only a subject, is next in the realm to the Sovereign, at whose right hand he sits in assemblies of state, while to conspire his death or that of his consort is high treason. For the personal order of succession as it stands at present, see the paragraph so headed.

THE PRINCE OF WALES.—The Heir Apparent to the Throne, if the eldest (or eldest surviving) son of the Sovereign, bears regularly this title, but by individual investment and not by birth. He is by right Duke of Cornwall in the Peerage of England; Duke of Rothesay, Earl of Carrick, Baron of Renfrew, Lord of the Isles, and Prince and Great Steward or Seneschal of Scotland, also Knight of the Garter; whilst at the Sovereign's pleasure he is created by patent Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester, the patent testifying that he is confirmed in the same by the "ensigns of honour, the girding on of a sword, the delivering of a cap and placing it on his head, with a ring on his finger and a golden staff in his hand, according to custom," all at the hands of his royal parents. The Prince is a born member of the House of Lords, and minority in his case does not count, though, by the late King, his seat as Prince was not taken until full age was attained. In the event of the decease of the Heir Apparent a son of his or a brother in the absence of sons would naturally succeed to his titles, but that of Duke of Cornwall cannot be borne by the son of a Prince of Wales who has died whilst such: thus George the Third never held the title. But a brother can succeed thereto, being the eldest surviving son of a King, as was ultimately decided in the cases of Henry the Eighth and Charles the First, and so in the case of His present Majesty, though no possible son of the late Duke of Clarence could have held it. The title, however, has been dormant more than once, and Richard the Second received it by a new creation. On the other hand, Sir H. Nicolas notes six Royal Princes born Dukes of Cornwall who were never created Prince of Wales, namely, Kings Henry and Edward the Sixth, two sons (besides this latter) of Henry the Eighth (who died at birth or in infancy), an infant son of Charles the First, and the "Old Pretender," to whom, however, some do assign the title. This title of Prince of Wales was originally borne by those native rulers of that territory who governed it as suzerains of the English Crown; and the commonly received though not wholly undisputed story of the transfer of this title to the heirs of the latter is that Edward the First, when expecting the birth of his second son, promised the Welsh to give them a Prince "free from any blemish upon his honour and unable to speak a word of English:" and that he then sent at once for Queen Eleanor, whose child was duly born at Carnarvon Castle. The title thus practically dates from the year 1284, and was at first, as we have just seen, wholly unconnected with heirship to the throne of England, though in itself intended to be hereditary, the King's lands in Wales having in 1301 been formally settled upon the then Prince and his heirs; but upon that Prince ultimately succeeding to the throne as Edward the Second (his elder brother Alphonso having died) the title became merged in the Crown, and from that day it has in every instance been made a distinction of personal investiture. The above series of Scottish titles were conferred in 1469 upon the eldest son of the King of Scotland, and thus they naturally passed with James the First to the Royal House of Great Britain: in fact there was prefixed to them, on the union of the two Crowns, the still loftier title, "Prince of Great Britain and Ireland," though this has never succeeded in supplanting the older one. It must be observed that "Carrick" is one of the Scottish titles, though Irish in sound, and even the title "Earl of Dublin," now merged in the Crown, was when extant a peerage of the United Kingdom and not of Ireland.

The insignia of the Prince of Wales comprise in the first place the special feature known as the Prince of Wales's Feathers, consisting of three ostrich plumes, formerly figured as drooping, though in 1878 this form was abandoned for the older one in which the feathers are erect except just at the ends. At the base of these is an antique coronet, pendent from which is a scroll with the motto "Ich dien" (old German for "I serve")—both feathers and motto having been taken by the Black Prince from the head of the King of Bohemia, who was slain in the Battle of Crécy. In 1901 there was added the badge of a red dragon, designed to represent the Principality of Wales. The Prince of Wales has also his distinctive coronet, which resembles St. Edward's Crown except that it possesses but a single arch (surmounted however with the orb) and is of gold without jewellery. His Parliamentary mantle is adorned with five bars of ermine, each bar having a gold lace above it; that worn at a coronation is doubled below the elbow with ermine, spotted diamond-wise. All these insignia, however, appertain to the heir to the throne, whether bearing the title of Prince of Wales or not.

The Princess Royal.—This title, which is conferred only on the eldest daughter of a Sovereign, was bestowed on the Princess Louise, Dowager Duchess of Fife, by Royal Warrant in 1905.

Remainder of the Royal Family.—Daughters other than the Princess Royal enjoy no special precedence, but simply that of near relationship to the Sovereign; neither do younger sons until a dukedom is conferred upon them, when they enter the House of Lords as next in rank after the Prince of Wales. Their seats in that House are to the left of the Throne; but when, upon the death of the Sovereign, they are converted from sons into brothers, they are transferred to the first places in the ordinary ducal bench. This latter position is also occupied by first cousins of a reigning sovereign; but beyond that grade they lose all distinctive precedence and take rank among the other Dukes according to the dates of their patents alone; as was the case with the 3rd Duke of Cumberland (whose title, with that of the Duke of Albany, was extinguished by Act of Parliament, 1919). All sons and daughters, brothers and sisters, paternal uncles and aunts of the Sovereign are of the "Blood Royal" and are designated "Royal Highness," and the latter term is bestowed also upon grandsons and granddaughters if they are the offspring of sons, and yet further (by decree of May 31, 1898) upon great-grandchildren if they are children of an eldest son of "any Prince of Wales." Included in the Proclamation of July 17, 1917, adopting the Family Name of Windsor, His Majesty stated his intention of restricting the style and title of "Royal Highness," and to confine it in future to all children of the Sovereign, and to grandchildren of the Sovereign in the male line only. The style "Highness" and "Serene Highness" was also to be discontinued, and the title of "Prince" and "Princess" to be limited to all children and all children of sons of the Sovereign. The coronets of Princes of the Blood Royal differ from that of the Prince of Wales in the absence of the surmounting arch with its orb, the place of this latter being supplied, as with coronets generally, by a golden tassel to the cap. Those of Princesses of the Blood Royal vary again from these in the presence of two strawberry-leaves in place of two of the four crosses-pattée, whilst Princes and Princesses of "the Blood" have strawberry-leaves in place of all four of the fleurs-de-lis.

(III.) THE PEERAGE AND ITS DEGREES.

General Remarks.—The rules which govern the arrangements of the Peerage are marked by so many complications that even an expert may occasionally be perplexed. All Peers of England are Peers of Parliament, and have been such from the creation of their titles, except in those instances in which Parliament itself is the more modern. In Scotland and Ireland there are Peerages of equally long standing, and upon the successive Unions of these two Kingdoms a certain number of the Peers of each were granted Imperial titles and summoned to the House of Lords, the new titles being sometimes totally different from the old, sometimes identical, and sometimes only variations in rank—as "Baron A." in place of "Earl of A.," or Earl instead of Marquess, or vice versâ—the old titles subsisting by the side of the new, and remaining, when of superior rank (which they most frequently are, but with numerous exceptions), the respective Peers' ordinary, though not official, designations. The use of the term "Imperial" is convenient as covering three variations entailed by the Acts of Union as above: All Peers of Parliament up to June 20, 1707, are classed as "Peers of England" and rank in precedency before all others of like degrees; from that date down to the close of 1800 all fresh creations either in England or Scotland were called "Peers of Great Britain"; and creations from the 1st of January, 1801, onwards, either in Great Britain or Ireland, are known as "Peers of the United Kingdom," save only that the Sovereign retains the power (provided by the Articles of Union) of creating one new Peer of Ireland for every three Irish Peerages of older date than the Union which had become extinct—a function which had been dropped by her late Majesty (the latest Irish creation up till 1898 having been that of Baron Rathdonnell at the close of 1868), but which was revived in the case of Earl Curzon of Kedleston, who was first created a Baron in the Irish Peerage, to allow of his intended return to the House of Commons instead of entering the Lords (see below). One apparent exception to the exclusion of non-Imperial Peers from the House is exhibited in the case of the Elected Representative Peers of Scotland and Ireland, who take their seats by their native titles, but do not hold them as hereditary members—those of Ireland as Life Peers, and those of Scotland for only a single Parliament unless re-elected (see further under "Peers Elected"). No Imperial Peer can be elected a member of the House of Commons, neither can a Scottish Peer; but an Irish Peer who has no Imperial title can be so elected anywhere out of Ireland itself (such election, however, would involve his being summoned to any royal function as a M.P. and not a Peer). Viscount Palmerston, so long member for Tiverton, was an eminent example, whilst more recent ones have been afforded by Lords Fermoy, Kensington, Muncaster, Dunsany, and the Earl of Cavan, and we have one at present in Earl Winterton.

The titles of Peers very commonly have a local connection, but below the rank of Dukes we find more or less numerous examples in which the personal surname gives the title. With the local titles, broadly speaking, the connecting preposition "of" is inserted (except in the conventional titles of Viscounts and Barons, where it is never used, though common enough in the formal language of their patents); whilst Marquesses and Earls who are designated by their surnames are as a rule without this word. But to this rule there are exceptions, for we have the "of" inserted, in spite of identity with the family name (itself sometimes that of a place also), in the titles Ashburnham, Balfour, Cholmondeley, Coventry, Craven, Graham (Marquess, not Earl), Lytton, and Onslow, whilst it is omitted, though the surname differs, in those of Beauchamp, Brooke, Brownlow, Camden, Castlestewart, Cawdor, Cowley, Ferrers, Manvers, Sondes, Strange, Temple of Stowe, and Winterton. Again, a local title does not always give the place of the Peer's principal residence, as to which see the final paragraph under "Devonshire," and in particular there appears to have been a special fancy in the Irish Peerage for selecting a title apparently English or Scottish, though in reality that of some obscure or imaginary place in Ireland—as Caledon, Conway, Ely, Kensington, Sheffield, and Teignmouth, all of which titles are (or were originally) of Irish creation. The following is a revised list of all the titles in use of Marquesses and Earls which omit the "of" in modern practice:

Marquesses.	Earls.
Camden		Cadogan	Farquhar	Howe	St. Aldwyn
Conyngham	Amherst	Cairns	Ferrers	Innes	Sondes
Curzon of Kedleston	Annesley	Carrington	Fitzwilliam	Jermyn	Spencer
	Bathurst	Castlestewart	Fortescue	Kitchener	Stanhope
Douro	Beatty	Cathcart	Gower	Loreburn	Strange
Townshend	Beauchamp	Cawdor	Graham	Manvers	Talbot
	Brooke	Compton	Granville	Nelson	Temple of Stowe
	Bruce	Cowley	Grey	Percy	Vane
	Buxton	De Grey	Grosvenor	Poulett	Waldegrave
		De La Warr	Haig	Russell	Winterton

Descent or succession of nobility commonly follows general rules, but there are variations, for whilst in most cases it is limited to heirs male, in those older Baronies which were conferred by writ of summons instead of patent, and in Scotland in the cases of some higher peerages, it is open also to females (in Ireland there is no female descent except in the two cases of Massereene and La Poer). When this latter succession prevails, it has the peculiar feature (but not in Scotland) of ignoring primogeniture and regarding all the daughters as co-heirs, not one of whom can actually obtain the title until she becomes the sole survivor, or else until the Sovereign relieves the dilemma by selecting one of the ladies as immediate recipient. This delay is what is known as a title "falling into abeyance," for which subject see below in the third paragraph under "Barons." A somewhat similar exercise of the prerogative to that by which an abeyance is terminated is the one noticed under the second paragraph of "House of Lords," of summoning to that assembly the eldest son of a Peer during his father's lifetime. At a Peer's death his eldest son will succeed as a matter of course; but a more remote relative will be required to prove his claim, and this may involve a delay, sometimes of nine months. The succession to different titles is likely to perplex the novice, who finds himself continually confronted with such statements as "The Earldom lapsed but the Barony passed to his relative So-and-so." There may be "limitations of remainder" as they are called (though "extensions of remainder" would often seem more correct) according to which a certain title is open to "heirs general," or the nearest relative whatever (female included, unless the term is "heirs male general"); or a "special remainder" may open a succession to any relative who may be named. But the ordinary law is that a title can only pass to a direct descendant of some former bearer of the same. The direct heir comes first in claim; if he, the eldest son, is deceased but leaves sons of his own, the eldest of these sons comes next; even he has occasionally a son to take the third heirship; but if there are none out of all these then the Peer's next surviving son is turned to, and then his sons and so on. But if there is neither son, grandson, nor great-grandson, then the eldest brother of the Peer is looked to for the succession; then his son or grandson, then his next brother, and so on as through the former series. If the entire series fails to provide an heir, then the law of inheritance goes back the next step and seeks for paternal uncles and their sons in the same routine (provided that these are actual descendants of an earlier Peer of the line). But now suppose that the late Baron had been created an Earl, whilst his predecessors were Barons only; in that case, in default of either a "special" or "general" remainder, no one but a son or grandson of his own could possibly succeed him in the Earldom, though his Barony might be open as before to any one who was descended from an earlier Baron, as far back even as the first. The law with Baronets is the same (except that these can never be females, though under a few patents the male issue of females can succeed): hence, on the one hand, a Baronetcy which was associated with a lapsed Peerage may be "liberated" and make its reappearance; whilst, on the other hand, if the Peerage chanced to be open to female succession it may be the Baronetcy only which expires.

Peers possess various privileges. If members of the House of Lords they cannot be arrested unless for an indictable offence; and whether belonging to that House or not, they can, in charges of felony or treason, by tried only by that House, all the members of which are then summoned (though not compelled) to attend, when each one delivers his verdict with the form "upon my honour," a decision being arrived at by the voice of the majority. The Lord High Steward (a Law Lord appointed for the occasion) sits as president of the court, and enquires the verdict of each Peer, beginning at the lowest rank and proceeding regularly up to the highest. The trial in July, 1901, of Earl Russell for bigamy was held in the Royal Gallery, a corridor leading from the Victoria Tower to the House of Lords. The Lord Chancellor was constituted Lord High Steward, and a long white rod was handed to him at the commencement of the proceedings and broken by himself at their conclusion. Ten Judges of the Law Courts were called in to give advice in the case of legal difficulties, and about two hundred members of the House of Peers sat as both judges and jury, retiring, however, to that House to resolve upon their verdict and sentence. No similar "trial before Peers" had occurred for sixty years, and it is a general impression that this will have been the last. In cases of misdemeanour this elaborate form is not adopted, but the Peer is tried by a jury like other people. Nor does the aforesaid privilege of trial pertain to Scottish or Irish Peers. A Peer is not put upon his oath when sitting in judgment as above, nor yet in a Chancery suit; but if called as a witness, either in the High Court of Parliament or in an ordinary civil or criminal case, the oath is administered to him as to others. He can only be bound to keep the peace in the Court of King's Bench or that of Chancery. Peers are not liable to serve on juries, and are entitled to sit covered in courts of justice. To the Irish barony of Kingsale and to the English one of Forester there is, moreover, attached the singular concession of the right to remain covered in the presence of the Sovereign. To assault a Peer (or even his servant in the case of a Peer of Parliament), or to spread a libel respecting him, is an offence treated with exceptional severity. And lastly, among the privileges of the noble order—availed of by the 8th Lord Stourton, and again by the 4th Earl Ferrers—if a Peer is sentenced to be hanged, he has the consolation of swinging by a silken cord.

The forfeiture of nobility can now only take place through attainder or death, though in the reign of Edward the Fourth a Duke of Bedford was deprived of his rank by an Act of Parliament. If an attainder is pronounced in a case of high treason, it annuls the title for ever (unless restored); but if only for felony, then if the title was granted by letters-patent and not by summons, its effect expires with the death of the Peer deprived. Similarly, if the heir to a peerage should be attainted, then in the case of a writ of summons no descendant of his could ever succeed to the title, though a descendant through a collateral relative might revive the title if the direct heir's issue came to an end; but if the peerage was held by letters-patent the attainder would wholly expire on the decease of the one attainted person. Several instances will be met with in the DIRECTORY of an attainder being removed by Act of Parliament; and then, almost for a certainty, there will be a confusion among authorities as to how many Peers of the title there have been.

The arms of all Peers contain "supporters" (the pair of human, animal, or mythical figures on each side of the shield). Those of many Baronets are similarly distinguished, not "as Baronets," we are told, but the exceptions seem too numerous, and in Scotland rather the rule; even the coronet some Baronets imitate very closely.

DUKES.—This designation, or its Latin original Dux, is stated by Selden to have been primarily used in this country as one of the appellations of an Earl; but its first employment as the title of a distinct grade was in the eleventh year of Edward the Third, when the Black Prince, who was already Earl of Chester, though not as yet Prince of Wales, was created Duke of Cornwall. In English usage it is thus less ancient than either Earl or Baron, though the military term "Dux" was common even among the Anglo-Saxons, whilst William the Conqueror is an early instance of a foreign Duke (indeed, it is remarked that the existence of the title among the Normans accounts for their tardiness in permitting the adoption by their subjects of an honour so distinguished among themselves). The Duke of Lancaster (1351) was the next creation, and others followed, though so sparingly that when in 1572 the Duke of Norfolk was executed for high treason, the title became wholly extinct. It was speedily revived, however, under James the First, by whom the Dukes of Richmond (extinct line) and Buckingham were created in 1623; whilst Charles the Second restored with full precedence the attainted dukedoms of Norfolk and Somerset, still the leading titles in the English Peerage. The Duke of Norfolk (1483) is thus our Premier Duke and Peer; the Duke of Hamilton (1643) is Premier Duke of Scotland, and the Duke of Leinster (1766) of Ireland. The total numbers of Dukes in the three Peerages now are—21 Imperial (besides Princes of the Blood Royal, but including the Duchess of Fife), 7 Scottish (besides the heir to the throne), and 2 Irish. Dukes were anciently created by the ceremony of girding on a sword and throwing a state mantle over the shoulders. They are now, like Peers generally, given their rank by patent. A Duke is styled in official language "Most Noble," but conventionally and more commonly "His Grace;" in very formal style he can be spoken of as "The Most High, Potent, and Noble Prince," and by the Sovereign, "Our right trusty and right entirely beloved cousin," adding "and Counsellor" if of the Privy Council. The term "cousin," according to Blackstone, began with Henry the Fourth, who was actually related in some way with every Earl in the Kingdom, from which rank it has passed to all the others, Barons only excepted.

The insignia of a Duke are the coronet and mantle. The coronet, which is worn over a crimson velvet cap, turned up with ermine and finished, like that of the younger Princes, with a gold tassel, is a circle of silver gilt surmounted by eight golden strawberry-leaves: it is chased, but no coronet of a noble must contain jewels. The mantle, as worn on state occasions in Parliament, is made of fine scarlet cloth lined with white taffeta, with four bars of ermine on each side (narrow strips of black fur passing horizontally round to the divided back of the mantle), each bar adorned above with gold lace: it is tied at the left shoulder with a white ribbon. At coronations this robe gives place to a crimson velvet mantle and surcoat, lined as before and edged with miniver, the mantle doubled from the neck to the elbow, the cape being furred with miniver pure,* and having four rows of dark spots on each shoulder. A Duchess on the same occasion wears a crimson velvet mantle the cape of which is furred with miniver five inches in breadth, and varied ("powdered" is the technical term) by four bars of black ermine: train, two yards on the ground. Her coronet is a miniature of the Duke's.

A Duke's eldest son is in courtesy "born in the degree of a Marquess," and therefore follows this order immediately in the table of precedence, and yet in the eye of the law he is only an esquire: in legal phraseology he is accordingly termed "John ——, Esq., commonly called the Marquess of ——." As a rule, he takes by courtesy his father's second title, and is treated as if he were an actual Marquess; yet his title is often "Earl," once (Manchester) it is "Viscount," and once (Somerset) only "Lord," in which cases he will be termed only "Right Hon." but retain the degree of a Marquess. A Duke's younger sons are born as in the rank of Earls, though never taking the title of such, but simply prefixing the word

* Ermine takes its name from the ermine weasel, which in winter is pure white with the exception of the black tips of the tail: these tips are used to form the variegations in the regular ermine as well as the dark bars. Miniver is strictly the pure white fur of the Siberian miniver squirrel, but the name appears to be applied to ermine when unvaried by the black tail-tips.

" Lord " to their Christian names. So a Duke's daughters prefix the word " Lady," but they are " born in the degree of a Marchioness," and rank after these and the wives of Dukes' eldest sons : whilst if a Duke's daughter is the sole heir to his estate she ranks before the eldest son's widow.

MARQUESSES.—The first known use of this title in England was on the elevation, by Richard the Second in 1386, of Robert De Vere, Earl of Oxford, to be Marquess of Dublin, when the King performed the ceremony of girding on a sword and placing a golden coronet on his head. Eleven years later the same monarch made the Earl of Somerset Marquess of Dorset ; but no further instance occurs till the reign of Henry the Sixth. The word is said to be derived from Marchio, a title previously applied to both Earls and Barons, especially those who were " Lords Marches " of the frontier counties towards Wales and Scotland. The French form Marquis long obtained preferential use in this country and is by no means gone out even up to this day ; but it is strongly objected to by some, and one of the charges adduced against it in Thoms's ' Book of the Court ' is its frequent unwarranted adoption as a travelling-title—which it must be confessed is rather a reason for wishing it abolished than for proving it to be wrong : indeed, in old usage we have met with the form " Marquess " used as the feminine of " Marquis." We have, however, both here and in the ALMANACK, decided to adopt what seems to be the form more favoured by those immediately concerned. The German title corresponding to it is Markgraf, which in historical works is usually rendered " Margrave." The dignity itself has never been one of large occurrence among our nobility. Three times, indeed, it became wholly extinct (either by forfeiture or by the elevation of its possessor to a dukedom, which happened to the Peer who had previously been the third to be made Marquess of Dorset) ; but in the year 1532 the title of Marchioness was bestowed upon the daughter of the Earl of Wiltshire, and in 1551 the Peer who had then succeeded to this latter title was raised to be Marquess of Winchester, thus becoming the founder of what to this day remains our premier marquessate. The Marquess of Huntly (1599) is premier in Scotland, and the Marquess of Waterford (1789), if decided by the Roll of Marquesses so styled, is premier in Ireland, but the marquessate of Kildare (1761), merged in the Leinster dukedom, has an earlier claim if we regard the title itself. We have in all 29 Imperial Marquesses, 4 Scottish, and 9 Irish. The style of a Marquess is " Most Honourable," not " Most Noble," though it is stated that in some formal descriptions both he and an Earl may be termed " Most Noble and Puissant Prince." A Marquess is designated by the Sovereign, " Our right trusty and entirely beloved cousin " (see under " Dukes ").

As to insignia, the coronet of a Marquess differs from that of a Duke by substituting silver balls (technically called " pearls "), slightly raised on points (as in title-page), for four of the eight strawberry-leaves ; whilst the robes take but three and a half bars of ermine or rows of spots (that is to say, four on the right side and three on the left). The Marchioness's coronet is by latest orders exactly like a Marquess's, but much smaller ; her robe has three and a half bars of ermine upon the miniver, which is reduced to four inches in width, whilst the train is a yard and three-quarters in length.

A Marquess's eldest son is " born in the degree of an Earl," and takes usually that courtesy-title, though occasionally (whilst still ranking as an Earl) only that of Viscount ; the younger sons are born in this latter rank, but the daughters in that of Countess. In other respects the corresponding paragraph at the close of " Dukes " applies here also. See, for all degrees, the " Table of Precedency " and " Forms of Addressing."

EARLS.—This degree is much older than either of the preceding. Blackstone says that " Earl is a title of nobility so ancient that its origin cannot clearly be traced out. Thus much seems tolerably certain, that among the Saxons they were called Ealdormen, quasi Elder-men, signifying the same as Senior or Senator among the Romans : and also Schiremen, because they had each of them the civil government of a several division or shire. On the irruption of the Danes they changed the name to Eorles, which, according to Camden, signified the same in their language. In Latin they are called Comites from being the King's attendants. . . . After the Norman conquest they were called *Counts or Countees from the French : but they did not long retain that name themselves, though their shires are from them called counties to this day." This, it is needless to say, does not imply that the same Anglo-Saxon nobles retained their lands and positions under the Normans with simply an altered name, for we know too well how largely they were dispossessed, and that it was the Norman appropriators who were termed " Counts," though they speedily came to revert to the title habitual among the conquered people. From the Conquest to Henry the Third the two ranks of " Earls " and " Barons " may thus be said to have been the only dignities existing in England, that of Earl being accordingly the very highest then in English usage, so that even the Conqueror is frequently spoken of, especially by William of Malmesbury, as " Earl of Normandy." There are stated to have been two or perhaps three orders of Earls, the highest of which exercised nothing less than a regal jurisdiction—even having power to create Barons—within the counties of which they were granted seisin and possession, and which thus became Counties Palatine. A lower order was made Earl of a county but without this seisin of its territory and with only the tertium denarium or third part of the profits accruing from pleas in the county court ; or probably in some instances there was simply made over to them a considerable tract of land to hold for the service rendered by the county. They were thus in some degree all county lords ; the first to be created apart from a county was Roger Mortimer, made Earl of March in 1328. The rank of Earls has largely increased, till now in England it amounts to some two-fifths of the number of the Barons ; whilst in Scotland and Ireland the proportion is larger still—in Scotland, in fact, exceeding by three the entire remainder of the Peerage, whilst in Ireland, though not quite so disproportionate, it is but three short of the number of Barons. The present numbers are—Imperial 134 (2 females), Scottish 48 (2 females), Irish 56. " For many centuries," says Sir Harris Nicolas,* " earldoms have always been conferred by letters-patent or charters. . . . The investiture has long been dispensed with and the ancient practice of creating a person Earl of some county or town has, from the great increase of dignities in this country, given place to deriving the title from some village or estate, and even from the name of a family. In most instances the title has been limited to the heirs male of the body of the grantee, but remainders are by no means uncommon to the issue of a sister or daughter, or to some other person named in the patent." The premier earldom in the English Peerage is undoubtedly that of Arundel (1155), merged in the dukedom of Norfolk ; but as decided by the list of Earls upon the Roll the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot is premier, the former of his two titles dating from 1442. So in the Scottish Peerage (the title of Mar, though dating from about the year 1100, being given precedence of 1405 only) the premier earldom is that of Sutherland (1230), now merged in an Imperial dukedom, but the premier Earl upon the Roll is Crawford (1398) ; and again in Ireland we have been directed to the earldom of Karrik (1315 ?), merged in the Ormonde marquessate, but Mr. Cokayne, though a believer in its genuineness, could find no proof as to when such title was conferred, and thus the Kildare earldom (Leinster dukedom) must stand first in antiquity (1316), whilst the Earl of Waterford (1446), who is also Earl of Shrewsbury, is premier upon the Roll as he is in England. Earls, Viscounts, and Barons are all designated " Right Honourable." An Earl is designated by the Sovereign, " Our right trusty and right well-beloved cousin " (again see under " Dukes ").

As regards insignia an Earl's coronet is very distinct from that of any other rank by the fact of its eight silver balls being mounted on golden rays which reach to the top of the cap and have small golden strawberry-leaves alternating between them. His mantle is distinguished from the preceding by having but three bars of ermine. A Countess wears a similar coronet, and her robe for coronations has three bars of ermine, a miniver edging three inches in breadth, and a train a yard and a half on the ground.

An Earl's eldest son is " born in the degree of a Viscount," and regularly takes that courtesy-title ; but frequently " Lord," though his rank as Viscount is unaffected. Younger sons are esteemed as equal to Barons, but all daughters as Viscountesses ; these latter also receive a preference over the former which is one of the anomalies of the Peerage (though only a part of that unfair elevation of daughters over all sons but the eldest which runs through every one of the ranks), they being designated as " Ladies " and " Right Honourables," while the younger sons (and their wives) are only " Honourables." Again see at the conclusion of " Dukes " and under " Peers by Courtesy " and " Addressing."

VISCOUNTS.—This degree, like that of Marquess, has been but sparingly conferred, though its numbers have been doubled during the past quarter of a century. The word, however, was of very ancient usage in the Latin form Vice-comes, Earl's Deputy, which was thus its original function, and it was of old feudal use in France ; but its first employment as designating a rank in the English nobility was in 1440, when Henry the Sixth elevated John, Lord Beaumont, to the title of Viscount Beaumont. Letters-patent were then made use of limiting the succession to heirs male of his body : and this form has ever since been the one usually observed in the creation of any Peer. Twice the degree became extinct, but it was finally revived in 1550 by the elevation of Baron Ferrers to be Viscount Hereford, his successor being now the Premier English Viscount. In Ireland this degree is proportionally more numerous than in England, there being now 33 to English 63 (including two females), the premier being Viscount Gormanston (1478) : in Scotland, on the contrary, it numbers but four (now that that of Strathallan is merged in the Perth Earldom), with Viscount Falkland (1620) for premier upon the Roll, and Viscount Fentoun (1606), Earl of Mar and Kellie, as holder of the premier viscounty. At first a viscounty was simply the advancement of a barony, and then its superior accompaniment ; but modern Viscounts have usually no second title, though exceptions do crop up, as in the creation in 1911 of Viscount Chilston, who is also Baron Douglas of Baads. It is stated in ' The Book of the Court ' that any English Premier on retiring may claim a viscounty, but in practice it would be far better to say this of every Speaker of the House of Commons, for, of the Premiers of the nineteenth century, we note three who were made Earls, one a Viscount (Sidmouth), and five who died or retired without any advancement, the remaining eleven having held some title of nobility upon entering office. A Viscount is designated by the Sovereign, " Our right trusty and well-beloved cousin." The word " cousin " does not extend to Barons.

The insignia consist of the coronet distinguished correctly by sixteen silver balls ; and of the mantle with two and a half bars of ermine (i.e. three on the right side and two on the left). A Viscountess's coronet is similar to her husband's, and her coronation robe is marked on the same distinctive rule, and with but two and a half inches of bordering and a train of a yard and a quarter.

A Viscount's eldest son and his daughters are born respectively in the rank of a Baron and of Baronesses ; younger sons have no definite equivalent, now that the degree of Banneret is obsolete, but they come above the younger sons of Barons. All sons and daughters without distinction bear the title " Honourable."

BARONS.—The word " Baron " is supposed to have been derived from the Celtic Ber or Bar, which served the Romans for the original of their Baro (plural Barones). The Anglo-Saxons altered the title to Thegnes or " Thanes," and these terms, as well as the later one " Baron," were applied, both for ecclesiastics and laymen, to those men of rank who were about the King. " Baron " came thus, for a time, to be prefixed to the names of saints (e.g. Baron Saint Jacques), and after it " Monsieur " was similarly used down to the fifteenth century : in France the nobles would even drop the title of " Prince " for that of " Baron," and we read that the family of Montmorency styled themselves " les premiers Barons de la Chrétienté." A Thane under the Anglo-Saxons, if not a courtier as above, was required to possess " fully five hides of his own land," together with a church, a "borough-gate" where he could dispense justice on the Scripture model, and a "kitchen and bell-house" for the exercise of hospitality and the due summoning of his guests to its participation. The Normans either introduced or restored the term "Baron," and it is under their rule that we come to recognise the first of the three orders of Barons who successively figure in the history of this degree.

* As the name of this learned herald is liable to be misspelt we may observe that its correct and complete form is Sir Nicholas Harris Nicolas (familiarly " Sir Harry Nicolas," as Hood calls him in " Miss Kilmansegg ").

These were the Barons by Tenure. Amid conflicting and obscure accounts we gather that at the outset these scarcely constituted an order of nobility, for, though the lowest of them were leading citizens, they were as distinctly subordinated to the Earls of their respective counties as the Knights were or came to be subordinate to themselves. But this low estate was only for a time, and eventually their order had grown to so commanding a position in the kingdom that the term "Barons" was used conventionally for the entire nobility, as we find Sir Simon de Montfort, though Earl of Leicester, speaking of himself in the warrant issued in the name of King Henry the Third as "Simon de Montfort with other Barons," though in the same sentence he speaks of the "Earls and Barons of the realm of England." And even during the period when they had to look up to the Earls as their chiefs, they still held their assigned territorial baronies immediately of the King, to whom they had in return to render a stated feudal service. As they grew in importance they were summoned to attend the King's Great Councils —the nucleus of our Parliaments, or at least of the House of Lords, where those who were "Barons and Earls" to the King became "Peers" to each other. The dignity of a Baron was now estimated by the number of his Knights' fees, a Knight being attached to each "fee" or division of his lands, and thus with his retainers contributing to swell the troop with which the Baron could accompany the King to war. It was now held that the fact of a baronial tenure of land constituted in itself a right to a writ of summons to the Great Council. But by the time of John many of the Barons had become greatly impoverished in their estates, and this led those others who still retained the whole of their ancestral domains to obtain the passing of an enactment dividing the order into Barones Majores and Barones Minores, or Baronetti, who were scarcely at all higher than Knights, though it was impossible to deprive them absolutely of their higher title. These "Lesser Barons," who were called also "Tenants in Chief," appear to have constituted the original members of the House of Commons, the King having taken to summoning individually the Greater Barons, with the Earls, Archbishops, and Bishops, and leaving these others to be summoned collectively by the Sheriff: hence, says Blackstone, commenced the separation of the two Houses (accomplished 1332). As yet, however, the Lower House was not really established, and the Greater Barons constituted the only regular Legislature for another half-century. Baronies by Tenure have now been long a thing of the past, for even in 1669 it was decided that there had been none "for many ages," though there is still an earldom—that of Arundel—which is attached to the ducal house of Norfolk by the feudal tenure of Arundel Castle.

The dignitaries of the degree which supplanted them were the Barons by Writ. We have just observed that the "tenure" was regarded as giving claim to the "writ," but, owing to the prolonged dissatisfaction at the degraded condition of the Lesser Barons, it was enacted in the 49th year of Henry the Third (Dec. 24, 1264) that none should in future come to Parliament except "those Earls and Barons unto whom the King himself vouchsafed to direct his writ of summons." This, though issued in the King's name, was really the proclamation above quoted of Simon de Montfort, who at that time was holding the King as his prisoner; and he on the same occasion, from his seat of Kenilworth Castle, ordained what was practically the commencement of the House of Commons (though it was not a separate House till the reign of Edward the Second, and it has been remarked that probably the commoners came less as legislators than as petitioners to plead what the Peers might enact) by directing the election, "along with one hundred of the dignified clergy, of two knights for each shire, two citizens for each city, and two burgesses for each borough."* The writs in respect of the nobility appear to have been issued but partially, the King himself summoning the Greater Barons, and leaving the others to the Sheriff. The still existing Baronies then named are those of De Ros, Le Despencer (Falmouth viscounty), Hastings, and Segrave (renewed below), whilst in the line of Camoys (q.v.) the first Baron by writ was originally summoned twelve days earlier than any of these. Following this we read of writs of summons in the 11th year of Edward the First (1283), constituting a small number of Barons, among whom was that of Mowbray; whilst in the 22nd of the same King (1295) those of Hastings, Fauconberg, Furnivall, and Segrave were added, and there was published a decree commanding some sixty persons "to attend the King wherever he might be, to advise on the affairs of his kingdom," though whether this summons constituted its recipients Peers of Parliament is by no means clear. In the course of that same year, however, an unmistakable writ of this character appeared, and Baron Berkeley was one of its recipients, and this date (1295) was, by a decision of the Committee for Privileges in 1915, definitely accepted as that of the first sitting creating Peers of Parliament. The writ when followed by a single sitting in the Lords sufficed to establish the barony (Blackstone states that some had supposed two sittings to be necessary, but Nicolas shows this to be an error), which then regularly passed to the lineal heirs both male and female. These writs are of the class termed Brevia clausa, from being "closed up" with yellow wax sealed with the Great Seal of England. It is under this arrangement that we are occasionally brought into presence of the phenomenon of abeyance, which, as already stated under "General Remarks," consists in the co-heirship of more than one daughter or daughter's descendant. In the case of females, primogeniture is disregarded in the succession of the English nobility (though not in that of the Royal Family, nor yet with Peers of Scotland; with those of Ireland there is practically no such thing as female succession, not even with the one or two Irish baronies by writ; but see under "Waterford"); and thus when there exists no male heir, but there exist more than one female, both or all of these latter are equally entitled to the heirship, and not even the birth of a grandson (i.e. a son of one of these) will relieve the difficulty so long as the original plurality continues, nor after that original plurality has ceased can either son or daughter succeed if any later plurality remains (even of sons only). Thus the abeyance may be prolonged, and it has thus actually lasted through centuries; but there is a prerogative of the Crown which enables it to cut the knot by forthwith conferring the dignity on any one of the co-heirs, or on any other person who is heir to one of the first co-heirs, or heir through a brother or sister of some earlier heir—a female of a nearer generation to that of the last Peer taking preference of a male more remote, but males of the same degree being preferred to females. The succession may thus pass to a cousin, uncle, or aunt, though it cannot, unless open to "heirs general," go outside of the descendants of the Baron first created. The process followed by the Sovereign in calling the barony out of abeyance is by letters-patent in the case either of a female or of a person already holding a higher rank in the Peerage; in that of a male holding no such higher rank it reverts to a writ of summons. But except in this instance and in that of summoning the eldest son of a Peer in his father's barony during that father's lifetime, there have ceased from 1605 to be any new creations of "Barons by Writ;" many of the older ones of course remain on the Roll of the Lords, for, generally speaking, it is only under these titles that the phenomenon of abeyance can occur.

* Mr. Walford quotes Sir Edward Coke to the effect that he had seen a record of the date 1130 (30th year of Henry the First) giving the degrees and seats of the Lords and Commons of that year as constituting one united body.

Lastly, then, we come to the Barons by Patent. Though a patent is now the only form by which new baronies or any other peerages originate, it is anything but a modern innovation, for Baron Beauchamp of Kidderminster was thus dignified by Richard the Second in 1387. From this date for a long period the processes of writ and patent were followed indifferently; but the former has now wholly died out, and the newly created Baron receives his honours by means of a document stamped with the Great Seal, clearly prescribing the terms of succession—generally limited to his own heirs male. Up to the thirteenth year of James the First the creation by letters-patent was accompanied by an investiture at the hands of the King, who solemnly arrayed the new Peer in a scarlet robe with a hood furred with miniver; but in that year it was decided that the patent itself was sufficient, not even the "sitting" being required as under baronies by writ. It need hardly be added that the dignity of the one class is in no way inferior to that of the other, and that the Barons in the Peerage take precedence among each other by the date of their creation alone. In all there are now 416 Barons (counting Baronesses) of England, Great Britain, or the United Kingdom, with 62 Irish, but only 25 Scottish (with Baronesses). The premier English barony as decided by the Roll is that of De Ros dating from 1264. In Scotland, where the term "Lord" long took partially the place of "Baron," we find the Earl of Crawford holding the lordship of Lindsay of Crawford (1398), whilst Baron Forbes (1445) stands first upon the Roll (Gray and Saltoun, however, are slightly earlier). But the oldest barony of all is in the Irish Peerage, where (disregarding those which were by tenure at first only) that of Kingsale (1172) stands first upon the Roll, though its only certain title is by tenure (Sir John de Courcy, the famous English champion who obtained the notable hat privilege, having received no peerage whatever). A Baron is conventionally called "Lord," and is addressed by the Sovereign as "Our right trusty and well-beloved" (without "cousin").

In the Scottish Peerage we notice the extensive use of the term "Lord" instead of "Baron" in the official titles. On this see further under "Scottish and Irish Peers." On Life Baronies see "Life Peers" under "House of Lords."

A Baron's insignia comprise the coronet—which from the time of Charles the Second has been denoted by six silver balls—and the mantle with two bars of black fur. The Baroness wears a similar coronet, and her coronation robe has the cape marked by two bars of ermine; the miniver edging is two inches broad, and the train one yard long.

A Baron's eldest son used once to have the rank of the now extinct order of Knights Bannerets. As it is we can only note that he comes after the younger sons of Earls, but before those of Viscounts, whilst his younger brothers succeed those latter sons though they precede all sons of Life Peers and all Baronets. As with Viscounts, all sons and daughters without distinction take the designation "Honourable."

NOTE ON CORONETS AND ROBES.—There may be a convenience in our here appending in immediate sequence the scale of variations observed in the form of the two leading insignia. The crowns of Royalty are richly jewelled, but those of the nobility must be chased only. All alike have the cap of velvet, lined with white silk and turned up with spotted ermine. The following are the distinctions among crowns and coronets (those of Peeresses being small and fixed to the top of the head with pins):

Sovereign—4 crosses-pattée and 4 fleurs-de-lis, with 2 arches.
Prince of Wales—the same with only 1 arch.
Princes of "Blood Royal"—the same with no arch.
Princesses of ditto—2 crosses-pattée, 2 strawberry-leaves, and 4 fleurs-de-lis.
Princes and Princesses of "the Blood"—4 crosses-pattée and 4 strawberry-leaves.
Dukes—8 strawberry-leaves.
Marquesses—4 strawberry-leaves and 4 "pearls" (silver balls) slightly mounted.
Earls—8 pearls mounted on high golden rays with leaves alternating.
Viscounts—16 pearls, not mounted.
Barons—6 pearls, not mounted.

Of the mantles of the Peerage (as to which see "Insignia" under "Dukes") the differences consist in the number of bars or guards of ermine upon those worn on state occasions in Parliament, and the corresponding number of rows of ermine-spots upon the Coronation robes—Dukes having four rows, Marquesses three and a half (see above in loc.), Earls three, Viscounts two and a half, and Barons two. The coronation mantles of Peeresses vary thus:

Duchesses ..	5	inches	miniver	border,	4	bars	ermine,	2	yards	train.
Marchionesses	4	,,	,,	,,	3½	,,	,,	1¾	,,	,,
Countesses ..	3	,,	,,	,,	3	,,	,,	1½	,,	,,
Viscountesses	2½	,,	,,	,,	2½	,,	,,	1¼	,,	,,
Baronesses ...	2	,,	,,	,,	2	,,	,,	1	yard	,,

ARCHBISHOPS.—The general character of this division of our Introduction seems to render it advisable to consider the Spiritual Peers together at the close of our remarks on the Lords Temporal, though in point of precedence Archbishops stand superior even to Dukes. The Archbishop of Canterbury has thirty Bishoprics in his Province (including his own see) against twelve in that of York; he thus takes a position of decided superiority, being placed above the Lord Chancellor, whilst his colleague follows after that high official, their respective appellations being also distinguished as "Primate of All England" and "Primate of England," whilst the one styles himself "By Divine Providence" and the other "By Divine Permission." To the Archbishop of Canterbury, who is thus the highest personage in England after the Royal Family, the duty pertains of crowning a new sovereign, and it has been decreed that "wheresoever the Court may be, the King and Queen are his domestic parishioners" (the Bishop of London, however, crowned Henry the First, Edward the Second, Queen Mary, and William the Third); the Bishop of London is his Provincial Dean, the Bishop of Lincoln his Chancellor, and the Bishop of Rochester his Chaplain. Previous to the Reformation this Archbishop held great secular power, especially when he was also Lord Chancellor. The Archbishopric of York is more ancient than that of Canterbury, having been originally founded in 180 A.D. on the first introduction of Christianity into Britain, and then restored by Gregory the Great in 632; the southern See dating from 597 under Augustine. William the Conqueror, however, gave the pre-eminence to Canterbury, owing to a suggestion from Archbishop Lanfranc that if the northern prelates were entrusted with the function of coronation they might bestow the crown upon some Scot or Dane! Both are Metropolitans and are addressed as "Your Grace" and "The Most Reverend." In respect of their mitres, most 'Peerages' state that they do not differ from those of Bishops, but the 'Encyclopædia Britannica' asserts that they rise out of ducal coronets, though adding that the decoration is "without authority": see at close of "Bishops."

Bishops.—There are at present thirty-six diocesan Bishops in the English Church in addition to the two Archbishops, who act as Bishops in their own dioceses. By the Act which came into force on March 31st, 1920, the four Welsh Bishoprics, Bangor, Llandaff, St. Davids and St. Asaph, ceased to belong to the Establishment. There are also numerous Suffragan and Assistant Bishops, but these, as such, do not form a part of the Peerage. The sees or dioceses in the Province of Canterbury are:

Bath and Wells, Birmingham, Bristol, Canterbury, Chelmsford, Chichester, Coventry, Ely, Exeter, Gloucester, Hereford, Lichfield, Lincoln, London, Norwich, Oxford, Peterborough, Rochester, St. Albans, St. Edmundsbury, Salisbury, Southwark, Southwell, Truro, Winchester, Worcester.

Those of York Province are:

Bradford, Carlisle, Chester, Durham, Liverpool, Manchester, Newcastle, Ripon, Sheffield, Sodor and Man, Wakefield, York.

Of these, Birmingham, Chelmsford, Coventry, St. Albans, St. Edmundsbury, Southwark, Southwell, and Truro in the former list, and Bradford, Liverpool, Manchester, Newcastle, Ripon, Sheffield, and Wakefield in the latter, are of recent institution, the original total having been twenty-four, in addition to the see of Sodor and Man, the occupant of which has still an honorary seat in the House of Lords, without a vote or liberty to join in the debates, having his own legislative position in the Manx House of Keys. When an increase upon the original twenty-four was commenced, it was enacted that new appointees should not sit in the House of Lords until vacancies arose among their seniors, the new prelate chosen to fill the vacancy being placed in turn at the foot of the junior list, so that the former number of seats in the House should never be exceeded.* Thus the newly-created sees rank on full equality with the old, and a rotation is maintained among their occupants which, except as to the statement in the next sentence, follows the strict law of seniority alone. But a special feature consists in the continuous seniority of the three Bishops of London, Durham, and Winchester, who are thus independent of the rotation prevailing among the others. In fact, we come to have four classes or series among the thirty-nine Bishops:

1. London, Durham, and Winchester—invariably Peers of Parliament.
2. The twenty-one seniors of the remainder—Peers through seniority.
3. Eleven juniors—awaiting seniority for peerage.
4. The Bishop of Sodor and Man—incapable of a full peerage.

The list of Bishops in the House of Lords which is given in Whitaker's Almanack exhibits the order of creation of the prelates "Without Present Seats," thus specifying that in which they stand for succession.

Bishops rank in the Peerage between Viscounts and Barons, but the three in the first of our series take precedence of all the rest, in the order—London, Durham, Winchester. The position of the order, next after that of Viscounts, was assigned them in the reign of Henry the Eighth, so that the instruction at the coronation of Charles the Second that they should "precede all the lay Lords" may be viewed as a mere temporary solace for their entire exclusion from Parliament under the Commonwealth.

This section of our work has obtained for its issue the privilege of high ecclesiastical supervision, having been submitted to the eye of two Bishops of the English Church and of a Theological Professor of King's College, London, afterwards elevated to the bishopric of Gibraltar. One of the three confined himself to remarking on the "diversity between important persons:" the second pronounced that "Bishops are Peers of the Realm," and that "all Bishops are Lords Bishops;" whilst the third favoured us with the following valuable paper:

"Before the Norman Conquest the Bishops were always summoned to give counsel to the King in the Witan, together with the Ealdormen and other chief persons of the kingdom. After the Conquest they occupied the same place in the Great Council of the Realm, like the judges and councillors. And although, as the Great Council passed by almost insensible gradations into the House of Lords, these latter gradually ceased to sit, the Bishops continued to do so, so that, as it has been said with strict accuracy, they have formed the most permanent element of the House of Lords. Their position, however, underwent a gradual modification. William the Conqueror had converted their lands into baronies, and thus required from them attendance at court and military service. Consequently, as by degrees all the greater landowners were summoned to Parliament by virtue of their baronial tenure, the Bishops came to be summoned in like manner as barones, still, however, retaining much of their earlier character as sapientes or 'Spiritual Lords of Parliament.' Both characters have been kept in view. As regards the former, we read that so late as 1722 the then Bishop of Durham, Dr. Talbot, was disposed to keep up some trace of the past—in respect both of his barony and of his personal status as Earl Palatine of the County of Durham and Prince Bishop—by making his appearance at a review 'in a lay habit of purple, with jack boots and his hat cocked, and a black wig tied behind him like a military officer.' On the other hand, although the Bishops have now ceased to hold their ancient baronies (the lands which formerly belonged to their sees being now vested in the Ecclesiastical Commissioners), they, or rather some of them, still sit in the House of Peers, and hold their rank as Spiritual Lords of Parliament.

* But a Bishop who has once attained the seniority will not forfeit his seat in the Lords though he accepts translation to another see that may be vacant. The see vacated goes in these cases to the foot of the list.

"Upon the union of Great Britain and Ireland in 1800 it was provided that the Irish Bishops, who had previously sat in the Irish House of Lords, should be represented in 'the House of Lords of the Parliament of the United Kingdom' by four of their number chosen 'by rotation of sessions.' Of the four Archbishops one sat in each session, and of the eighteen Bishops three; in each case according to a defined order. The subsequent union of Bishoprics and abolition of [two] Archbishoprics brought about further changes; and on the disestablishment of the Irish Church in 1869, the Irish Bishops were excluded from the House of Lords altogether. In other respects their precedency is now shared by the Roman Catholic hierarchy in Ireland.

"The question whether the Bishops who have seats in Parliament are Peers of the Realm has received diverse answers. There is no doubt whatever that when the term 'Peer' began to be used, the Bishops were recognised as Peers of the Realm in the fullest sense. But in practice they did not exercise certain of the functions of the Peerage. The provisions of the Canon Law did not suffer them to be present when judgments of life and limb were being given; and they usually claimed to be themselves exempt from secular jurisdiction on the same grounds. These were ecclesiastical provisions, and in no sense constitutional disabilities; but in effect, the non-use of the privileges of peerage gradually led to the idea that the Bishops were not Peers of the Realm at all. Signs of this are to be found as early as the reign of Henry the Eighth; and in 1692 the representatives of the Lords in conference with the Commons are said to have declared that 'they looked upon the Bishops to be Lords in Parliament, but not Peers of Parliament.' Nevertheless the rights of peerage which the Bishops once possessed have never been withdrawn from them, for an obiter dictum of this kind has clearly no legal or constitutional force.

"A further question remains as to whether every Bishop is entitled to be addressed as 'Lord Bishop,' or only such as hold diocesan sees. Now, of course, it may well be that, in an age which is accustomed to consider every title as the direct outcome of a grant from the civil power, many Bishops do not care to claim such a title for themselves. But there can be no question that, historically, every Bishop was addressed as 'Lord Bishop,' and this not by virtue of any special grant—still less on account of his place in Parliament—but simply by virtue of his episcopal character, and from the universal respect for his office, which only gradually took shape in a formal title. Of this, as a matter of historical fact, there can be no doubt. Whether, however, it is desirable that, as a matter of etiquette, it should be given to all Bishops at the present day, is another question."

During the year which followed the first publication of the above we made numerous enquiries in reference to this "other question." The answers confirmed to us the fact that there does indeed exist "diversity," but the balance of opinion and practice came out clear beyond mistake. Whilst with some classes of the episcopal order the claim to the term "Lord" is clear, with the others we find a gradual shading down, until the sense of doubt took refuge in a decision by courtesy. As far as the matter of right is concerned, the title "Lord Bishop" belongs not only to English diocesan prelates, but to those also in our own Colonies, since such of these latter as possess patents (a form now disused) have had it therein expressly conveyed; and even as to the English Bishops Suffragan, when a small number of these were created in the 16th century they were addressed precisely as Bishops in general. This, however, is an item rather of custom than of right; but it is from the basis of custom that, except as to the above first two orders, our rule will have after all to be deduced. There were English Bishops before the time of the Conquest, and the term "Dominus Episcopus" was applied to them before they came to be constituted Barons; we must therefore resolutely discard the idea that their secular status was the origin of this style of their address. But now, when the numbers of the Episcopate are so greatly multiplied, we find that this form has passed down, until in the probably universal usage of High Churchmen and the very extensive usage of others also, all Bishops of the Anglican Church still in office have come to be styled "Lords Bishops:" the Suffragans are so styled as above: the Irish Bishops, though they stand precisely on a level with their Roman Catholic brethren; the Scottish Bishops, though actually dissenters from the Established Church of their country; and even the Missionary Bishops, though one of this order has expressly answered our enquiry with, "No, this style is happily not customary." But, weighty and honourable as is this disclaimer, it would be unsafe to regard it as a unanimous utterance, so that it would be wiser to insert the word "Lord" where objection has not been expressed than to run the risk of offending by its omission: one clerical correspondent even informs us that he used repeatedly to address "The Lord Bishop of Haiti" (an American Missionary or "Foreign" Bishop) without being reproved. Again, as to the American Bishops proper, the old form of "Right Reverend Sir" is beginning to be dropped for the English style. A retired Bishop constitutes a partial exception, the word "Lord" attaching to the see and not to the person; he must be Lord Bishop of somewhere, or he sinks to the style of "The Right Reverend Bishop X.," though still personally addressed as "My Lord." The position of an Assistant Bishop is similar, since he must not be described as "Assistant Bishop of A.," but

"Bishop Assistant to the Bishop of A.;" still his personal address is "My Lord." The style of a Coadjutor is "The Lord Bishop Coadjutor of A." A Bishop's Commissary is simply the agent of a Colonial or other prelate.

But on the question of the higher Bishops being Peers of the Realm, our former opinion is not shaken but strengthened. Whatever may have been their position in early history, they are clearly now without a single one of the regular accessories of such peerage, their titles not being hereditary and their wives and children having neither title nor precedence. In the recent trial of Earl Russell the incompleteness of their peerage was prominently brought out, and how so high an authority as the late Bishop Stubbs (for he it was) could have laid it down to us that they were Peers of the Realm is something incomprehensible. They sit in the House of Lords by virtue of their office alone, and that by a mechanical rotation peculiar to themselves, usually not gaining their seats till after some years of episcopal service, whilst if infirmity compels them to resign their posts they become (except as to the above courtesy-style of "My Lord") as purely commoners as any of ourselves. If in some past instances we find them called "Peers of the Realm" we must regard the expression as used in the loose sense in which it might be applied to all Peers whatsoever. This statement must cover even the remark attributed to the late Bp. Creighton that he was the holder of a "barony:" the Standing Orders of the House of Lords most expressly lay it down that "Bishops are not Peers."

Bishops Suffragan are deputy Bishops, each directing some subdivision of a diocese or yielding an unlocalised assistance therein; they are invariably distinguished by some topographical title, which, however, may itself vary with different individuals: thus "Nottingham," "Penrith," &c., have disappeared, whilst new titles crop up from year to year. The original Act (of Henry the Eighth) designated twenty-six towns from which the titles of appointed Suffragans might be selected; hence such anomalies as "Bedford" and "Marlborough" recently in the diocese of London; but a new Act has widened the scope.* A retired Suffragan whose successor has chosen a new designation has been allowed to retain the titular honours of the old, thus actually remaining a "Lord Bishop." A further amending Act was passed in 1898 obviating the technical difficulty which required a Suffragan to be consecrated "upon appointment," thus rendering it impossible to appoint one who had been consecrated already. The Suffragan Bishoprics in the various dioceses as at present constituted are as follows:

Bath and Wells—Taunton.
Canterbury—Dover, Croydon.
Carlisle—Barrow-in-Furness.
Chelmsford—Barking, Colchester.
Chichester—Lewes.
Durham—Jarrow.
Exeter—Crediton, Plymouth.
Lichfield—Stafford.
Lincoln—Grantham.
Liverpool—Warrington.
London—Stepney, Islington, Kensington, Willesden.
Manchester—Burnley, Whalley.
Norwich—Thetford.
Oxford—Buckingham.
Peterborough—Leicester.
Ripon—Knaresborough.
Southwark—Woolwich, Kingston-on-Thames.
Southwell—Derby.
Winchester—Southampton, Guildford.
York—Beverley, Hull.

There is thus no Suffragan in Birmingham, Chester, Gloucester, Rochester, St. Edmundsbury and Ipswich, Salisbury, Sheffield, Sodor and Man, Truro, or Wakefield; whilst in lieu of a Suffragan there are Bishops' Assistants in Ely and St. Albans: there are also Assistants in addition to Suffragans in London, and Bath and Wells.

Coadjutor Bishops are officially appointed, often with an expressed right of succession. Missionary Bishops (whose dioceses must be given to make them "Lords Bishops") are Bishops appointed from England but located in countries which are not British Colonies. Assistant Bishops, like Bishops' Commissaries, hold their offices by personal arrangement with their superiors. We have made it a special object to supply particulars as to the Colonial, Missionary, and Retired prelates, such not being readily obtainable elsewhere.

A Bishop's mitre is a high cleft cap, generally of linen stiffened with embroidery and jewels (that of the Bishop of London is of ivory), encircled at the base with a jewelled golden fillet, and having two fringed pendants hanging below from within. That of the Bishop of Durham (as a vestige of the above ancient Count Palatinate) takes a ducal coronet in place of the fillet, and has its two divisions edged with beads and finished with two "orbs." The crosier, the symbol of a shepherd and terminating in a crook, is still borne upon occasions by diocesan Bishops; a cross (quite distinct from a crosier) is sometimes also carried before an Archbishop.

Classification of the Peerage.—Even neglecting the above degrees of Dukes, Marquesses, Earls, &c., we find our subject so complicated that we have to arrange it under the following ramifications (for particulars see the two following divisions):

I. The House of Lords.
  1. Peers created.
    (1) Hereditary Peers.
    (2) Life Peers (Law Lords).
    (3) Official Peers (Lords Spiritual).
  2. Peers elected.
    (1) For Life (Irish Representative Peers).
    (2) For one Parliament (Scottish ditto).

II. The Peerage outside the House.
  1. Peers of Full Rank.
    (1) Scottish Peers } Many of these sit in the House of Lords either under Imperial titles or as Represen-
    (2) Irish Peers } tatives.

* There were but two or three Suffragan sees actually constituted out of this 32, and upon their holders dying out no successors were appointed, so that from 1597 to 1870 the title had no distinctive existence in the Established Church of England. Still, in this Church as in that of Rome, all Bishops not Metropolitans are sometimes called Suffragans, and from this circumstance a former correspondent of 'Crockford' was led to pronounce an essential difference between Suffragan Bishops and Bishops Suffragan. We have followed his harmless caution, but successive Gazette announcements have convinced us that it is of no practical moment.

2. Peeresses in Own Right.
   (1) Imperial Peeresses (male heirs going to House of Lords on succession).
   (2) Scottish Peeresses (Irish are barely possible).
3. Peers' Issue with Courtesy-Titles.
   (1) Eldest sons of Dukes, Marquesses, and Earls (with Scottish "Masters").
   (2) Eldest sons of Dukes' and Marquesses' eldest sons.
   (3) Younger sons of Dukes and Marquesses.
   (4) Younger sons of Earls, with all sons of Viscounts and Barons.
   (5) Daughters of Dukes, Marquesses, and Earls.
   (6) Daughters of Viscounts and Barons.
   (7) Daughters and younger sons of eldest sons of Dukes, Marquesses, and Earls.

[4. Scottish Lords of Session.]

(IV.) THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

Classification of Degrees.—The following table, specifying the present composition of the House itself, may conveniently stand thus closely after the one of a wider application above. It is, however, only a minuter form of classification of the nobles included under No. I. of that table. No minor can take his seat; these are accordingly specified separately. Up to the date of our going to Press, the list stands as under:

	Hereditary.	Life or a Term.	Minors.	Total.	Peeresses.
Princes of the Blood Royal	3	..	..	3
Archbishops	..	2	..	2
Dukes	19	..	1	20	1
Marquesses	28	..	1	29
Earls	129	..	5	132	2
Viscounts	65	..	1	66	2
Bishops	..	24	..	24
Barons (exclusive of Bn. Gardner)	397	4	9	412	14
Scottish Representative Peers	..	16	..	16
Irish ditto	..	27(*)	..	27
	641	73	17
	House of 714	+	17 Minors = 731		19

* Curzon of Kedleston, one of the Irish Representative Peers, has received an Imperial title and is thus included among the Marquesses.

Forms of Admittance.—The House of Lords, the original Great Council and sole Parliament of England, has its early history sketched in the preceding division under the heading of "Barons," where also the more ancient credentials of Tenure and Summons are explained. At the present time, with certain special exceptions, it may be said that all peerages are conferred by letters-patent under the Great Seal of England. It may almost be added that no new peerages are now conferred which do not carry with them a right to sit in the House of Lords, for even if conferred upon a female the dignity is made to pass by preference to the heirs male descended from her: but the power of the Sovereign to create one new Peer of Ireland for every three peerages that have lapsed was shown in 1898 to have been not absolutely abandoned, as had been long and generally supposed. The exceptions to the adoption of letters-patent still occasionally exercised are the following two. The first is described above under "Barons" near the end of the paragraph upon Baronies by Writ; whilst the second consists in the summoning to the Lords, during his father's lifetime, of the heir to one of the higher peerages, who is thus called to proceed immediately to the functions of a legislator under the temporary title of a barony of his father. In this case it must be noted that no new hereditary peerage is thus created, for on the death of the father the son steps into the higher title, and his own separate peerage, as such, passes out of sight. Should the son, however, die first and leave an heir of his own, that heir if of age will take the son's title and hold it until the death of the elder Peer. It must also not be forgotten that though in general the process of Writ of Summons has gone out of use, there are numbers of the existing baronies which are held through the issue of such writs centuries ago, and that it is in their case and theirs only that we are so frequently confronted with the phenomenon of "abeyance." Again, there is a lower form of the Writ of Summons issued at the commencement of every new Parliament, by which every Peer who is already recognised (excepting the elected Representative Peers of Scotland, whose return is notified to the House by the Lord Clerk Register) receives as it were a circular informing him of the re-assembling of the House.

The ceremonies of the admission of a new Peer may be thus described, and they apply to the creation (not succession) or mere elevation of a member of the House. Garter King of Arms (or "Garter" as he is briefly termed), or it may be some Herald in his place, makes his entry bare-headed and attired in his tabard, holding the patent and writ of summons; the new Peer himself follows, between two nobles of his own degree, all three being robed; the new accession makes his obeisance to the Lord Chancellor, who enjoins that his credentials shall be read; the oaths are next administered, the writ handed over for keeping by the Clerk of the House, and the new Peer conducted to his seat, from which he forthwith rises again and returns less formally to the Lord Chancellor to receive his congratulations. A new Bishop is similarly introduced by two Spiritual Peers, but without the secularising company of a Herald. At every new Parliament the oaths must be taken afresh by each Peer before he can resume his seat.

It was noticed above that no minor can take his seat; neither can any Peer who is bankrupt or insane. But the House has long grieved over its incapacity to exclude a Peer notorious for a disgraceful life.

Arrangement and Procedure.—Two thrones are provided for the Sovereign and the Queen Consort, with seats to the right and left for the Prince and Princess of Wales. In front of the thrones is the woolsack, the seat of the Lord Chancellor when neither the Sovereign is present nor the House in Committee. Three Peers constitute a quorum, and can proceed with the work of legislation so long as they are unanimous, but no division is now of force unless thirty are present. The House gives its votes, when these are formally required, by each member answering "Content" or "Not Content," but the Commons' system of dividing in lobbies is also in vogue. In case of a division, an equality of votes is a negative of the proposition, as there is no casting-vote, but the Lord Chancellor himself participates in the vote of the House. This official, it need hardly be added, is by no means the regulator of the proceedings of the House as the Speaker is in the Commons; instead of being elected by the vote of the House he is a member of the Ministry of the day, and he sits in the Sovereign's absence as an ornamental figure-head, whose presence, or that of a deputy, is essential to the conduct of proceedings. He can take part both in the debates and the voting.* The Peers, by a Standing Order in 1868, have dropped the right of voting by proxy, but members may enter upon the journals of the House (if within 48 hours) their individual protest against any measure which has received the sanction of the majority. The House is the ultimate Court of Appeal, those Peers who have been Judges being the acting members, though any other Peer could participate if he were so ill-advised as to insist. Thus technically every Peer is a Judge; nevertheless it was decided in 1905 that a Peer might continue a K.C. and even plead at the bar of the House, though not before a Committee or in a criminal case.

Hereditary Peers.—Our two tables have brought out the fact that there are Peers of Parliament who are not hereditary, just as there are hereditary Peers (Scottish and Irish) who are not Peers of Parliament. The second table, however, shows that the former class of exceptions are comparatively few. These are noticed in our next two paragraphs, whilst the third exhibits the yet further anomaly of a class of hereditary Peers within the House, but not succeeding by heredity thereto.

Life Peers.—This class, once not infrequent, is now restricted to a very small number of Law Lords, at present four. The first recent creation occurred in 1856 in the case of Lord Wensleydale, when the Peers came to the decision that a Life Temporal Peer was not entitled to a seat in their House. An Act was accordingly passed giving power to the Sovereign to elevate two Judges of Appeal into Life Barons of Parliament, and in 1876 the number was enlarged so that it now admits all the Lords of Appeal in Ordinary, whether active or retired. The wives of these Peers take the title of "Lady" with all the precedence of Baronesses; and the children of Life Peers now rank next after those of hereditary Barons and take the courtesy-title "Honourable."

Official Peers.—These are the Lords Spiritual, already described under the preceding division. In point of fact they usually prove to be Life Peers, but only on condition of their retaining their posts till death. Should they resign they not only relinquish their seats, but suffer a change in their designations as stated under "Bishops." A further mark of the distinction between this class and the preceding is seen in the fact of their wives and children being wholly without titles, even the wife of an Archbishop being simply "Mrs."

Peers Elected.—We may thus notice conjointly the Scottish† and Irish Representative Peers, both of which are full Peers of their respective nations, and are elected by the entire adult Peerages of these as specially convened by the Sovereign (but see omissions under Irish Roll). Those of Ireland number 28, and are chosen for life, even though subsequently created Peers of the United Kingdom, e.g. Marquess Curzon of Kedleston; those of Scotland 16, who are elected or re-elected at every fresh Parliament. Elected Peers do not receive the Writ of Summons on the assembling of a new Parliament.

(V.) THE PEERAGE OUTSIDE OF THE HOUSE.

Scottish and Irish Peers.—The Peerages of Scotland and Ireland, though containing the same degrees from Dukes to Barons, differ broadly from that of England in their not conferring membership of the House of Lords. Nevertheless, considerably the larger half of them do possess seats in that House, for, in addition to the elected representatives of the paragraph above, there are very many who (see Section xi.) possess Imperial hereditary titles in addition to their more ancient and native ones—in fact, this is the case with nearly three-fifths of the Scottish Peers and nearly half of the Irish. The Duke of Hamilton is the Premier Peer of Scotland, and the Duke of Leinster of Ireland.

The Scottish Peerage in its early beginnings comes to us under a shroud of mistiness. The first title with which we meet bears the Gaelic form of Mòrmhàor (usually printed Mormaer), that is Great Steward, and a succession of nobles known by this distinction were the predecessors of the Earls of Mar. As mentioned under that title, the first of these to adopt the style of "Earl" is presented to us in 1114 as one of "the Seven Earls" connected with the foundation charter of the Abbey of Scone. The dignity at this date was distinctly a feudal one, its holders being equivalent to the Barons in England; and in the Scottish Parliament, known as the Communitas, these must have held their seats under the latter designation, as the assembly consisted of only the three ranks of Prelates, Barons and Burgesses. The title of Earl would thus appear to have been merged under this one wider term, just as we had it above in the case of "Simon de Montfort with other Barons," for the Scottish nobility was now nominally made up of the two ranks, perhaps not precisely so distinguished, of Major and Minor Barons. The latter subsided into what are now termed Lairds, whilst the former were eventually summoned to the Legislature. The term "Earl," however, from 1578, more regularly appeared in the charters assigning the lands, already designated earldoms (these lands being subject to division in the case of co-heirs, but the title going to the eldest inheritor only). But James the First had, about the year 1430, introduced the English title of "Lord of Parliament," and thus in time the word "Baron," and still later that of "Earl," acquired significations distinct from those of feudalism: and the Earls in this sense soon grew to be the more numerous body (now 44 against 25). So long as the earlier system had remained in force the great Scottish nobles judged of theirp recedence by virtue of their personal status alone, so that the introduction of English usage, with its rule of precedence by priority of creation, led to serious disputes, and compelled the appointment in 1606 of a Commission known as the Decreet of Ranking. We have thus traced the origin of the orders of Barons and Earls. James the Third made his son the first Scottish Marquess, but the title (Ormond) very soon lapsed. Those of Hamilton and Huntly followed, the remainder dating from between the union of the Crowns and that of the Kingdoms. The only Scottish Viscounties hail from the same interval. King Robert the Third in 1398 made his son Duke of Rothesay, and his brother Duke of Albany. In Scotland, as already noticed, when female succession is permitted it follows the rules of primogeniture, and there is thus no abeyance.

* The "Lord High Chancellor of England" finds his more exalted functions in his position as the first judicial officer of the Crown and the first lay person in the realm after the Royal Family. For particulars see "Lord High Chancellor," under the "Official Glossary," further on.

‡ It may here be remarked upon this form once for all that there is an objection in Scotland to the word "Scotch;" the people are "Scots," and their adjective is "Scots" or "Scottish." Their Education Department has, however, been formally christened by the Southern innovation, and other exceptions may turn up from time to time, such as "Scotch whisky," "Scotch snuff," "Scotch haggis," "Scotch thistle," "Scotch kale," "Scotch mist," and "Scotch terrier." Again, the Scotsman Boswell uses the form "Scotch" repeatedly in his "Life of Johnson," so that certainly no one can say that "the decree has been made absolute."

In the Irish Peerage, as all the creations were made by English monarchs, there are no special features to comment upon having any similarity to the preceding. We note, however, the almost entire absence of female succession, and this in spite of the fact that there are Irish baronies by writ. The term barony is still extensively used for what in England is of the nature of a manor, but this circumstance has not interfered with the employment of the word "Baron" for a title of nobility. Irish Peers have the distinctive privilege of admission by election to the House of Commons.

Peeresses in Own Right.—Peerages are occasionally granted immediately to ladies of distinction or the widows of distinguished men; but frequently the instances falling under this heading are the result of regular inheritance in lines which, as we have noted under "Barons," are open to females in default of males. Thus it results that some of the Peeresses now upon the list have male heirs who will succeed them in the ensuing generation and take their seats by strict right in the House of Lords; while, on the other hand, several peerages now occupied by males will fall to the other sex, and thus for a time take leave of that House.

Scottish Lords of Session.—We have now stepped outside the Peerage altogether; for the word "Lord" prefixed to the names of these Judges, or sometimes even to titles different from their names, is strictly an official honour, and may be compared to the term "Lord Justice" in England, for which until lately "Baron" and "Lord Chief Baron" were used. An Order in Council of February, 1905, authorised the retention of the title for life, irrespective of retirement, and the style "Lady" is to be enjoyed by the wife, and to continue in widowhood though not after re-marriage; but no distinction is conferred upon the children. "Lord" in this case takes the prefix "Hon." in place of the "Right Hon." of actual Lords. These Lords, fourteen in number (inclusive of the Chairman of the Scottish Land Court, added in 1912), are given in our Directory, and a list of them will be found in Whitaker's Almanack. The official title is not used ordinarily, the practice in Scotland being to speak of "the Lord Justice Clerk" instead of naming him by his Bench title.

Remarks on Foreign Titles held in the British Dominions.—We are continually meeting in the papers with some title which belongs, or affects to belong, to some foreign nobility, and which in many cases is thoroughly respectable, though we fear that in many others it is decidedly the reverse—in fact, either bought with cash or an imposture altogether. Some of the parties apparently come to this country for a brief flash in English society, or it may be a crash among English tradesmen; while others are settled residents with us, and not to be named in the same breath with these their would-be kindred. Of course we are not attempting to discriminate between individuals. We have given nearly all the names to be found in either 'Burke' or 'Debrett,' together with two or three others whose credentials appeared to be satisfactory. There may be many sound ones besides, but such of these as adopt fixed abodes in this country are fairly sure to take steps for making their presence known.

A good number of those whom we have felt warranted in including are residents in various parts of our own island: but there is one French Peer in Canada (De Longueüil), and about thirty holding Maltese, Spanish, Genoese, or other foreign titles are to be found in our little Colony of Malta. Of these we now supply, we believe, a complete list, including even those who hold uncouth Arabic titles: one of these last, the Baroness Diar-il-Bniet, is the premier noble of Malta, and as such was deputed to represent the Peerage of the island at King Edward's coronation. As a rule, a foreign peerage acquires no rank or precedence in the British dominions, but some thirty of those held in Malta are practically "taken over" by our Government, and they take precedence at the British Court next after the Barons of Ireland: in Malta itself, after members of the Council of Government. This they do regardless of designation, for in Malta the terms Marquess, Count, and Baron are treated as titles only and marking no distinction in rank, the date of creation alone governing their precedence, and the form of address being "Most Noble" irrespectively to all. The adoption of these titles by our Government was in most cases (not quite all) in compliance with treaty obligations on our acquisition of the island, just as the above title of De Longueüil followed the cession of Canada by France: there are a few, however, which have been provisionally accepted though not authorised by treaty. Besides Spain and Genoa, we find among the sources of these honours Austria, Naples, Sicily, Parma, Savoy, and the Grand Masters of Malta itself, these last supplying the only strictly Maltese peerages. Papal titles, being in the nature of ecclesiastical dignities, have never been recognised by the British Government in Malta. Turning from that island we find perhaps the largest portion of our foreign titles bearing the designation of "the Holy Roman Empire," which the student of history knows to be the style assumed by the Emperors of Germany in days when the leading power of that country was Austria. Several of our own aristocracy can append to their other titles that of Prince or Count of this Holy Roman Empire, and it is an honour that may be depended upon as not having been obtained by dishonourable means. Similarly a writer in the Standard in October, 1900, states that a "Spanish countship is as hard to come by as an English earldom;" and he adds that at least 119 British subjects hold foreign titles. We may briefly instance the French dukedoms of Aubigné, Melfort (late), and Châtelhérault; the Duke of Wellington's Spanish, Portuguese, and Belgian titles; Nelson's Neapolitan dukedom of Bronte, Lord Reay's Dutch title, and the Earl of Clancarty's marquessate of Heusden; again, there are the Austrian baronies of Rothschild and Fremantle, the Earl of Clarendon's Prussian barony of Villiers, the Earl of Dundonald's Brazilian marquessate of Maranham, the Portuguese viscounties of Monserrate and De Stern (late) and earldom of Cape St. Vincent, and the Russian barony of Dimsdale. Hanover, Hungary, and Sweden are cited as having contributed one each.

(VI.) NOMENCLATURE OF PEERS' RELATIVES.

Use of the Terms "Lord," "Lady," "Hon.," &c.—The title "Lord" is in the first place the regular conventional designation of a Baron, and frequently in the older titles it is even found substituted in the patent or writ, as is especially noticeable in the Scottish Peerage. Secondly, it is used in common parlance as a general term for any nobleman, from a Baron to a Marquess. Thirdly, in courtesy-titles it is correctly used in the case of the eldest sons of such of the higher Peers as hold subordinate titles as Barons, and conventionally again when the subordinate title is higher than that of Baron. Fourthly, it is prefixed to a Christian name to designate a younger son of a Duke or Marquess. Fifthly, it is used, by right or by courtesy, to Bishops. Sixthly, it is applied, as a judicial title, to a Scottish Lord of Session. The title "Lady" is borne by wives or sisters in all these cases except the fifth (the sixth is now included), by the daughters of Earls, and by the wives of Baronets, and, in practice, by those of Knights also. When the word "Lord," or any other title of honour, is added to a Christian name, as "Alfred, Lord Tennyson," the title "Lord T." implies an actual Peer, and the "Alfred" shows which one of the line is intended (the form "Lord Alfred" could only be the courtesy-title of some younger son as above): and so we have "Edward, Earl of Derby," "Maria, Duchess," &c. In the Roll of the Peers as officially printed each nobleman is designated by the prefixing to his title of the entire series of his Christian names. The leading name suffices for less formal use.

We have found it necessary to expand this last sentence, though previously we had felt almost ashamed to say even this much. But the extent of ignorance with which we have met, even amongst writers whom we should have assumed to be well-informed on such a matter, is such that we are compelled to apologise for greater fulness to those with whom the laws of address have long been as their A B C. In the case of actual Peers, then, the forms "Alfred, Lord Tennyson" and "Edward, Earl of Derby" are precisely equivalent in definition respectively to "1st Baron T." and "14th Earl of D." But though with foreign personages we may hear of "Duke Henry" or "Baron Otto," we can never have this inversion of the Christian name in either of the Peerages of our own islands. In fact, even in the use of courtesy-titles it can never occur with any style higher than that of "Lord," so that such forms as "Viscount James Cranborne" are simply outrageous monstrosities. The only exception comes in when this very variably applied term "Lord" is the courtesy-title of a younger son of some Duke or Marquess; then the addition of the Christian name is as imperative as in the other cases it is banned. Even here care must be taken not to confuse with these the courtesy-title of an eldest son, which, if "Lord," will usually be that of a barony included in his father's titles, whilst those of younger sons invariably terminate in the family surname: thus we have Lords Stanley, and Medway, who are heirs apparent to the earldoms of Derby, and Cranbrook, and many similar titles will be found on glancing down the column of Eldest Sons of Earls in Whitaker's Almanack. In brief, when "Lord" is followed by a Christian name it exactly corresponds to "Honourable" in the case of other sons. With the word "Lady" the blunder is even more frequent: but as the rules are fully given under the headings that follow, it should be sufficient in this place to point out that the forms "Lady Anne," "Lady Jane," &c., must never be used except for the daughters of Dukes, Marquesses, or Earls (who, as stated further on, usually retain these forms after marriage); but wives of Baronets and Knights bringing with them no title of their own must be simply "Lady Brown" or "Lady White," though if requiring distinction from other Ladies of the surname they may prefix to "Lady" their own Christian names, or if two of the name chanced to be at the same address the form "Lady (E.) Smith" can be adopted: these, however, are conventional resorts only, "for," says a former Lord Chamberlain (who kindly examined and approved this and two following sections), "if ten Lady Smiths were presented at Court they would each be 'Lady Smith' simply;" whilst the bold but frequent device of inventing a compound surname from a Christian name, such as "Lady Douglas Smith," amounts at once to making a "Lord Douglas Smith" (instead of "Sir Douglas") of the husband.

The prefix "Hon." is given personally to most Peers' issue (see "Earls," &c.), and officially to all present or past Maids of Honour, all Justices of the High Court during office (not Lords Justices, who are all made Privy Councillors, nor Lords of Appeal, who hold life Peerages), to Lords of Session, but not their wives ("Hon. Lord," but "Lady" only), and to members of Executive or Legislative Councils in the British Dominions.* The Parliamentary phrase "Hon. Member" implies no personal

* This use of the title, having its rules to some extent complex, has occasionally been applied too freely. It pertains for life to members of the Canadian Privy Council, or of the Executive Councils of Victoria and Tasmania, these memberships being life appointments; also, during office, to Senators of Canada (with the Speakers of both Houses and those of the Provinces) and to members of any Executive or Legislative Council in a Colony possessing responsible government (by the King's permission the title may be retained by ex-members). Locally the "Hon." is assumed by members of these same Councils in Crown Colonies also, and by the Speaker of a Legislative Assembly where such second Chamber exists—the Crown Colonies, some 45 in number, comprise all the British dominions beyond seas not included in India, Canada, Australasia, or the Union of S. Africa). In 1912 the King was pleased to approve of the use throughout his Dominions during or official title, and it is a mistake to prefix "Hon." to Gentlemen Ushers: "Never with men," says our authority. "Right Hon." is the title of a Privy Councillor and of any Peer lower than a Marquess: Peeresses take the style of their husbands; and by courtesy either "Rt. Hon." or the commonly substituted "The" must be prefixed to the title or name of all Peers' issue who are higher than "Hon.,"* a courtesy-Marquess being "Most Hon.," and "Rt. Hon." being preferable to "The" in the case of other eldest sons bearing titles of their fathers. "Rt. Hon." is also given during term of office to all Lord Mayors, the Lord Advocate, and the Lord Provosts of Edinburgh and Glasgow (not other cities). "Hon. Lady" may denote either a lady previously "Hon." who has married a "Sir," or else any lady who has married an "Hon. Sir," provided that his "Hon." is the mark of a Peer's son and not of a mere office. The article "The" when prefixed to "Lord" or "Lady" is a conventional substitute for "Rt. Hon.," and the combination "The Lady" must, therefore, not be applied to the wife of a Baronet or Knight. Nevertheless "The Hon.," "The Hon. Lady," and "The Dowager Lady" (though only a Baronetess) are correct forms in addressing.

PEERS' ISSUE WITH COURTESY-TITLES.—We first note that some of these are heirs to peerages, while others are never likely to be such. In the case of eldest sons, those of Dukes, Marquesses, and Earls take as a general rule the second titles of their respective fathers, for nearly all the higher Peers possess at least two, and some of them quite a multiplicity. But no law exists in the matter, though each family has usually its established custom. With some of them two titles are adopted alternately, and in some instances again we find that when an eldest son has been removed by death, then his son if he leaves one—or in default of such his next brother—may either step into his title or take some other if there are three or more (thus, the present Duke of Westminster, during heirdom, continued to be called "Viscount Belgrave," his title during the life of his father, Earl Grosvenor). But we find deviations more or less from any of the titles of the fathers, as when the word "Lord" or "Viscount" is prefixed to the family name (as is almost regularly done when the Peer bears no third title, and is, say, both Earl and Viscount by an identical designation, whilst in the cases of the Devon, Lindsey, and Temple earldoms it is the only possible course, as those peerages have no second title attached); or in such cases as "Viscount Morpeth" instead of "Viscount Howard of Morpeth" for the son of the Earl of Carlisle, or "Lord Inverurie" instead of "Lord Keith of Inverurie" for the late son of the Earl of Kintore: again, "Lord Dromore" (instead of "Lord Gillford") for the present Earl of Clanwilliam whilst an heir. Courtesy-titles can be bestowed also upon a grandson who is the eldest son of the heir, but never upon any collateral relative, even a brother (son of a previous Peer), who may be a presumptive heir. Again, in the Scottish Peerage the eldest sons of Viscounts and Barons are usually known by the term "Master of" prefixed to the titles of their fathers—this term having formerly been something more than a term of courtesy, for its holders were entitled to sit and vote in the Scottish Parliament in the absence of their fathers, and on some occasions even in their presence: at one time, too, we read that this title was assigned to the next brother of a Lord. The younger sons of Dukes and Marquesses only are distinguished by the word "Lord" before their Christian names; whilst the younger sons of Earls and all sons of Viscounts and Barons (except as just noticed for the Scottish custom, and see under "Capell, Baron") are known as "The Honourable." Returning to grandsons, we observe that the eldest son of the eldest son of a Duke (Somerset excepted, though here either the Crown or the freedom allowed by conventionality would probably soon meet the difficulty) is sure to hold some title of the grandfather; and so with the grandson of a Marquess if the son's courtesy-title is "Earl," but not if it is "Viscount" (just as with the sons of an actual Viscount), though in the Scottish Peerage the eldest son of even a Baron by Courtesy (an Earl's grandson usually) may be called "Master;" and again the younger sons of an eldest son of a Duke are also designated in accordance with the style of their father: if he is called a Marquess they will prefix "Lord" to their names, but if an Earl they can only be "Honourable." Similarly the younger sons of the eldest son of a Marquess (who will be styled either "Earl," "Viscount," or "Lord") can in any case be only "Honourables," as are all the sons of the eldest sons of Earls (for such eldest sons cannot possibly be styled higher than Viscounts, and the sons of a Viscount are all called Honourables); whilst the offspring of the younger sons of all Peers and of all sons of Viscounts and Barons are Esquires only. One more illustration: though the eldest son of a Duke may be "Marquess," his eldest son "Earl," "Viscount," or "Lord," and his next son "Lord John," the younger sons of the Duke can never be higher than "Lord John," and the sons of any "Lord John" only Esquires. What may require to be particularly noticed is the difference between "Lord" of an eldest son and "Lord John" of a younger, the issue of the former being "Honourable," but not those of the latter. The daughters of Dukes, Marquesses, and Earls take the prefix "The Lady" before their Christian names, whilst those of Viscounts and Barons take "Honourable" like the sons. It will be observed, as already commented upon, that in the case of Earls, the daughters thus receive technically a higher distinction than the sons, being treated exactly as the daughters of Dukes and Marquesses, whilst the sons obtain only the title assigned to those of Viscounts and Barons; but this partiality is only a part of that general anomaly noticed above, in virtue of which the daughter of every Peer ranks one degree higher than the younger sons—an Earl's daughter is "born in the degree of a Viscountess," whereas these sons are in that of Barons only. The distinction has tenure of office of the title of "Honourable" in the case of the Chief Justices and Judges of the High Ct. of Australia and of the Supreme Cts. of New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, Western Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, South Africa and Newfoundland. In 1913 the same privilege was extended to the Chief Justice of Canada, the Judges of the Supreme and Exchequer Courts of Canada, and to the Chief Justices and Judges of the Supreme Courts of Ontario, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, British Columbia, Prince Edward's Island, Saskatchewan, and Alberta; also to the Chief Justices and Judges of the Court of King's Bench, the Superior Court of Quebec, the Circuit Court of the District of Montreal, the Courts of King's Bench and of Appeal in Manitoba, the Court of Appeal and the Supreme Court of British Columbia, and the Chancery Court of Prince Edward's Island. Retired Judges of these Courts may also be permitted to use the title.

* This statement having been challenged, we in 1904 re-applied to the Lord Chamberlain, and were assured in answer that "younger sons and daughters styled Lord or Lady, and eldest sons bearing special courtesy-titles, are entitled to the term Rt. Hon. or the substituted article," though this is simply "a matter of usage as is the courtesy-title itself."

the effect of rendering the term "Lord" (before a Christian name) very much less frequent than that of "Lady," and in consequence of greater apparent honour; whilst the term "Lady," as we have already remarked, is of extremely wide application—being borne, though without the prefix "The," by even the wife of a Knight Bachelor—and when the daughter of a Baron marries a Baronet or Knight and thus becomes "The Honourable Lady," we see that the word "Honourable," which marks her lineage, is really of the higher value of the two (similarly if the widow of a Baronet or Knight remarries to even the younger son of a Baron, she gains in precedence by becoming "Hon.," instead of "Lady"). Granddaughters, the offspring of the eldest son of a Duke or Marquess, are styled "The Lady" if their father's title is either "Marquess" or "Earl," but if it is only "Viscount," then they, with all offspring of the eldest son of an Earl, are "Honourable" only. No grandchildren of Viscounts or Barons bear any title as such. It must again be noted that a courtesy-title, either of male or female, does not always determine its holder's precedence, for a Duke's son, for instance, will rank as equal with a Marquess though termed only "Lord," and the Duke's eldest son's eldest son will be level with an Earl even if termed only "Honourable:" what is said below of the wife's rank is a favour to certain married ladies. As to the occasional instances in which the term "Lord" or even a higher title is found applied to an heir of a Viscount or Baron, there are various ready explanations: first, and most frequently, the title belongs to some higher rank held by the father under another Peerage (say Scottish or Irish); secondly, the mother of the heir may be a Peeress in her own right, and the heir's title may be obtained upon her side instead of the father's; thirdly, a Scottish Lord of Session may be the heir. The Courtesy-Titles in present use, together with all other subsidiary titles of Peers which we believe to be extant, will be found in their respective alphabetical positions in the following DIRECTORY. Most of the higher Peers hold three or four of these titles; and some of those of Scotland, besides the Marquess of Lansdowne, have as many as ten and upwards, the Duke of Atholl even exceeding twenty.

ON THE MARRIAGE OF PEERESSES, &c.—The most essential rules may be thus briefly specified:

The wife of a Peer takes the regular feminine of his own title, wholly irrespective of what she was before (but see below as to some rare exceptions made by etiquette); a Baroness being styled "The Right Hon. Lady."

The wife of a Peer's eldest son bearing one of his father's titles will take the feminine form also unless her previous rank was higher than his; but if, though eldest and heir, he is simply "Hon.," she, if herself not higher, becomes "the Hon. Mrs." with no Christian name.

The wife of a Baronet or Knight is styled "Lady" unless she is the daughter of a Peer, when she may be "The Lady Anne," "The Hon. Lady," &c.

We have now to amplify these rules. A Peeress in her own Right retains her title after marriage, and if her husband's rank is the superior she is designated by the two titles jointly, the inferior one last: her hereditary claim still holds good in spite of any marriage whether higher or lower. No rank held by a woman can confer any title or even precedence upon her husband; but the rank of a Peeress in her own right is inherited by her eldest son (or perhaps daughter), to whomsoever she may have been married. With a Peer's widow who remarries the case is in appearance the same as to retention of a former superior title; but it is so by etiquette only, for even if she is a Duchess married to a Baron it will be as a Baroness only that she will be summoned to any royal function, although conventionally she will be known by whichever title is the higher, and if both are the same in degree, that of her husband will naturally be used. But in strictness, whether her second marriage is to a Peer, to a Lord by Courtesy, or to a commoner, she forfeits whatever title she had acquired by her former marriage, and comes to her second husband in precisely the same rank in which she came to her first (which, if she is also a Peer's daughter, may be higher than that derived from her late Peer-husband), though custom usually gratifies her by continuing the recent honour if desired. If the widow of a Lord by Courtesy, the same remarks will apply to her remarriage to any person but an actual Peer. Similarly any daughter of a Peer, upon marrying an actual Peer, takes the rank of her husband, whether it exalts or lowers her; if she married a Lord holding the special courtesy-title of an eldest son, she may either take the feminine of that title and thus take its rank (governed by that inherited from the father and not by the accident of its own style as Earl, Viscount, &c.), or she may retain her own rank if the higher by prefixing her Christian name to her husband's courtesy-title (on the diverse practice see "Ingestre," under "Shrewsbury"): * lastly, if she marries any person other than a Peer. or an eldest son holding a distinctive courtesy-title, she then at the least retains her own rank, as denoted by "The Lady Alice" or "The Hon. Mrs. John," and will rise with him if previously beneath him, so that if lately "Hon." only she may become "The Lady" (a "Lady" marrying a Knight or Baronet continues "The Lady Alice" with only change of surname, whilst an "Hon." becomes "Hon. Lady" without Christian name, the "Hon." marking her descent and the "Lady" her married status, which in the other case has to be absorbed). But a married lady will never retain such a style as "the Hon. Alice;" and though, as stated under our "rules," the "John" will be omitted if he is the eldest living son of a living Peer, it must not be omitted, nor "Alice" substituted, on the ground of his being a commoner himself: we give this on the direct authority of the late Lord Chamberlain. The variations here, however, require scrupulous care, complicated by the anomalous fact that any Peer's daughter ranks one degree higher than either of the same Peer's younger sons (though his heir is her equal): the daughter of a Duke ranks higher than the younger son of a Duke, and thus retains her own Christian name in preference to his; but the daughter of a Marquess ranks only as equal to a Duke's younger son, and consequently may take either his or her own Christian name after "The Lady" (his as a rule). We may put the ordinary practice upon marriage with younger sons more concisely thus:

* Note that this will not happen in the case of marriage of any Peer's daughter to the eldest son of a Duke, for the wife's rank cannot possibly be higher than his, and she will therefore take (with the rank of a Marchioness) the regular feminine of his own style whether Marquess, Earl, or even Lord. This rule of precedence by actual rank regardless of style may seem at first inconsistent with the latter half of the note that follows; but the difference there denoted is confined to those cases in which a lady can retain her former style for the express purpose of keeping herself superior to her unfortunate husband.

A Peer's daughter entitled "Lady" will on marriage become "The Lady John" if her husband's father was of higher rank than her own father, but will remain "The Lady Alice" if it was either the same or inferior: there is, however, an option of either style (but regularly the husband's) if higher by only one degree.*

If entitled "Honourable" she will become "The Lady John" on marrying a Peer's son designated "Lord John," but on marrying either another "Honourable" or a commoner she will be "The Hon. Mrs. John."

It may be added to the above remarks that the widow of either a Lord by Courtesy or a younger son forfeits upon a second marriage any right to a title which had accrued to her by a first (as distinct from one which was her own by birth), though here again custom humours her by continuing the courtesy-title or the prefix "The Lady," but not that of "Honourable," which, however, many ladies still strive desperately to retain. The daughter of a Peer who previously herself bore the title "Honourable" will on marrying a "Sir" become "The Hon. Lady B.," whilst if her previous title was "Lady" (with a Christian name) she will be entitled "The Lady Alice B.," disregarding the "Sir." A commoner marrying any person of title whatever follows her husband's style exactly, from "Duchess" downward to "The Lady John B." or "The Hon. Mrs. Charles B." (thus the wife of an Earl's younger son is "Hon." only). As to the husband's Christian names, they may not always be needed after "Mrs." if no uncertainty is caused by their omission, and in point of fact they are very frequently omitted even when uncertainty is caused; the wife of an eldest son, however, is correctly treated as the "Hon. Mrs." of the surname, and accordingly the wife of a Scottish "Master" (himself always "Honourable") will be styled "The Hon. Mrs. N.," unless, of course, she was previously "The Lady:" and here we may remark that such forms as "The Mistress of Napier," "of Gray," or "of Sinclair," found occasionally in 'Burke,' are applied not to the wife of a "Master," but to the Peer's eldest daughter in the absence of a son. A late Lord Chamberlain further informed us in 1905, and his successor distinctly confirmed it in 1907, that the rule as to omitting the Christian name from the wife of an eldest son does not apply to husbands lower than the Peerage, so that even the wife of the heir to a baronetcy is strictly "Mrs. John B." (however conventionality may incline). The above rules show that whilst a lady may often rise by marriage, there is only one case in which she can sink by it—that, namely, in which a Peer's daughter marries an actual Peer of a rank two steps lower than her father's. A Duke's daughter is "born in the degree of a Marchioness," and it has been remarked that if a Duke had four daughters the three eldest of whom married an Earl, a Viscount, and a Baron, while the youngest married her father's footman, this last would retain her original rank, whilst the others, though wedded to Peers of the Realm, would all have sunk respectively one, two, and three degrees beneath her.

A morganatic marriage, a German institution not specifically recognised in this country, is one expressly entered into as such on account of the lower rank of the wife: it is lawful wedlock and renders the offspring legitimate, but excludes both them and their mother from any claim to the father's rank or inheritable property, and compels himself on marriage to renounce any claim he might possess to succession.

PEERS' WIDOWS.—The use of the word "Dowager" or a substitute therefor may cause perplexity: moreover, there is undoubtedly an antipathy to this term on the part of those ladies who have a horror of being considered old, so that it is desirable to use it with care, though, as being a form in use in the Court Circular, it ought not to give offence when correctly applied. So long, then, as the new Peer or Baronet is unmarried, the widow of his predecessor is styled precisely as when her husband was living, even if there co-exists a widow of a still earlier Peer. But as soon as (and for so long as) a new possessor of her title appears she must be distinguished in some way. If she is either mother or grandmother of the new Peer or Baronet she then rightly takes the above designation of Dowager; but if she is only collaterally related, or stepmother, or if she is the Peer's or Baronet's mother whilst his grandmother is also living, then she takes the style "Mary Lady A.," "Catherine Countess of B.," &c.; the elder lady in the latter case continuing to be "Dowager."

* Only a knowledge of individual instances can sometimes decide as to the exercise of this option. Two of the late Lord Salisbury's sons, as well as his brother, are married to Earls' daughters, but one of these is known as Lady Florence and the others as Lady Robert and (the late) Lady Eustace. But the reason for the exception soon becomes evident: Lady Florence's husband is known as the Rt. Rev. Lord William Cecil, and there is another Lord Wm. Cecil, son of the 3rd Marquess of Exeter; the "Rt. Rev." distinguishes the husbands, but two "Lady Williams" would be confusing. So the widow of Lord David Kennedy is known by preference as Lady Mary Kennedy. Sometimes the option is extended to other cases, and a wife gracefully sinks her own rank in order to stand exactly on the level of her husband: thus Lady Maud Dundas, though a Marquess's daughter, took the courtesy-title of Viscountess Milton until she became Countess Fitzwilliam. It has been amusingly remarked that if a Lady Frances, the daughter of a Duke, were to marry Lord Francis, the younger son of a Marquess, she would sink two degrees in rank if she called herself Lady Francis instead of Frances.

(VII.) THE ROLLS OF THE THREE PEERAGES.

(i.) Titles on the Roll of the House of Lords.

When the House appoints a Select Committee, the Lords appointed are named in the order of their rank, beginning with the highest, but when the whole House is called over the call begins with the Junior Baron. [Additions in square brackets are editorial, whilst we have substituted the more definite term "Baron" for that of "Lord," which is used in the Roll.]

 This number is in excess of the total number of Lords Spiritual and Temporal, the discrepancy being caused by the following Lords being twice named in the Roll.

Visc. Cave as Lord High Chancellor and as Visc. Cave .. .. (Nos. 5 and 270)
Marq. Curzon of Kedleston and as Lord C. of K. (Elected for Ireland) .. .. (Nos. 57 and 579)
Marquess of Salisbury as Lord Pres. of the Coun. and as M. of S. .. .. (Nos. 7 and 32)

[This deduction brings the actual number on the Roll to 730, which has, however, to be further reduced by Minors, 17, Gardner Barony vacant, 1, Lord Privy Seal vacant, 1 = 19; after which the net number of Peers free to take part in the business of the House will be 711, which accords with that given under "House of Lords."]

(XI.) SCOTTISH AND IRISH PEERS WITH IMPERIAL TITLES.

THE numerous Scottish and Irish Peers noticed above as possessing also Imperial titles are here arranged in a pair of alphabetical lists, the first under their "native" titles, the second under the Imperial. The latter are the ones invariably given in division lists of the House of Lords, but in a majority of instances, though far from always, they are inferior in rank to the former (precisely—76 are inferior, 29 superior, 14 identical in rank, and 14 more in both rank and designation). The higher title, which is naturally the one in conventional use, is printed in italics in each table.

There are thus in the preceding list 81 Irish titles of a total 162 in the Irish Peerage, and 48 Scottish of a total 85: of the entire 247 there are therefore 129 with Imperial titles and 118 without. There are several among the names, however, that should be regarded as those of English nobles who have come also into possession of Scottish or Irish Peerages. The Duke of Abercorn, the Marquess of Lansdowne, and the Earl of Verulam have both Scottish and Irish in addition to Imperial titles as the list that follows will more readily exhibit.

(XII.) HISTORIC PEERAGE,

SHOWING THE DATES OF EXISTING DIGNITIES IN THE ORDER IN WHICH THEY WERE CONFERRED.

 Every one of the titles here presented is repeated in its alphabetical position in the DIRECTORY, and there followed by the date, and in the case of subordinate titles differing in name, by references to each respective leading one. Note that both here and in the references, the term "Baron" is employed uniformly, though under "Creations" it may often be varied to "Lord," or sometimes "Baron of." The leading titles of peerages of either kingdom are printed in small capitals, whilst the prefixed mark † denotes a Scottish and § an Irish creation: if a * is prefixed it denotes an Imperial title with which one of Scotland or Ireland is identical or nearly so.

Peerages of England, Scotland, and Ireland; all, previous to 1387, by writ unless "tenure" is added. Of the latter class those only are included which have been allowed by the House of Lords and have received no other certain creation.

(XIII.) PEERAGES EXTINCT OR DORMANT SINCE 1850,

WITH A FEW OTHERS OF SPECIAL NOTE SINCE 1800.

 The mark † denotes a Scottish Peerage, § an Irish; * or unmarked, Imperial; ab., abeyant; dm., dormant. The dates of creation and extinction are appended to each title. For extinct Life Baronies see under "Life Peers."—Several of the following Peerages were held by former members of the Royal Family, and, guided by the kind advice of the late Clarenceux King of Arms, we treat these as possessing no real surname at all. The prevailing idea that the name is Guelph he dismisses as absurd, that having constituted the Christian name of a mediæval Duke of Bavaria whose sister in 1040 married the Marquess of Este, and it is from that couple that the Hanoverian line is descended. Hence D'Este (which the Duke of Sussex adopted for his children) comes nearer to a correct name than the above, whilst Guelph D'Este has been supplied us by another authority. But the marriage of Queen Victoria to Albert, Prince of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha and descended from the ancient Counts of Wettin, changed the present line to that of "Saxony" or "Saxe-Coburg," and made Wettin its surname if it possessed one at all—both that word and D'Este being really local titles. By the definite adoption of the surname Windsor this question has now been settled.

To save overcrowding, we have removed from the list the following titles, every one of which is simply a different degree of another, of the same designation and house, which still exists: Auckland Eldm.; Bantry Eldm.; Brownlow Eldm.; Castlemaine Vcty.; Charlemont Eldm.; De Vesci * Bny.; Digby Eldm.; Drogheda Mqte.; Ellenborough Eldm.; Falmouth Eldm.; Farnham Eldm.; Fife Dkdm. (XIV.) THE PRIVY COUNCIL.

THIS dignified and at least nominally important body is a council of state appointed and periodically held by the Sovereign to concert matters for the public welfare. Its proceedings, however, are not published, and, except in the rare instances of a general gathering, only the few members specially summoned give their attendance at its meetings, so that, to all but perhaps half-a-dozen, the membership is for the most part an honourable sinecure. A Privy Councillor is chosen at the Sovereign's will, and no patent is necessary ; the required oath once taken he becomes a Councillor for life or for the life of the Sovereign, though subject to removal or resignation. The number, which at the first was only about 12, is now indefinite : at present there are about 320 in the Council of Great Britain and 78 in that of Ireland (but some 19 of these are members of both). On the accession of a new Sovereign it must be reconstituted, or newly sworn in, within six months, and any member who does not present himself for re-swearing within that time forfeits his membership, though not the style of "Rt. Hon." The Lord President of the Council is chairman of the British Council, and the Lord Lieutenant of the Irish. The duties of these, or rather of the former, are defined as "to attend the Sovereign's person, to manage the debates in Council, to propose matters from the Sovereign," and report the issue. The Sovereign with its advice can dissolve or prorogue Parliament, and in some urgent cases he can issue proclamations and enforce them by pains and penalties. The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council is open to the attendance of any member possessing due legal qualifications, but only those usually attend who hold or have held high appointments in the law. The former judicial functions of the entire Council are exercised by this Committee, whilst its administrative duties are transferred to other state departments. Some of the Colonial Judges have been recently added to this Committee

As noted above, there is a distinct Council for Ireland, though Scotland is content to participate in the larger one, the former being concerned (and that nominally) with Irish affairs alone. The members of both Councils range down from the first Prince of the Blood Royal to private gentlemen possessing no title except the dignified one of "Right Honourable," which is conferred by the membership itself. This title unfortunately has other applications, so that in the case of Peers there is no way of specifying their position as Councillors except by the added letters "P.C.;" and "Right Honourable" must not be substituted for the higher titles of "Most Honourable" or "His Grace." The two lists of members as presented in the ALMANACK are arranged in accordance with the official roll, which follows strictly the Table of Precedence. Thus after the Royal members, Archbishops, and highest officials (now including the Speaker) there come the Dukes of England, and the Marquesses follow. Then come the Earls, headed by the Master of the Horse, and followed by younger sons of Dukes; next the Viscounts; then Marquesses' younger sons; the Bishop of London (ex officio, as are the Archbishops): the Barons, headed by the Lord Steward and the Lord Chamberlain of the Household; Secretaries of State not Peers; an Earl's younger son; and now the Table reaches the grade of the Privy Council itself, from which point all distinctions are disregarded—Baronets, Knights, and Viscounts' and Barons' younger sons—and we proceed in order of seniority alone. Thus, while recognising the scientific merits of an arrangement by precedence, we here submit for practical use a list in alphabetical order. Where no initial precedes the date of entry the member belongs to the Council of Great Britain; an I. denotes that of Ireland; and G.B. & I. marks membership of both. It is noticeable that in the official list the members are termed Privy Counsellors, which is correct in view of the wise counsel they are supposed to give; but they are equally Councillors as being members of a Council. The Coronation robe of a Privy Councillor is a blue satin dress and cloak.

(XV.) THE BARONETAGE.

General Remarks.—This degree, as was noticed above, grew out of a lower division of the rank of Barons. We meet with the phrase "Barones et Baronetti" so early as 1321, whilst in 1340 an hereditary Baronet was made of William de la Pole. "Other Baronetcies," says Mr. Pixley in his very informing work, 'History of the Baronetage,' "were similarly created, . . . but, with the exception of a few cases in Ireland, the dignity had not been regularly hereditary, and long before the reign of James the First it had become practically unknown." The term was often confused with that of "Banneret," so that in the case of Sir Ralph Fane, who was awarded the "dignitas Baronetti" by Edward the Sixth, it is doubtful which of the two honours was really designed, and evident that at most it was not a Baronetcy of the present form. As restarted under James the First in 1611 the degree became, as it is now, a rank intermediate between the Peerage proper and the Knightage. It is linked with the nobility by virtue of its being hereditary and being conferred by patent alone, the early patents having closely resembled those of Barons; but in other respects it has much the appearance of a specialised order of Knighthood—by its designation "Sir," its non-membership of the House of Lords and non-participation in the election of Representative Peers in Scotland and Ireland, and its ranking in the scale of precedence below the Privy Council, Knights of the Garter, and even the old Knights Bannerets Royal. It has no political privileges attached, and consequently there have been until lately scarcely any means, as there are with Peers, for ascertaining the correct succession, the consequence being that spurious, not to say fraudulent, assumptions of Baronetcies have cropped up and pestered us year after year. In 1906, however, a Commission was appointed to consider what steps should be taken to safeguard the status of holders of Baronetcies, and in consequence of its recommendations the Home Office issued on February 11th, 1910, a warrant from the King dealing with the rules relating to the hereditary Degree of Baronets. In this it is ordained that an official roll of Baronets shall be prepared and kept in the Home Department; that no person whose name is not mentioned on the official roll of Baronets shall be received as a Baronet, or shall be addressed or mentioned by that title in any civil or military Commission, Letters Patent, or other official document. The roll is to be prepared in consultation with one or other of the Kings of Arms, revised and corrected from time to time, and submitted to the Sovereign once each year. Any person whose name does not appear, but who considers that he is entitled, shall be at liberty to petition the Sovereign through the Home Secretary. Provision is made that where the Home Secretary finds difficulty in advising as to the validity of any claims, the matter shall be referred to the Attorney-General for England, the Lord Advocate for Scotland, or the Attorney-General for Ireland. It is also appointed that the Home Secretary shall appoint an officer of that Department to be Registrar of the Baronetage, and that every person who succeeds to the title of or is created a Baronet shall pay to the Home Secretary a fee of 5*l.*, to be paid into the Exchequer. In addition, every Baronet created since 1783 is required to register his pedigree and to receive a certificate from one of the Colleges of Arms. In the year 1612 five new privileges were granted, of which one was the right for every Baronet thereafter to claim knighthood, and for his eldest son (following feudal custom) to do the same. This last clause was distinctly specified in the terms of all patents issued up to 1827, and King James at the outset made a rule of knighting all heirs apparent: in later days we have had fitful revivals of the custom in 1835, 1865, and in the case of a son of Sir James L. Cotter in 1874; but other applications have proved unsuccessful, it is said, from defects in the patents of Baronetcy. The dignity, in all the three Kingdoms, was instituted at first as a means of raising money, though other objects were held out. The recipients, who were to be limited in number, were to be gentlemen (armigeri) "of good birth and fortune," possessed of not less than a thousand pounds per annum clear, and in case of war they were to occupy posts of honour near to the royal standard. The rank has been greatly enlarged both as to actual numbers and lowering of the qualifications, whilst the money payment has wholly ceased, though, to preserve the ancient form of warrant, a tally is struck at the Exchequer and handed to the new Baronet by way of receipt. An instance is recorded of the grant of a baronetcy to a female—Dame Mary Bolles, of Osberton, Notts. (1635, in the Scottish Baronetage), and it is stated that this is not quite the only one, whilst under "Descent of Peers" we have observed that in some patents the succession is allowed to follow through a female parent, or, we may add, an earlier ancestor. Nearly one-sixth of the present number of Baronets enjoy Peerages, six being Dukes. A Baronet has no coronet or robes, and in the English and Irish divisions no badge whatever beyond the device of "the bloody hand of Ulster" to be charged upon his coat of arms: see upon this point, as also upon the succession of Baronets, two passages in the "General Remarks" of Section III. Early in Queen Victoria's reign an effort was made by the whole body of Baronets (see Broun's 'Baronetage') to obtain some further distinctive marks; it was ineffectual—it is stated, because "too much was asked;" but the recently founded "Standing Council of the Baronetage" (to whom we are under considerable obligations in the revision of this section) includes this among its aims, which seek to vindicate the claims of the Baronetage generally, to "clear it of all resemblance to Knighthood," and to protect the rank against spurious assumptions.* When there are two or more Baronets of the same surname it is customary to distinguish them by appending the name of the seat of the founder of the line or other place named in the original patent; and when, as not unfrequently happens, this name is identical with their own (e.g. Campbell, Baronet of Campbell) it is customary in Scotland to substitute "Campbell of that ilk." The wives of Baronets are Baronetesses, but the word is scarcely ever used; they are styled "Lady" without any Christian name, or "Dame" with the Christian name (an old form still used in formal documents and personally favoured by some), and these titles they retain by etiquette (we now learn that it is not by law) after a second marriage though to a commoner (if daughters of Peers their correct style is given on pages 26–29, where reference is also made to the use of "Dowager") Designation of a Baronet, Sir A. B., Baronet or Bt.

* The occasion of the starting of the Council was this. The issue of Life Barons had been given a rank between the issue of other Barons and the Baronets themselves, which proceeding was held by the latter to be a breach of faith. But the only alternative form, "Younger Sons of Barons and all sons of Life Barons," whilst it would have debarred the Baronets from this technical objection without making the least difference to them (from the course adopted) as individuals upon the scale of precedence, would have rendered the issue of Life Barons frequently superior to those of hereditary peers of recent creation. Some difference was intended, but not so great as would be implied by placing the Baronets between them.

BARONETS OF ENGLAND, GREAT BRITAIN, AND THE UNITED KINGDOM.—We have here precisely the same three historical distinctions as under the Peers: Baronets created from 1611 up to June 20, 1707, rank as "Baronets of England;" from that date to 1800 as "Baronets of Great Britain;" and after 1800 as "Baronets of the United Kingdom"—the Scottish creations continuing by the side of the first only, and the Irish by the side of first and second. These distinctions, however, do not in themselves (as with the Peers) affect the precedence of a Baronet, which is in any case decided by the date of creation alone. The English degree was instituted by James the First in 1611, ostensibly for the purpose of providing means to effect the settlement of Ulster, then in a state of anarchy. A sufficient sum of money was required from each of the 200 gentlemen to whom the honour was awarded to provide for the maintenance of thirty foot-soldiers at eightpence per day for three years; the total of this was about £1,095, and the first year's instalment was to be paid down in advance. King James's successors, moreover, paid no heed to the limitation of numbers, so that by the reign of Charles the Second the 200 had increased to 888. There are now about a hundred short of this latter figure, but about 1,470 including Scottish and Irish Baronets. The first to receive the title (but on the same day with a number now Peers) was Sir Nicholas Bacon, elder brother of Sir Francis (Kt.), afterwards Lord Chancellor Bacon, and a descendant of Sir Nicholas is still the Premier Baronet of England (see remark under the name in the DIRECTORY). The name of Sir John L. Dashwood is cited as Premier Baronet of "Great Britain," and that of Sir Charles G. E. Welby as of "the United Kingdom:" but of course the junior Baronet in an earlier series takes precedence of the premier in the later one.

BARONETS OF SCOTLAND AND NOVA SCOTIA.—As partly remarked already, these Baronets date exclusively from the eighty-two years between the institution of the degree in 1625 and the Union with England in 1707, all later Baronets of Scottish nationality being Baronets either "of Great Britain" or "of the United Kingdom." It must be understood that there is no essential distinction between Baronets of Nova Scotia and those of Scotland, and though the connection with the American Colony ceased even nominally in 1638 (it had in fact become a French possession before that date, and was only re-ceded in 1713, six years after the Union), we find the Nova Scotia arms upon the shields of several Baronets of much later creation, their use having actually been revived by agreement at a meeting of Scottish Baronets in 1775. This degree was planned by James the First in 1621, its avowed object being to assist the settlement of Nova Scotia. This monarch granted a charter of the Baronetcy of "New Scotland" to Sir William Alexander, afterwards Earl of Stirling; but owing to the King's death the design was left to be carried out by Charles the First in 1625. Sir Robert Gordon, son of the Earl of Sutherland, was Premier Baronet (disregarding four Scots Peers who held baronetcies); but his line became extinct in 1908, and the premier distinction rested with Sir Norman Leslie, of Wardis, until the release of the senior Macdonald baronetcy from the barony in 1910 (q.v. note under Macdonald, Baron). The number of the degree was not to exceed 150, and to each of these, on payment of a sum of about £2,000, was to be assigned a tract of 6,000 acres "of good land." No service was required from them, nor was any trouble taken to see that they carried out the scheme of colonisation: the raising of money to the Crown was the one great concern. Sir William Alexander, who first allotted the baronetcies, transferred his rights and possessions to a French Huguenot, Claude St. Estienne, Seigneur de la Tour, who figures in a spirited ballad of the poet Whittier's. The Baronets of Scotland, alone of the three, possess a distinctive Badge, consisting in an enamelled decoration worn from the neck by an orange-tawny ribbon, and containing the arms of Scotland displayed upon a small shield (inescutcheon) borne upon a larger one charged with a St. Andrew's Cross, and surmounted by a crown, the whole within an oval bearing the motto "Fax mentis honestæ gloria" (Glory, the beacon-light of the noble mind). This badge was substituted for the originally intended arms of Nova Scotia: with it King Charles conferred the crest, which is a branch of laurel and a thistle issuing from two conjoined hands, the one armed and the other naked, with the motto, "Munit hæc, altera vincit" (One defends, the other conquers).

BARONETS OF IRELAND.—These all necessarily date from prior to the Union in 1800, all later Irish Baronets being of "the United Kingdom." The degree was instituted by James the First in 1619 for a similar purpose with the English Baronetage: the account given under that heading will therefore sufficiently apply. Sir Algernon Charles Coote is the premier Baronet of Ireland, his ancestor Sir Charles Coote, Vice-President of the province of Connaught, having received his patent in 1621. In Ireland as in England there had very early existed an hereditary rank bearing the style of Baronets, amongst whom was Wellesleye, Baronet of Narraghe, who was ancestor of the Duke of Wellington. These were descendants of certain "lesser Barons" whom Edward the Third had summoned to Parliament for a special object, but who, not continuing to be summoned, had their baronial rank sunk to that of Baronets.

(XVI.) HISTORIC BARONETAGE.

 As under the Peers, † denotes a Baronetcy of Scotland or Nova Scotia, and § an Irish Baronetcy; all others are of England, Gt. Britain, or the United Kingdom. Peers who are Baronets are given in parentheses. The surname of the original Baronetcy, when different, is added in square brackets.

(XVII.) BANNERETS (or KNIGHTS BANNERETS).

THOUGH this grade has long gone out of existence it demands notice from its earlier importance, as in its more honourable form it was superior to that of Baronets. It was ordinarily the reward of merit in the field, and was conferred, under the royal standard, by the King himself or the Prince of Wales when present, or by the General in their absence, in which last case it ranked inferior to the dignity of a Baronet: the former class were Knights Bannerets Royal, the latter Knights Bannerets of the Secondary Creation. The Knight elect was introduced into the presence of the King (or General), having a long pennon on which his arms were painted, when His Majesty, "after good words and wishes," commanded the tip of the said pennon to be cut off so that it might be converted into a four-square banner. This explains the name, and an assurance of the importance of the distinction is conveyed by the fact that no other person below the dignity of a Baron was allowed to bear his arms upon a banner. Col. John Smith, who recovered the royal standard at Edgehill, was awarded this honour by Charles the First; but a more recent instance of its bestowal occurred when George the Third, at a naval review at Portsmouth in 1773, made of Admirals Pye and Sprye and Captains Knight, Bickerton, and Vernon, the very last recipients of the English dignity of Knight Banneret. It was never hereditary in this country, though it was so in France.

(XVIII.) THE KNIGHTAGE, COMPANIONAGE, AND DECORATIONS.

GENERAL REMARKS.—In 'The Book of the Court' we find this note: "It is a curious circumstance that the English name of this degree is almost the only one which does not imply its equestrian nature, for in the French a Knight is styled 'Chevalier' from cheval, as in German 'Ritter' or rider;" "Caballiero" is also cited as a Spanish form, and it is added, "From the spurs of gold with which Knights were generally invested they were likewise frequently designated Equites Aurati." The familiar form of the Knight in chess will occur to every one in this connection. Knighthood in its earlier days pertained only to men of arms, and it has been noted that Sir William Walworth, who appears to have been the first civilian to receive the honour, actually obtained it for performing the military function of slaying Wat Tyler. Henry the Eighth knighted serjeants-at-law, and James the First knighted anybody who would pay. The ceremonies of investiture were anciently in part courtly and in part devotional. A feastwas held, and robes, arms, and spurs were put on; whilst both before and after the conferring of the dignity the Knight had to take part in services in the church, comprising a solemn confession, a vigil, and the sacrament. A sword used then to be girded on, but for this there came to be substituted the modern ceremony of the accolade or tap with that weapon by the Sovereign upon the neck and shoulders of the Knight (King James, famed for his awkwardness, was only prevented by the Duke of Buckingham from thrusting the sword during this process into Sir Kenelm Digby's eye). But at one time nobles and ecclesiastics also were wont to confer the title, and Kings themselves have received it from such, as did Louis the Eleventh from Philip of Burgundy, and Francis the First from Bayard, the Knight "sans peur et sans reproche;" and so, in our own country, Brand, Abbot of Bury St. Edmunds, knighted Hereward and another, whilst Lanfranc, Archbishop of Canterbury, conferred the rank upon William Rufus even during the reign of his haughty father. Generals in the army had indisputably the power at one period, and laws were even enacted under which penalties were sometimes enforced both upon giver and recipient when the latter was below the status of a gentleman.

The above were "Knights" in the broad sense of the term—not Knights Bannerets nor Knights of any distinctive Order, nor even Knights Bachelor until in process of time they became merged in that rank as stated further on. The rank of a Knight is exceedingly ancient. Alfred the Great is known to have knighted his nephew Athelstan, and Segar recounts that a Knight was created in this country so early as the year 506 (the reputed era of King Arthur's Knights of the Round Table).

There are with us nine leading Orders of Knighthood—the Garter, the Thistle, St. Patrick, the Bath, the Star of India, St. Michael and St. George, the Indian Empire, the Royal Victorian Order, and the British Empire (this last being open to Ladies). To these we may add Knights Bachelor, though not a constituted Order; also, but with Companions only, the Order of Merit, that of the Companions of Honour, the Distinguished Service Order, the Imperial Service Order, and (for Ladies) the Victoria and Albert and the Crown of India; yet again there are the Order of Mercy and the Knights of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem in England, which embrace both sexes, and which, like the Military Knights of Windsor, confer no precedence and are denoted by no initials. Not one of these is hereditary, though Knights of the Garter, even were they only commoners, would take precedence of Baronets. Both this and the Orders of the Thistle and St. Patrick have come to be restricted to nobles, though not quite exclusively, notable exceptions being the bestowal of the Garter upon Sir Edward Montagu (afterwards Earl of Sandwich), Sir Robert Walpole, William Herbert (who became Earl of Pembroke), upon Sir Edward (now Viscount) Grey, and in 1922 upon Arthur James Balfour (shortly created an Earl), and of the Thistle (likewisely prematurely) upon the late Dukes of Argyll and Buccleuch, as also upon the late Sir William Stirling-Maxwell, and upon Field-Marshal Sir Douglas (now Earl) Haig, whilst we are told that the Garter was offered upon his retirement to Mr. Gladstone. The title "Sir" is formally prefixed to the names, when given in full, of all Peers who are also either Knights or Baronets. Wherever in the Knightage the husband is styled "Sir" the wife, in conventional usage, has the title "Lady" or "Dame" as in the case of a Baronetess. But in both cases the honour is one of courtesy and not of right.

All of the above Orders have been customarily conferred by the accolade (see above), but the higher ones have been more and more often made exceptions, and it is now a frequent course for even a Knight Bachelorship to be granted by letters-patent when distance or any other cause interferes with a personal conferment. Some of the most recent recipients of the Garter and Thistle have, however, undergone the ceremony of knighting, and two Knights of St. Patrick submitted to it from the Viceroy during the year 1900, though the latter's creative power extends only to Knights Bachelor.

A Central Chancery for all the Orders of Knighthood was established in 1904, and it was ordained that the issue of insignia and the registration of warrants should be carried out by the Lord Chamberlain's Department at St. James's Palace.

The cuts representing the stars of the various Orders, small as they are, may assist in rendering their descriptions intelligible. But for the Garter, Thistle, St. Patrick, and Bath (G.C.B. Mil.) much clearer ones will be found on our title-page.

The Most Noble Order of the Garter (K.G.).—The commonly accepted date of the institution of this Order is August 1348, or thereabouts, its founder being Edward the Third: it was re-constituted in 1805 and again in 1831. The story of its origin, in one form or other, is familiar to all, and the one that seems most to be preferred is that it was Edward's own Queen who dropped her garter, and uttered the famous words, "Honi soit qui mal y pense!" upon his picking it up, in response to his rally as to what would be thought of her for thus losing her garter in public. The further incident is appended that Edward then placed the garter round his own knee by way of rebuke to those who "saw harm" in it, and that the occurrence thus grew famous, and the garter came to be adopted as the battle-signal at Crécy. Another story is that Richard Cœur de Lion during the Crusades once adopted a white leathern strap below the left knee to distinguish his own soldiers from infidels during a night assault—a theory which would place the origin of the Order a century and a half earlier, and which fails to account for the blue colour of the Garter and still more for the origin of the motto. Sir Harris Nicolas gives as a translation of this motto, "May he be dishonoured who thinks ill of it," adding "i.e., the expedition to France." This hints at some third original for the Order, apparently following Camden in taking the Crécy battle-signal as the starting-point; but here again we want explanation as to why any one, in those days at least, should "think ill" of a grand warlike expedition.

But though mistrusting this application, we must all admit without hesitation that Sir Harris's translation itself is more nearly literal than the one commonly received, which first ignores the "y" for the sake of making out a proverb applicable to anything or nothing, and then repeats the word "evil" without any warrant from the original. For the word "honi," which in modern French would be "honni," is not even a noun at all, but a participle (from "honnir," a verb used only in the passive and in the sense of "vilipender," but with a force of indignation which makes it amount to a curse). "Accursed be he who sees harm in the Garter" is evidently the real intent of the words; Sir Harris's "dishonoured" is far too feeble.

The Order itself may be said to rank indisputably as the first in the world, and the number of foreign Sovereigns who have accepted it is almost countless. It is still limited to twenty-five Knight Companions, with the Sovereign, the Prince of Wales, and other members of the Royal Family (Queen Alexandra and Queen Mary are both Ladies of the Garter), and such extra Knights and foreign rulers and dignitaries as may be admitted by special statute; the only alteration has been the extention of the limits to descendants of the first instead of the second George. A Knight of the Garter is at his investiture allotted a stall in St. George's Chapel at Windsor, over which are set up, to be retained throughout his life, his sword, helmet, crest, banner, and a plate containing his arms and titles: this practice is still in vogue.*

The officers of the Order are—Prelate, the Bishop of Winchester; Chancellor, the Bishop of Oxford; Registrar, the Dean of Windsor—all three ex officio; besides these are Garter King of Arms, usually called "Garter," the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, and the Secretary—these three being personal appointments. The Prelate and Chancellor are authorised to wear upon their left side a scutcheon of the arms of St. George; the latter wears also a gold medal enamelled on the one side with a rose and on the other with a St. George, both encircled with the Garter. The Registrar has a mantle of crimson satin with an escutcheon of St. George's arms embroidered on the left shoulder; and on his breast he wears a red book of the Order with a device of two pens within the garter. The mantle of "Garter" himself is similar, and he wears a gold medal enamelled with the Sovereign's arms impaled with the Cross of St. George, surrounded with the garter, and surmounted by a crown. Like other Kings of Arms (for whose names and titles see Section XXIII.) he has a crown of silver gilt, figured in sixteen oak-leaves. Black Rod, who is the principal officer of the House of Lords, again has a similar mantle. His Rod is surmounted by the Lion of England, and he wears before his breast a gold badge composed on both sides of a knot encompassed with the garter and motto. He is granted for life a house on the south side within Windsor Castle, whilst the Prelate and Chancellor have apartments respectively in the Winchester and Chancellor's Towers of the same.

The decorations of the Knights of the Order constitute a most elaborate and imposing array, comprising the Garter, Mantle, Surcoat, Star, Hood, Hat, Collar, George, Lesser George, and Ribbon. First, the Garter itself (worn below the left knee), of dark blue velvet edged with gold, the motto in golden letters, and the buckle and pendant of chased gold (those awarded to foreign Sovereigns have been most richly gemmed, that sent to Gustavus Adolphus having the motto composed of some four hundred diamonds). Secondly comes the Mantle, which is of dark blue velvet lined with white taffeta (this is the mantle worn by Sovereigns upon state occasions, the regal distinction lying in the extra length of the train). Thirdly we have the Surcoat, of crimson velvet, lined like the Mantle and adorned like it upon the left breast with an eight-pointed silver-embroidered Star, within which is the Red Cross of St. George, the whole encircled by a miniature blue garter. After these come the Hood, resembling the Surcoat in colour and material, and the Hat, which is of black velvet and surmounted by a plume attached by diamonds and composed of white ostrich feathers with a central tuft of black ones from the heron. Then there is the Collar, which is constructed of twenty-six circular medals of gold fastened together by chains exactly in the manner of the circles in our title-page; each medal has for its border a garter with its motto, and for its interior a rose, alternately white and red: between each medal and the next is a true-lovers' knot, formed of gold and enamelled white. The twenty-six "garters" as they are termed (we here call them medals for clearness, as the idea of twenty-six garters round the neck might be too suggestive of strangulation) corresponds to the number of the Order—the Sovereign and Knight Companions; the entire Collar weighs exactly thirty-two ounces.† Suspended to this Collar over the breast is the Badge or George, an image of that saint encountering the Dragon; the Lesser George, which is similar, is attached to the broad dark blue Ribbon of the Order, passing over the left shoulder and crossing to beneath the right arm (never otherwise, however sometimes pictured; we have had this certified by a note from Garter King of Arms in 1907). On the death of a Knight the insignia must be returned to St. James's Palace.

THE MOST ANCIENT AND MOST NOBLE ORDER OF THE THISTLE (K.T.).—The Scottish Order of the Thistle is reputed to be of very remote origin: some have assigned it to A.D. 787, and it is said to have originated in the vision of a bright cross in the heavens seen by Achaius, King of Scots, and Hungus, King of the Picts, as they were engaged in prayer in the night before their battle with Athelstan, King of England. What element of truth there may be in this no one can now confidently state. What is historical is that in the year 1687 James the Seventh of Scotland and Second of England either established or revived the Order, creating eight Knights and assigning to them the royal chapel at Holyrood. Once more the Order collapsed through the Revolution of the following year, but on December 31, 1703, it was again and more permanently established by Queen Anne. In 1827 it was decreed that its membership should comprise the Sovereign and sixteen Knights, but other personages of the Royal Family have since been added. Its officials are the Chancellor, the Dean, the Secretary, Lyon King of Arms, and the Gentleman Usher of the Green Rod. The decorations consist of the Badge or Jewel, the Star ,Collar, Mantle, and Ribbon. The Badge is in the form of a

* A new precedent was created in 1915 by the removal, at the command of H.M. as Sovereign of the Order, of the banners of "enemy" knights, viz.:—those of the Emperor of Austria, German Emperor, King of Wurtemberg, Crown Prince of Germany, Grand Duke of Hesse, Duke of Saxe-Coburg Gotha, Prince Henry of Prussia, and the Duke of Cumberland.

† Among peculiar Court usages it is noted that no Collar of any Order may be worn after sunset unless specially directed; also, that any member of the Household must display a portion of his linen collar above the golden one There are some 35 Collar Days in the year.

somewhat elongated eight-pointed star, and is charged with a gold enamelled figure of St. Andrew holding before him his own cross: it is worn either pendent to the Collar or attached to the dark green Ribbon of the Order, which passes over the left shoulder and across the breast. The Star, properly so called, is itself formed in part of a St. Andrew's Cross of silver embroidery, between the four limbs of which are four starry rays, the centre being occupied by a thistle (blue flower with green foliage), which is surrounded by a circle with the motto, "Nemo me impune lacessit" (No one provokes me with impunity): this is worn on the left side of the coat or cloak. The Collar is composed of a series of golden thistles alternating with sprigs of rue. The Mantle (a recent addition) is of green velvet lined with taffeta. After death the insignia must be returned as under the preceding Order. The Chapel of the Order is in St. Giles's Cathedral, Edinburgh.

THE MOST ILLUSTRIOUS ORDER OF ST. PATRICK (K.P.).—This, the leading Order of Ireland as the Thistle is of Scotland, was instituted by George the Third in 1783. The number of Knight Companions was originally fifteen, but was increased in 1833 to twenty-two, in addition to the Sovereign, the Lord Lieutenant (as Grand Master), and some members of the Royal Family. All Lords Lieutenant on retirement retain the insignia, but not the ex-officio knighthood. There was formerly a religious ceremony at investiture, but this was abolished on the disestablishment of the Irish Church, and simultaneously the office of Prelate has lapsed, whilst the Chancellor, instead of being an Archbishop, is now the Chief Secretary to the Lord Lieut. of Ireland for the time being, and the Ulster King of Arms acts as Registrar. The other officers are the Ulster King of Arms, the Secretary, the Usher of the Black Rod (Ireland), and the Genealogist. The decorations consist of the Badge, Star, Collar, Mantle, and Ribbon. The Badge and Star have each of them in the centre a St. Patrick's Cross in red surmounted by a green leaf of shamrock, each lobe of which is charged with an Imperial Crown; around this is a circle with a motto in gold letters, "Quis separabit?" (Who shall separate us?); surrounding this again there is in the Badge, which is of gold, a wreath of shamrocks confining the whole within an oval outline, whilst in the Star there are eight spreading rays of silver: these two ornaments are worn as under the previous Orders. The Collar is wholly of gold and made up of a series of five roses, two harps, and an Imperial Crown, alternating with eight golden knots, the roses being enamelled alternately white petals within red and red within white; whilst the crown, which occupies the front centre, has attached to it a third and much larger harp forming the connecting link between the Collar and Badge, the roses three behind and two in front, the crown taking in this last position the place of the centre one. The Mantle is of sky-blue tabinet lined with white silk. The Ribbon is sky-blue, and is worn over the right shoulder. Return of insignia as in preceding Orders.

THE MOST HONOURABLE ORDER OF THE BATH.—The name of this, by far the largest of our Orders of Knighthood, and the highest in honour of those to which commoners can hope to attain, was evidently taken from an initiatory ceremony of bathing. If it is too much to assert that the Order itself was founded in 1399, it appears historically true that Henry the Fourth did, on his coronation in that year, confer a distinguished knightly honour upon forty-six gentlemen who underwent a series of forms upon the occasion, of which ablution was a principal item; indeed, we are told that in 1127 Henry the First made Geoffrey of Anjou and five others "Knights of the Bath" at the marriage of his daughter the Princess Matilda, whilst Burke tells us that the 2nd Lord Willoughby de Eresby "received knighthood by bathing" from Edward the Second. But it was not till 1725 that the Order was placed upon a solid foundation; since then it was enlarged in 1815, and repeatedly from 1847 to present date. We are told by Froissart of Henry the Fourth's Knights being presented by the King with "long green coats, the sleeves whereof were cut straight and furred with miniver, and with great hoods or chaperons furred in the same manner, and after the fashion used by prelates; and every one of these Knights on his left shoulder had a double cordon, or string of white silk, to which white tassels were pendent." On the evening previous to their investiture they were all assembled together, and each of them had his separate chamber and bath, the rites of the latter having to be duly performed that night. This ceremony, however, appears to have been observed at the creation of Knights much earlier still; but we find the Order in existence later on, and habitually bestowed on state occasions upon such of the flower of the nobility as had received no other knighthood. Thus we can supplement Froissart's account by a more definite one as described on the investiture of a number of Knights in 1610, when Prince Henry, son of James the First, was created Prince of Wales. Those to be invested were bidden to repair to Durham House in the Strand, and were conducted in the evening to the bathing-chamber, "where for each of them was provided a several bathing-tub, which was lined both within and without with white linen and covered with red say. Early the next morning they were awakened with music, and at their uprising invested in their hermit's habit." So attired and without shoes they were brought into the chapel, where a solemn oath was administered to them to "honour God and maintain true religion, love their Sovereign, serve their country, help maidens, widows, and orphans, and to the utmost of their power cause equity and justice to be observed." After this they were invested in crimson robes, with white gloves, white boots, white crosses, and white hats with white feathers, and they then mounted on horseback, each Knight between two esquires, with footmen attending, and a page in front carrying the sword and spurs. In this array they rode to the Court gate, and there individually (the highest in rank first) entered the hall and knelt before the King, to whom the sword of each was handed, when he passed the belt over the neck of the Knight and placed the sword under the left arm; two principal nobles then put on the spurs. All being concluded, they returned to Durham House, where a dinner was set before them which they were not to touch, but to leave to their esquires and pages. In the afternoon they returned fasting to Court and passed a long service in the King's chapel. On making their exit they were met by the King's cook, "who stood there with his white apron and sleeves, and a chopping-knife in his hand, and challenged their spurs, which were redeemed with a noble in money, threatening them nevertheless that if they should not be true and loyal to the King, it must be his office to hew them from their heels." The above is culled from a paper preserved by Mr. Anstis. The last of this Order of Knights of the Bath are stated by Mr. Walford to have been the sixty-eight created by Charles the Second at his coronation. We pass to 1725, when George the First renewed the Order, fixing it at thirty-seven Knights and the Sovereign. It was in 1815, however, that it was enlarged and modelled into an arrangement with three Classes, though only the highest of these comprised as yet a Civil Division, and this limited to one-sixth of the total of the Class (hitherto the letters K.B. forming the unvarying designation of any Knight of the Bath). In 1847 it was again enlarged, the Civil Division being extended to the other two Classes and increased in numbers in the first. Eventually the numbers were fixed as stated below, but these are exclusive of the Royal Family and of such distinguished foreigners as may be admitted Honorary Members of either Division or Class: even then much laxity obtains by the temporary use of the word "Additional" (and so with the Orders generally). It must also be particularly noted that great numbers of military men are found under the Civil Division, on account of their special services having been of a scientific or other non-military character, or of their belonging to the Auxiliary Forces, whereas actual military service (see next paragraph) is required for the other Division; a few have obtained both Divisions.

The officers are the Dean (the Dean of Westminster), the Bath King of Arms, the Registrar and Secretary, and the Gentleman Usher of the Scarlet Rod. In 1913 the Chapel of King Henry VII. in Westminster Abbey was formally occupied by the Order. The Duke of Connaught was in 1901 appointed Great Master, an honour previously held by King Edward as Prince of Wales. As a rule, though not without frequent exceptions, recipients of this Order must begin with the lowest Class, or Companions, and proceed to Knights Commanders before they can become Grand Crosses. The Military Division of even the lowest rank is only conferred upon such distinction in action against the enemy as shall procure a special mention in despatches, or else upon meritorious service in the Medical, Engineer, Pay, or Indian departments: it is never granted to any officer of lower grade than that of Major in the Army or Commander in the Navy—indeed very rarely even so low, the Distinguished Service Order being substituted.

The decorations of the Order consist of the Badge, Star, Collar, and Ribbon. The Badge for the Military Division is a (genuine) Maltese Cross of gold with eight silver enamelled balls upon the points, and within each of the four principal angles a lion; in the central circle are a rose, thistle, and shamrock issuing from a sceptre, with three Albert Crowns interspersed (crowns with four arches); in the border is the motto, "Tria juncta in uno" (Three joined in one), with a laurel-wreath completely surrounding it, whilst in a scroll beneath are the words "Ich dien" (I serve): by the Grand Crosses this is worn pendent from the Collar, by the Knights Commanders from the Ribbon, and by Companions from the button-hole. The Badge of the Civil Division is also of gold, and in the centre is similar to the above but larger (decreasing however with the three Classes), and it is oval and without the surrounding crosses and lions. The Star is of silver, and for the Grand Crosses of the Military Division resembles the Badge as to the cross, laurel-wreath, and mottoes, but has simply three Imperial Crowns in the central space, being externally surrounded with a glory of silver flames; for the Civil Grand Crosses there is the same centre, but an eight-rayed star in lieu of flames, cross, and wreath; for the Knights Commanders there is a silver cross-pattée round the same centre, the Military Division alone taking the laurel-wreath and the scroll; Companions have no Star, but only the Badge, like that of each Division of other Classes. The Collar of the Grand Crosses, both Civil and Military, is of gold and weighs thirty ounces troy; it is composed of nine Albert Crowns alternating with eight combinations of roses, thistles, and shamrocks, the whole series being linked together by seventeen golden knots enamelled white. The Ribbon is red, and worn over the right shoulder by Grand Crosses, but round the neck by Knights Commanders, who utilise it in place of the Collar for suspension of the Badge; Companions have neither Collar nor Star, and suspend the Badge from the button-hole. Every G.C.B. is entitled to "supporters" in his coat of arms. On high state occasions the Knights wear a crimson surcoat and red mantle, vest and breeches of white satin, white stockings and shoes, golden spurs, and a high-crowned hat with a plume of white feathers. On the death of a G.C.B. the insignia must be returned to St. James's Palace, with the exception of the Badge and Star, which may be retained by relatives, as are all the decorations of the K.C.B. and C.B. The Chapel of the Order is Henry the Seventh's Chapel, Westminster Abbey. The designations with the nominal limiting numbers are as under, these numbers being at the present date all greatly exceeded, a special order in 1901, when the Military Division was increased enormously, having pronounced those in excess to be "additional," in virtue of a provision that the second and third Classes might be enlarged on the occurrence of a war. The nominal total was raised in 1906 to 1,344, and since that date the number has been steadily increased.

THE MOST EXALTED ORDER OF THE STAR OF INDIA.—The Order next in precedence after the Bath is of a very modern date, having been constituted by Queen Victoria in 1861, and successively enlarged in 1866, 1875, 1876, 1897, 1903, and 1911; special additions (called "Additional Members") were made on Jan. 1, 1909, to the 2nd and 3rd Classes in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary (Nov. 1, 1908) of the transfer of the Government of India from the East India Company to the Crown. Its purpose is to reward services in and for India, and to recognise the loyalty of friendly native rulers and chiefs. It consists of the Sovereign, the Viceroy of India as Grand Master, some 290 Knights and Companions disposed in three Classes as below, and such extra and Honorary Members as the Sovereign may from time to time appoint: originally it had no division into Classes, and the designation K.S.I. then represented the only title which it conferred. The officers are the Registrar and the Secretary (who is the Foreign Secretary to the Indian Government for the time being), and the decorations the Badge, Star, Collar, Ribbon, and Mantle. The Badge has hitherto been an onyx cameo of Queen Victoria's bust set in an oval and surrounded with the motto "Heaven's Light our Guide;" it is surmounted by a five-rayed star wholly in diamonds, which forms the connecting-link with the Collar. The Star proper (first two Classes) has in its centre a smaller star like the preceding, with the same encircling motto, also in diamonds, and around the whole a glory of golden flames. The Collar is of gold, and adorned, enamelled in their proper colours, with an Heraldic Crown, five red-and-white roses, six lotuses, and ten pairs of palm branches. The Ribbon is sky-blue with a narrow white stripe towards each edge, and is worn by Grand Commanders over the right shoulder, crossing to the left, and by Knights Commanders round the neck; Companions attach the Badge by it to the left breast. The Mantle is of light blue satin lined with white and adorned with blue and silver tassels and a representation of the Star. On the death of a member of either Class the insignia must be returned to St. James's Palace. Designations and limits:

G.C.S.I. &c.

The Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George.—Though clearly older than the preceding and now of much wider application, this Order has been placed after it in dignity, because, having been originally established (in 1818) to commemorate the placing of the Ionian Islands under the protectorate of Great Britain, it was limited at first to natives of these islands and of Malta, and to "such other subjects of His Majesty as may hold high and confidential situations in the Mediterranean:" indeed, it was not made applicable to the Colonies generally until some years after the foundation of the "Star of India." In 1832 its three Classes were fixed at the numbers of fifteen, twenty, and twenty-five respectively: but it was enlarged successively in 1868, 1877, 1879, 1887 and 1902, till it has come to be assignable to any person who has rendered valuable services in either Colonial or Foreign Affairs. It now comprises the Sovereign, the Grand Master or Principal Knight Grand Cross, a number of Royal Princes, with foreign persons of distinction (Honorary Members), and the Knights and Companions as below. Its officers are the Prelate, Chancellor, King of Arms, Gentleman Usher of the Blue Rod, Secretary, and Registrar, the two latter posts being held ex officio by the Permanent Under Secretary of State and the Assistant Under Secretary of State for the Colonies: the Colonial Office is its Chancery, and it has a Chapel in St. Paul's Cathedral.

G.C.M.G.

The decorations are the Badge, Star, Collar, Ribbon, Mantle, and Chapeau. The Badge is white enamelled and resembling a Maltese Cross but with seven arms instead of four: on one side it represents the Archangel Michael encountering Satan, and on the other St. George and the Dragon; around each of these designs is the motto "Auspicium melioris ævi" (The token of a better age); above the whole Badge is a crown attaching it to the Collar. The Star of a Knight Grand Cross consists of seven rays of silver spreading like the Badge, and with narrow ones of gold between, whilst in the centre is the figure of St. George with the motto, and the extremities of the four arms of a cross protruding from beneath, to halfway across the rays (unfortunately not clear in our illustration). That of Knights Commanders is smaller and of only four rays. The Collar is made up of crowned lions (the two in the front having wings), Maltese Crosses, and ciphers of the letters SM and SG, with a crown in the front centre slightly within the circle: all gold except the crosses, which are of white enamel. The Ribbon is of Saxon blue with a scarlet stripe, and is worn by the three Classes with the same variations as under the Bath. The Mantle and Chapeau are of blue satin lined with scarlet silk, the latter surmounted with white and black ostrich feathers. Knights Grand Cross are entitled to bear "supporters." Under this Order, on the death of a member the insignia may be retained by relatives. The following are the designations (which accord with those of the Bath and the Royal Victorian Order in the use of the term "Grand Cross," whilst the two Indian Orders alone substitute "Grand Commanders"):

The Foreign Office may designate 30 of the 1st Class, 90 of the 2nd, and 180 of the 3rd.

The Most Eminent Order of the Indian Empire.—The Order so entitled was instituted by Queen Victoria on January 1, 1878, as commemorating her proclamation in the previous year as Empress of India. It was enlarged in 1886, and again at the Jubilees of 1887 and 1897, and specially like the higher Indian Order, in 1909, and again at the Coronation in 1911. It now consists of the Sovereign, the Governor-General (as Grand Master), some members of the Royal Family and the usual three classes, besides extras, whilst there exists the special proviso that all Councillors of the Indian Empire are life Companions ex officio. Till 1887 it consisted of Companions only, but the two higher Classes were then added. Its officers are the Secretary (who is the Foreign Secretary of the Indian Government for the time being) and the Registrar. The decorations are the Badge Star, Collar, Ribbon, and Mantle. The Badge, which is wholly of gold, has consisted of an open rose with Queen Victoria's effigy in the centre surrounded by the motto "Imperatricis auspiciis" ("Under the auspices of the Empress"—at first it was "Victoria Imperatrix"): above the rose is an Heraldic Crown connecting the Badge with a similar but larger crown in the Collar. The Star, for the First Class, has its centre like that of the Badge, but with the crown immediately surmounting and is surrounded with alternate gold and silver rays; for the Second Class these rays are all silver. The Collar, worn by the First Class only, is of gold, and is made up of the crown in front with a pair of chains linking together a series of elephants, peacocks, and lotus-flowers. The Ribbon is of imperial blue, and is worn with the same variations as under the Bath, &c., Companions attaching the Badge by it to the left breast. The Mantle is of purple satin lined with white silk and fastened with purple silk and gold tassels: on its left a representation of the Star. On the death of a G.C.I.E. or K.C.I.E. the insignia must be returned to St. James's Palace; but those of a C.I.E. may be retained by relatives. Designations, with limits (ex-Viceroys being additional G.C.I.E.'s):

The C.I.E. appointments each year are limited to 20 (40 in 1903) + vacancies through promotion (not death).

The Royal Victorian Order.—This Order, which dates only from 1896, was designed as a recognition of personal services to Queen Victoria, but since her decease it has been enormously increased in numbers. It comprises no fewer than five Classes, of which the 1st is to take precedence after G.C.I.E., the 2nd after K.C.I.E., the 3rd after C.I.E., the 4th after D.S.O., and the 5th after I.S.O. A C.V.O. styled "Commander" was assigned precedence to a C.B. (at first he was superior even to a Knight Bachelor), but this was altered in 1917 and 1918. Higher than all these classes there is the Victorian Chain, which is regularly restricted to the Royal Family and its connections abroad, but is also held by the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Marquesses of Lansdowne and Crewe, Earl Curzon of Kedleston, and Lord Hardinge of Penshurst. The numerous foreign members are Honorary only. It had its appointed Anniversary on June 20, the day of her late Majesty's accession. Its officers are the Chancellor and the Secretary, who are respectively the Lord Chamberlain of the Household and the Keeper of the Privy Purse for the time being. A Registrar was added by Royal Warrant 1916. The decorations are the Badge, Star, Collar, Ribbon, and Mantle. The Badge, for the 1st Class, is a white enamelled Maltese Cross, with a crimson oval in the centre containing the royal and imperial cipher and the name "Victoria," all in gold letters, the name being surrounded by a blue circle surmounted by a crown: for the 2nd and 3rd Classes it is similar but smaller, and for the 4th smaller still: for the 5th it is the size of the 4th, but with the cross in frosted silver instead of white enamel. The Star for the 1st Class is silver chipped, with eight points, and having a smaller reproduction of the Badge in its centre; for the 2nd Class it is in the form of a Maltese Cross in silver but with smaller rays, and having the reproduced Badge in frosted silver instead of enamel: it is not worn by the three lower Classes. The Collar, worn by the 1st Class only, is of gold and consists of octagonal pieces each containing a gold roll on a blue enamelled ground, alternating with oblong frames for the inscription "Victoria . . . Britt. Reg. . . . Def. Fid. . . . Ind. Imp." in white enamel. The Ribbon is of dark blue with a narrow edging of three stripes—red, white, and red again; for the 1st Class it is 3¾ ins. broad and worn from over the right shoulder to below the left arm, having the Badge suspended to it; for the 2nd and 3rd Classes it is 1¾ ins. broad and worn round the neck; for the 4th and 5th it is 1¼ ins. broad and attached to the left breast. The Mantle is of dark blue satin, edged with red and lined with white silk. The insignia of a holder of this Order, except the collar, may be retained by relatives after his death: but those of a lower Class must be returned to the Chancery of the Order upon his promotion to a higher. The numbers of all the Classes are unlimited, and the following are the designations:

The Royal Victorian Medal is circular, of silver-gilt, silver or bronze; it has on the obverse the effigy of the Sovereign, on the reverse his cipher upon an ornamental shield within a wreath of laurel; it is suspended from a ribbon of the same colour as that of the Order.

The Most Excellent Order of the British Empire.—This Order, instituted towards the close of the third year of the Great War (1917), was primarily designed as a recognition of the manifold services rendered by civilians, voluntary and otherwise, in connection with the war. The Order ranks next to, and immediately after, the Royal Victorian Order, but the 4th Class after the Distinguished Service Order, and the 5th follows the 5th Class of the Royal Victorian Order, and is open to men and women alike. The Ribbon is of purple for the Civil Division with a distinguishing narrow vertical red stripe in the centre for the Military Division. The Badge of the Order, worn by the members of the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd Classes, takes the shape of a silver-gilt cross, enamelled pearl grey, in the centre of which in a circle enamelled crimson, is a representation of Britannia seated. The circle contains the motto of the Order, "For God and the Empire." The Star, worn by members of the first two Classes, is an eight-pointed silver star, the centre of which bears the same device as the Badge. The treatment of the Badge for the 4th Class is similar to that for the 1st, 2nd and 3rd Classes, except that it is smaller and is not enamelled. In the case of the 5th Class, the Badge is of silver instead of silver gilt. The first two Classes, in the case of men, carry the honour of Knighthood, and in the case of women, the privilege of prefixing the title "Dame" to their names. The Order is divided into five Classes, and (Dec. 1918) with Military and Civil Divisions to each as follows:—

The King has appointed the Prince of Wales to be Grand Master of the Order, and the following officials have now been announced:—Prelate, the Bishop of London; King-of-Arms, Gen. Rt. Hon. Sir Arthur H. F. Paget, G.C.B.; Registrar, Brig.-Gen. Sir Douglas Dawson, G.C.V.O.; Secretary, Sir Charles Edward Troup, K.C.B.; Purple Rod, Sir Frederick George Kenyon, K.C.B. The Chancery of the Order is at the Central Chancery of the Orders of Knighthood, St. James's Palace.

The Medal of the Order of the British Empire is circular, of silver, having on the obverse a representation of Britannia within the circle and motto of the Order, and on the reverse the royal and imperial cipher. The medal is awarded to those persons, both men and women, not being members of the Order, for services of special merit.

Knights Bachelor.—In strict terms these do not constitute an "Order," though the phrase "the Order of Knighthood" is used as including all Knights whatsoever. We have mentioned under "General Remarks" that the more ancient class of Knights were known simply as "Knights," or Equites Aurati; it must be added that "Bachelors" (Milites Bacchilarii) were at first not Knights at all, but seem to have stood much in the position of our modern "Companions." But by degrees, apparently through the greater lustre of the Knights of the Bath, these other two ranks came to be merged in their present compound title. It is usually held that the word "Bachelor" in this usage is a corruption of "bas chevalier," as implying a lower rank of Knights than those weo received the honour under the royal banner; but perhaps, in accordance with the statement above, it should rather be interpreted as "lower than the Knight proper." Mention has been made of the systematic sale of this and other honours by James the First, who during the second year of his reign created 300 Knights. In the case of this degree he even outdid his achievements in the sale of Baronetcies, till we are told that a satirical placard was affixed to the door of St. Paul's Cathedral offering to teach a new art of memory to enable people to bear in mind the names of the newly-created title-bearers: indeed, the King himself became so humiliated by his own doings that upon one occasion when the new Knight showed embarrassment at his own lack of prestige, James exclaimed, "Hold up your head, man, and spare your blushes; I have more cause to be ashamed than you have." A rather back-handed piece of consolation, surely!

A few centuries earlier the Knight, like the Baron, was a part of the feudal system, and the possession of a Knight's fee (a stated piece of land worth about £20 in the 13th century) gave not only a claim to but an enforcement of the title. Still, though it might be a burden it was an honour usually sought with avidity. But when under the Stuarts the honour was degraded as above, whilst the ancient requirement to provide troops for the King was maintained, the Knights-designate were often glad to second their tenants in the effort to obtain excuse from the promotion, submitting in its stead, the one to pay large sums of indemnity and the others to submit to special levies of taxation. In the treaty at Newport between Charles the First and his Parliament it was agreed that the King should receive in place of the knightly service a tax of £100,000 a year upon the relieved lands; and by the 12th of Charles the Second an excise on beer and other drinks was substituted and the service wholly abolished—the populace gladly accepting this burden in place of some sixty days per year for which they had hitherto been obliged to go with the troops. In 1904 the fees on the letters patent (£50) and on the warrant for the same (£10) were wholly abolished.*

The designation of a Knight Bachelor is the simple prefix Sir; it is permissible to add "Knight" or "Kt.," but this is not usual except in formal style, and in any case K.B. should not be used, those letters, as mentioned above, being the old style for "Knight of the Bath." There is no decoration attached, and no limit to the numbers, also no officers, it not forming an Order. In 1903 a voluntary association was formed under the title of the Society of Knights Bachelor, which was changed by Royal permission in 1912 to that of the "Imperial Society of Knights Bachelor"; its primary object is to obtain the uniform registration of every created Knight. Sir Henry Pellatt, Kt., C.V.O., is the Principal, the Rt. Hon. Sir William Bull, M.P., the Vice-Principal, Sir Park Goff, Kt., M.P., the Hon. Registrar, and Hubert Whelbourn, Esq., Clerk, and 2, Mitre Court, Temple, E.C.4, is now the Registry and Library of the Society. The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland can create Knights Bachelor.

Order of Merit.—(O.M.) King Edward in June 1902, instituted this Order, which at present occupies a very anomalous position, conferring no precedence, and yet authorising the holders to place its designating initials next after those denoting membership of the Order of the Bath (from G.C.B. to C.B.). It is designed as a special distinction for men eminent in any department whatever—war, science, literature, or art—but carries with it no special title. The Order is limited in numbers to 24, with the addition of foreign Honorary Members, and its only Officer is the Secretary and Registrar, who is the Comptroller of the Lord Chamberlain's Department for the time being. The Badge is a species of cross of red and blue enamel, and its inner portion bears the words 'For Merit' in gold letters within a laurel wreath, the reverse containing the royal and imperial cipher: in the cases of naval and military men two silver swords with gilt hilts are added, as shown in the cut. The whole is attached to an enamelled Heraldic Crown suspended by a broad ribbon of Garter-blue and crimson, and worn from the neck. The Secretary's badge has the substitution of two silver pens in the place of the swords. After death of a member the insignia may be retained by relatives. The Order has an anniversary day fixed for June 26 (that intended for the Coronation of King Edward).

O.M. Mil.

O.M. Civ.

Order of the Companions of Honour.—(C.H.) This is the second Order created especially in connection with the war to which women are eligible equally with men. The Order, as in the case of the Order of Merit, carries with it no title or precedence, but the initials are placed relatively after

* We may note the degradation of Roger Casement, by Letters Patent 1916, from his honours as a Kt. Bachelor and C.M.G., and Sir Joseph Jonas in 1918. This is an exceedingly rare form of punishment, the latest analogous case being, it is stated, that of Sir Francis Michell or Mitchell, in 1621.

G.B.E., i.e., after all initials indicative of Knights Grand Cross. The Order is conferred upon a limited number of persons, for whom this special distinction seems to be the most appropriate form of recognition.

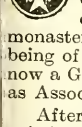
THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE ORDER.—(D.S.O.) In this also and some following Orders we may be said to have Knighthood without Knights, the members being Companions only. The present Order ranks immediately before the 4th Class of the Royal Victorian. The Order under notice was instituted by Queen Victoria in 1886, its purpose being the recognition of special services of commissioned officers in the Army and Navy, such services, by a rule dated August, 1918, to be in action or in equivalent conditions of combat, such as air raids, &c. The Sovereign is at its head and its numbers are unlimited. Its Badge is a gold cross enamelled white, one side bearing an Heraldic Crown surrounded by a wreath of laurels (enamelled green upon a red enamelled ground); on the reverse side there is now the cipher GR V within a similar wreath: this is worn attached to the left breast by a red ribbon edged blue. A Bar is awarded for any additional act of service. The Assist. Sec. at the War Office acts as Registrar and Secretary of the Order.

IMPERIAL SERVICE ORDER.—(I.S.O.) King Edward, at his Coronation in August, 1902, instituted this Order, which was enlarged by Royal Warrant in 1912. It is restricted to members of the administrative or clerical (clerk) branches of the Civil Service, and consists of the Sovereign, the Prince of Wales, and Companions (not exclusively male) to a number not exceeding 700, of whom 250 may belong to the Home Services, 200 to the Indian (100 European and 100 Native) and 250 to the services of Dominions, Colonies and Protectorates. Those of the first class must, as a rule, have rendered 25 years of meritorious service (Europeans in India 20, while 16 years of service in specially unhealthy climates may be held to suffice in the last class); but these rules are to be somewhat elastic, and even subject to alteration. Its officer, appointed by the Sovereign, is styled Secretary and Registrar. The Badge is a medallion to be worn on the left breast, bearing on one side the royal cipher, and on the other the words, "For Faithful Service," the lettering being in dark blue enamel upon a shield of gold surrounded by a seven-pointed star of silver and surmounted by a crown: the ribbon 1½ ins. broad with a stripe of blue between two of crimson: for women a silver laurel wreath takes the place of the star in the medallion and the ribbon is fashioned into a bow and worn on left shoulder. (The minor honour of the IMPERIAL SERVICE MEDAL, like the above, but of silver, is designed for award on retirement after similar length of meritorious service to Civil Servants ineligible for the Order.)

The following are honours only and confer no rank:

THE ROYAL ORDER OF VICTORIA AND ALBERT (for Ladies).—(V.A.) Instituted in 1862, and enlarged in 1864, 1865, and 1880, but no fresh conferments are now made. It comprises Their Majesties Queen Alexandra and Mary and four Classes, of which the First consists of Princesses of the Royal Family with some foreign Queens, the Second of Royal ladies less near to our Royal Family, and the Third and Fourth of ladies of the British nobility. Badge, in the first three Classes a medallion of Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort, differing in the width and jewelling of the border as the Classes descend, whilst the fourth substitutes a jewelled cipher. All four are surmounted by some form of a crown, which is attached to a bow of white moire ribbon.

THE IMPERIAL ORDER OF THE CROWN OF INDIA (for Ladies).—(C.I.) Instituted Jan. 1, 1878, and for a like purpose with the simultaneously created Order of the Indian Empire. It consists of the Queen and Queen Mother with some Royal Princesses, and the female relatives of Indian Princes or of Persons who have held conspicuous offices in connection with India. Badge, the royal cipher in jewels within an oval, surmounted by an Heraldic Crown and attached to a bow of light blue watered ribbon, edged white.



THE ORDER OF ST. JOHN OF JERUSALEM.—The Order had its origin in Jerusalem and Acre, as an international lay confraternity for the relief of crusaders, and was later sovereign in Rhodes and in Malta, where its Knights kept galleys and galleons, to attack the Barbary Corsairs and to prevent the spread of Turkish rule in the Mediterranean, from 1530 till 1798. Like other ancient Orders of Chivalry, the Order of St. John had also Priories and Commanderies in the different countries of Europe, those in England and Scotland being dissolved at the same time as the monasteries. The Order was expelled from Malta by Napoleon in 1798, when the majority of its Knights being of French origin, returned to France, while the Italian Knights settled in Rome, where there is now a Grand Master, with various Commanderies in Italy and Priories in Silesia and Bohemia, as well as Associations of Knights elsewhere.

After the loss of Malta, the Ordinary Council of the Order, representing the majority of the then existing Knights, by Deed executed at Paris in 1827, assisted in the reconstitution of what is now the Grand Priory of the Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem in England, whose Chancery is at the Gatehouse in Clerkenwell, that still remains of the ancient Priory of St. John. A Royal Charter was granted to this reconstituted British Order in 1888 by Queen Victoria, with a constitution somewhat like that of the existing Bailiwick of Brandenburg (Johanniter-Orden) in Germany; and the first Grand Priors thereafter were Kings Edward VII. and George V., while Princes of Wales. The work of the British Order is the control of the St. John's Ambulance Association and Brigade, and of the British Ophthalmic Hospital at Jerusalem. Its Badge is a Maltese cross of white enamel, with a lion and a unicorn in alternate angles, of gold or silver according to grade, with a black watered ribbon; medals are conferred for acts of gallantry on land involving risk of life. King George V. is the Sovereign Head and Patron of the British Order, H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught is its Grand Prior, and Colonel Sir Herbert Perrott, Bart, C.B., its Secretary-General, with a Chapter of some 350 Knights of two degrees, the senior being "Knights of Justice," the junior "Knights of Grace." There are also "Ladies of Justice," "Ladies of Grace," and Esquires. In 1918 a Priory for Wales and Monmouth was established with the Prince of Wales as Titular Prior and the Earl of Plymouth as Sub-Prior. A notification of these distinctions having been conferred appears in the London Gazette, but they do not confer any rank, style, title, or precedence.

MILITARY KNIGHTS OF WINDSOR.—A small number of military officers, who have performed meritorious services but are not in a position suitably to maintain themselves, are granted a pension ranging from £50 to £130 a year, together with apartments at Windsor Castle, from which they obtain the above designation, which, however, confers no more of a title than does a suite at Hampton Court upon a lady. Up till 1892 there was included the Order of Naval Knights of Windsor (begun 1797 under the will of S. Travers, Esq.), but these are now separated as the TRAVERS PENSION, which amounts to £75 a year. The Order of Knights of Windsor has existed from 1349, having at first been composed of 26 veterans of Edward the Third. They thus constituted "The Poor Knights of the Order of the Garter" as it then was, and they continue to this day to be connected with it by various links. They are appointed by the Sovereign in his capacity as head of that Order. Till 1906 they formed part of an ecclesiastical college under its Registrar, the Dean of Windsor, but the control is now transferred to the Governor and Deputy-Governor of the Castle, whilst the Governor of the Order is now a superior officer, not one of the Knights. Their pay comes from the revenues of that college, and they wear its badge, whilst every K.G. has upon appointment to contribute a sum of money for apportionment among them. Their uniform is that of the earlier part of last century, and was assigned them by William the Fourth, who prefixed the word "Military" to their title. Under Charles the First the numbers were fixed at thirteen for the Royal Foundation and five for the Lower. Queen Elizabeth drew up the present code, under which members must reside at their quarters for nine months of the year, and must attend St. George's Chapel on Saints' Days, besides acting occasionally as guards of honour. Queen Victoria in 1870 confirmed the previous statutes respecting them.

The VICTORIA CROSS (V.C.) was instituted in 1856, on the close of the Crimean War, as a recognition of conspicuous acts of bravery in presence of the enemy displayed by either soldiers or sailors. It was designed primarily for the rank and file and non-commissioned officers, but it is held also by all grades up to Field-Marshals and Admirals of the Fleet, and was extended to civilians who had borne arms against the Indian mutineers. In 1911 the Decoration was extended to Native officers and men of the Indian Army, and in 1920 it was extended to the Indian Marine, the Naval, Marine or Military Forces of Dominions, Colonies, Dependencies and Protectorates, the Mercantile Marine whilst serving under Naval or Military Authority or who in the course of their duties may become subject to enemy action, the Territorial Forces, the Air Force, the Indian Imperial Service Troops, the Nursing and Hospital Services (both sexes), and to Civilians of either sex serving under the orders of any of the above Forces. Conjoined with the decoration is the conferment, upon non-commissioned officers and men, and to ex-officers, of a pension of £10 per annum and an additional £5 for each Bar, as immediately to be explained; and what is still more, this £10 may be increased to £75 (at the option of the Secretary for War or First Lord of the Admiralty) in any cases where the recipients are unable to maintain themselves. Pensions in rupees are appointed for the Native ranks of the Indian Army, which, on the death of a recipient, are continued to his widow until her death or re-marriage. The Badge consists in a cross-pattée of bronze, having in the centre an Imperial Crown, with a lion above it, and a scroll below bearing the words "For Valour." Any additional act of bravery is noted by a Bar being affixed to the ribbon from which the cross hangs, it being suspended to the left breast, while the ribbon is red for all Services (until 1918 it was blue for the Navy). The cross is usually styled "Maltese," but this cannot be strictly correct, for its four arms are not cleft at the ends as they are in the decorations of the Bath, St. Michael and St. George, and the Royal Victorian; crosses-pattée on the contrary, though very varied in form, are never cloven at the ends. Though instituted in 1856, some of the original recipients are registered as from 1854, the date being always that of the act by which the honour was earned.

The DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS (D.S.C.), instituted by King George in 1914 in substitution for the Conspicuous Service Cross instituted by King Edward in 1901, is also a decoration in reward of "distinguished service before the enemy," and is designed for bestowal on all naval officers below the rank of Lieutenant-Commander. It consists of a silver cross with the reverse side plain, but on the obverse the cipher GRI surmounted by an Imperial Crown.

The MILITARY CROSS (M.C.), instituted 1915, consists of a Cross of Silver having on each arm the Imperial Crown, and bearing in the centre the royal and imperial cipher. It is awarded to Captains (including acting or temp. Major), Lieutenants and Warrant Officers in the Army and Indian and Colonial Forces, for services in action. A Bar is awarded for any additional act of bravery.

The MILITARY MEDAL (M.M.), instituted 1916, is awarded to non-commissioned officers and men, and may, in exceptional circumstances, be awarded also to women, including foreign persons.

The DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS (D.F.C.), instituted in 1918, designed for bestowal on officers in the Royal Air Force for "acts of gallantry when flying in active operations against the enemy."

The AIR FORCE CROSS (A.F.C.), instituted as preceding, but for "acts of courage or devotion to duty when flying, although not in active operations against the enemy."

The DISTINGUISHED CONDUCT MEDAL (D.C.M.), which was very extensively awarded after the South African War, is a decoration designed for warrant and non-commissioned officers and men. Just above it in the Navy is the CONSPICUOUS GALLANTRY MEDAL.

The DISTINGUISHED SERVICE MEDAL (D.S.M.), established 1914, is designed for chief petty officers, petty officers, men, and boys of all branches of the R.N.; for non-commissioned officers and men of the R.M.A., and for all other persons holding corresponding positions in His Majesty's Service afloat for distinguished conduct in action.

The Distinguished Flying Medal (D.F.M.), for warrant officers, non-commissioned officers, and men, awarded for equivalent services as for D.F.C.

The Meritorious Service Medal, for warrant officers, non-commissioned officers, and men, awarded for equivalent services as for A.F.C.

The Albert Medal dates from 1866, with extensions in 1867 and 1877, and is a recognition of acts of gallantry performed by any person whatever. Its recipients are ranged in two Divisions, the one receiving a Badge inscribed "For Gallantry in Saving Life at Sea," the other with the closing words varied to "on Land." Each Division has now two classes, the Badge of the one, distinguished as the "Albert Medal in Gold," having a golden centre with a bronze garter around it, that of the other being wholly in bronze; both are oval, and contain an Albert Crown and the cipher VA, to which in the Sea Division an anchor is added. The suspending ribbon in this Division is of dark blue, with four white stripes in the First Class and two in the Second; in the Land Division it is crimson with similar white stripes. An added Bar records an additional act of gallantry.—Another "Albert Medal," not to be confused with this, is given by the Society of Arts.

The Edward Medal, also established in 1907, is a recognition of heroic acts performed by miners and quarrymen, or of others who have endangered their lives in rescuing those so employed. It has King Edward's effigy on one side, and on the other a design representing the rescue of a miner, with the inscription "For Courage." For the First Class it is of silver, styled the "Edward Medal in Silver," for the Second of bronze; the ribbon of dark blue with a yellow stripe on each side. It may be awarded to a woman. Above it in precedence is the Board of Trade Medal for saving life at sea.

The Volunteer Officers' Decoration (V.D.) was an honour for rewarding the meritorious services of officers of the force in question, who must have been in commission and have served twenty years, though a provision was made allowing half the time spent in other military service to be counted in making up this term. Dishonourable conduct is to entail the erasure of the name and a publication of the fact in the Gazette. The Badge is an oak wreath in silver with the Royal cipher and an Heraldic Crown in the centre; it is suspended to the left breast by a green ribbon attached to a silver oak bar-brooch. There is also the Volunteer Long Service Medal, which was granted to Volunteers who had served in any rank for sixteen years up to March 31, 1908.

The Territorial Decoration (T.D.), established in 1908, consists of a silver oak-wreath tied with gold and having the Royal Cipher and Crown in the Centre, the whole suspended on the left breast from a silver oak bar-brooch by a green ribbon with a yellow stripe. It is restricted to commissioned officers of twenty years' good service in the Territorial Force. Similarly, a Territorial Long Service Medal (oval in shape) has been substituted for that formerly awarded to Volunteers.

The Kaisar-i-Hind Medal (for either sex) was founded 1900, and is a reward for any person whatever who shall have rendered useful service in or for India: the First Class under sign manual from the Sovereign on recommendation by the Secretary of State for India; the Second as the grant of the Governor-General. The medal is an oval-shaped badge—in gold for the First Class and Silver for the Second—with the Royal cipher on one side, and on the reverse side the words "Kaisar-i- Hind—for Public Service in India." It is worn on the left breast, hung by a dark-blue ribbon. Attached bars may be added for additional services.

The Indian Order of Merit was instituted in 1837 as a reward for personal bravery to native Indian officers and men.

The Indian Distinguished Service Medal was established in 1907 as a reward for commissioned or non-commissioned officers of any forces employed in India. It is a silver medal with the King's effigy on one side and on the obverse a laurel wreath with the words "For Distinguished Service." It is to be worn on the left breast by a red ribbon edged with blue. It may be conferred also by the Viceroy of India.

The Order of Mercy (both sexes) was established in 1899 (now with the King as its Sovereign), in connection with the League of Mercy, an institution also founded in 1899 by Royal Charter to promote the welfare of Hospitals by obtaining small subscriptions for King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, &c. The order, which has been awarded to a number of officers and members of the League, is conferred by the King as a reward for personal services only, which must have been gratuitously rendered in connection with the relief of sickness, suffering, poverty, or distress. It consists of a red cross surmounted by the Prince of Wales's feathers, and having in the centre a group of figures representing "Charity," by Sir Joshua Reynolds.

The Royal Red Cross (R.R.C.—for Ladies), founded 1883, and enlarged by Roy. Warrant 1915, when it was divided into two classes (the first being conferred only upon fully-trained nurses), is a distinction conferred upon ladies, of any rank, even foreigners, who may be brought to the Sovereign's notice for acts of mercy in attending to the sick or wounded in time of war. It has the Queen and several Royal Princesses at its head. Badge, a cross-pattée enamelled crimson which has hitherto borne Queen Victoria's effigy in the centre on one side, on the reverse the cipher VRI, and on the four arms respectively the words "Faith," "Hope," "Charity," "1883." The ribbon is dark blue edged red, tied in a bow and worn on the left shoulder.

The King's Police Medal was instituted in 1909 as a reward for "acts of exceptional courage and skill or conspicuous devotion to duty" to officers and men of any recognised Police Force or organised Fire Brigade in the United Kingdom, India, and His Majesty's Dominions beyond the Seas. The number of medals awarded in any one year shall not exceed 120. The medal is to be worn on the left breast by a riband of five stripes of dark blue and silver. Bars may be added for additional services.

The Royal Naval Reserve and Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve Decoration (R.D.) and Medal. Instituted in 1910 to reward good and long service by officers and men of these Services.

FOREIGN ORDERS (IN ORDER OF DATE OF AWARD)

FOREIGN DECORATIONS (IN ORDER OF DATE OF AWARD).

FOREIGN MEDALS (IN ORDER OF DATE OF AWARD).

The above order of decorations applies to those of similar grades. The miniature decoration or riband representing the higher grade of a junior order will, however, when worn with that representing the lower grade of a senior order, be placed before the latter—e.g., the miniature or riband of the "Indian Empire" when worn by a G.C.I.E. who is also a K.C.B. will come before the miniature or riband of the "Bath."

(XX.) REGULATIONS IN REGARD TO THE WEARING OF ORDERS, MINIATURE DECORATIONS AND MEDALS WITH EVENING DRESS.

The following are the occasions upon which Orders, Miniature Decorations and Medals are to be worn with Evening Dress, viz. :

(Knights Grand Cross and Knight Commanders on all occasions, when wearing the Stars of their Orders, will also wear a Riband and Badge.)

1. At all Parties and Dinners when the Members of the Royal Family referred to in the attached list are present.

(The host should notify his guests if any of these Members of the Royal Family will be present.)

* The Order of Merit is worn round the neck on all occasions.
† The Indian Order of Merit (Military and Civil) is distinct from the Order of Merit instituted in 1902.
‡ King George's Durbar Medal in Gold can be worn in the United Kingdom by Ruling Chiefs of India only.

2. At all Parties and Dinners given in houses of Ambassadors and Ministers accredited to this Court, unless otherwise notified by the Ambassador or Minister concerned.

(A decoration of the Country concerned should be worn in preference to a British one, and if both are worn, the former should take precedence of the latter.)

3. At all Official Dinners and Receptions, including Naval and Military Dinners, Dinners of City Livery Companies, and Public Dinners.

(The word "Decorations" on the invitation card to be the intimation from the host that the entertainment is an official one.)

4. On official occasions when entertained by :

The Lord Lieutenant of a County within his County.
Cabinet Ministers.
Ex-Cabinet Ministers.
Knights of the Order of the Garter.
Knights of the Order of the Thistle.
Knights of the Order of St. Patrick.
Great Officers of State and of the King's Household.
Lord Mayors and Mayors.
Lord Provosts and Provosts.

(The word "Decorations" on the invitation card to be the intimation from the host that the entertainment is an official one.)

Nothing in the above shall affect in any way the practice of the Knights of the Orders of the Garter, Thistle and St. Patrick and members of the Order of Merit with regard to wearing their insignia in accordance with previous custom.

List of Members of the Royal Family referred to above :

Their Majesties—
The King and Queen.

(XXII.) NATIVE INDIAN AND NORTH AFRICAN NAMES AND TITLES.

(i) INDIAN.

The large number of native Indian Knights and Companions which our work comprises renders it desirable that some explanation of their titles as well as of their names should be supplied to English readers. For that which we here present, as also for a considerable amount of rearrangement in the Directory, we are indebted in the first place to Messrs. James and Horace Wilson, of Sheffield, but formerly of Calcutta. Their generous help was supplemented and much extended by the late Maj-Gen. Sir Owen T. Burne, G.C.I.E. ; and for the very numerous additions introduced in 1910 we are indebted to Sir Roper Lethbridge's admirable compilation 'The Golden Book of India,' as also to a valued communication from Mr. J. L. Fendall, of Pinhoe, Exeter. The Government (or "Hunterian") system of transliteration has usually been followed.

Taking up the names first, the chief perplexity lies in their variety of systems, or rather sometimes their want of system. To a very large extent we find what corresponds exactly to our own repertory of Christian names, but these are far more widely chosen than with ourselves, so that not unfrequently the first of his names, be it "Christian" or not, is the one under which a man must be entered. "In Bengal," says Mr. Wilson, "a Hindu generally has three names, just as the old Roman had his prænomen, nomen, and cognomen. The first would be the personal name ('Christian' name), the second a descriptive or caste name, the third a family name." Thus the order would differ from the Roman, in which, for instance, "Marcus Tullius Cicero" has the family name in the second place. Others have but two names, and many of the Marwaris only one, as Dedraj or Mulchand. The Muhammadans are very irregular, "some seeming to have no family name at all, as Khuda Bakhsh = 'the gift of God'" (Khuda being God), with which we may contrast the lengthy "Abdul Fayal Muhammad Abdur Rahman." We have also heard in confirmation from the Nawab of Rampur "In fact we have no proper surnames."

Turning to the titles, we are speedily staggered by their multiplicity. Here again we find a difference of nomenclature between the titles of Hindus and those of Muhammadans, the highest in rank with the former being Maharaja and with the latter Nawab, with the exception of the one still higher potentate termed the Nizam. Maharaja, Raja, and Nawab correspond with English Peers, and the lower titles with our Knights, but of these latter the relative rank sometimes varies in different parts (Rai Bahadur and Khan Bahadur may, however, be taken as equivalent to Knights Bachelor). Hindu titles are of Sanscrit origin, and Muhammadan usually of Persian, but there are also Burmese, Afghan, Baluch, Thibetan, and Somali titles, indeed some fifty languages or dialects. Some titles are hereditary and represent ruling chiefs or those nominally such (and of these there are no less than some 620, whilst of the titles themselves some 200 are known) : others are personal honours conferred on individuals by our Indian Government, and even then sometimes made hereditary. Yet again, there are numerous complimentary titles, or specifications of office, expressed in Hindu phrases, of which we have occasionally supplied the interpretations. It must be added that though caste is often figuring in the names it has nothing whatever to do with the titles. Amir, Khan, Mir, Sultan, Sri, &c., are confusingly used as both titles and names.

The order of rank is thus given by Sir R. Lethbridge :

Hindu—Maharaja Bahadur, Maharaja, Raja Bahadur, Raja, Rai Bahadur, Rai Saheb, Rai.

Muhammadan—Nizam, Nawab Bahadur, Nawab, Khan Bahadur, Khan Saheb, Khan.

Afsur—a corruption of the English " officer."
Ahluwalia—name of a princely family resident at the village of Ahlu, near Lahore.
Akhundzada—son of a head officer. Alijah (Sindhi)—of exalted rank. Ali Raja—Sea King (Laccadives).
Amir (corruptly Emir)—a Muhammadan Chief ; often also a personal name. Asaf—a Minister.
Baba—lit. " father ; " a respectful " Mr. ; " Irish " Your Honour."
Babu—strictly a 5th or still younger son of a Raja, but often used of any son younger than the heir, whilst it has also grown into a term of address = Esquire. There are, however, one or two Rajas whose sons are known respectively as—1st, Kunwar ; 2nd, Diwan ; 3rd, Thakur ; 4th, Lal ; 5th, Babu.
Bahadur—lit. " brave " or " warrior : " a title used by both Hindus and Muhammadans, often bestowed by Government ; added to other titles it increases their honour, but alone it designates an inferior ruler.
Bakhshi—a revenue officer or magistrate.
Begum or Begam—the feminine of " Nawab," combined in Bhopal as " Nawab Begum."
Bhonsle—name of a Mahratta dynasty.
Bhup—title of the ruler of Cooch Behar. Bugti—name of a Baluch tribe.
Chhatrapati—one of sufficient dignity to have an umbrella carried over him.
Dada—lit. " grandfather " (paternal) ; any venerable person.
Daula and Daulat—State ; also one in office.
Deb—a Brahminical priestly title ; taken from the name of a divinity.
Dhiraj—" Lord of the Lands : " added to " Raja " &c. it means " paramount."
Diwan—a Vizier (Wazir) or other First Minister to a native Prince, either Hindu or Muhammadan, and equal in rank with " Sardar," under which see other equivalents. The term is also used of a Council of State.
Elaya Raja—title given to the heir of the Maharaja of Travancore.
Farzand (with defining words added)—" favourite " or " beloved."
Fateh—" victory." Fateh Jang—" Victorious in Battle " (a title of the Nizam).
Gaekwar (sometimes Guicowar)—title with " Maharaja " added, of the ruler of Baroda. It was once a caste name and means " cowherd," i.e., the protector of the sacred animal ; but later on, in common with Holkar and " Sindhia," it came to be a dynastic appellation and consequently regarded as a title. Thus, a Prince becomes " Gaekwar " on succeeding to the estate of Baroda ; " Holkar," to that of Indore ; and " Sindhia," to that of Gwalior.
Hafiz—guardian. Haji—one who has made pilgrimage to Mecca.
Holkar—see " Gaekwar." Jah—a term denoting dignity. Jam (Sindhi or Baluch)—Chief.
Kazi—(sometimes written Qazi)—a Muhammadan magistrate.
Khan—originally the ruler of a small Muhammadan State, now a nearly empty title, though prized. It is very frequently used as a name, especially by Afghans and Pathans.
Khwaja—a Persian word for " master," sometimes a name. Kunwar or Kumar—the heir of a Raja.
Lal—a younger son of a Raja (strictly a 4th son, but see under " Babu ").
Lokendra or Lokindra—" Protector of the World," title of the Chiefs of Dholpur and Dattia.
Mahant—a feudal title borne by the heads of a Hindu religious body.
Maharaja—the highest of hereditary rulers among the Hindus, or else a personal distinction conferred by Government. It has several variations as under " Raja," with the addition of Maharaj Rana ; its feminine is Maharani (maha = great). Malik—master, proprietor.
Maung (Burmese)—a prefix to Burmese names = " Mr."
Mian—title of the son of a Rajput Nawab, resembling the Scottish " Master."
Mir—a leader, an inferior title which, like " Khan," has grown into a name. It is especially used by descendants of the Chiefs of Sind.
Mirza—if prefixed, " Mr." or " Esquire ; " if appended, " Prince."
Moulvi or Maulvi—a learned man or teacher.
Mudaliyar or Mudeliar—a personal proper name, but implying " steward of the lands."
Mumtaz-ud-Daula—distinguished in the State (-Mulk, in the country).
Munshi—president, or presiding official.
Nawab—originally a Viceroy under the Mogul Government, now the regular leading title of a Muhammadan Prince, corresponding to " Maharaja " of the Hindus.
Nazim—a ruler (not to be confused with following).
Nizam—the title of the ruler of Hyderabad, the one Muhammadan Prince superior to Nawab.
Nono (Thibetan)—the ruler of Spitta. Pandit or Pundit—a learned man. Peshkar—manager or agent.
Prince—term used in English courtesy for " Shahzada," but specially conferred in the case of " Prince of Arcot " (called also " Armin-i-Arcot ").
Raja—a Hindu Prince of exalted rank, but inferior to " Maharaja." The feminine is Rani (Princess or Queen), and it has the variations Raj, Rana, Rao, Rai, Rawal, Rawat, Raikwar, Raikbar, and Raikat. The form Rai is common in Bengal, Rao in S. &. W. India.
Raj Rajeshwar—King of Kings.
Risaldar—commander of a troop of horses. (A rank of Native Officer (cavalry) in the Indian Army.)
Saheb—the native Hindu term used to or of a European (" Mr. Smith " would be mentioned as " Smith Saheb," and his wife " Smith Mem-Saheb," but in addressing it would be " Saheb," fem. " Saheba," without the name) : occasionally appended to a title in the same way as " Bahadur," but inferior (= master). The unusual combination " Nawab Saheb " implies a mixed population of Hindus and Muhammadans.
Sahibzada—son of a person of consequence.
Saïd, Sayid, Saiyid, Sidi, Syed, Syud—various forms for a title adopted by those who claim direct male descent from Muhammad's grandson Husain.
Sardar (corrupted to Sirdar)—a leading Government official, either civil or military, even a Grand Vizier. Nearly all the Punjab Barons bear this title. It and " Diwan " are alike in value and used by both Hindus and Muhammadans. So, but Muhammadan only, are " Wali," " Sultan," " Amir," " Mir," ' Mirza," " Mian." and " Khan."
Sawai—a Hindu title implying a slight distinction (lit. one-fourth better than others).
Sawbwa (Burmese)—a Chief ; the title of a ruler of the semi-independent Shan States of Burma.
Shahzada—son of a King. Shaikh or Sheikh (Arabic)—a Chief.
Shams-ul-Ulama—a Muhammadan title denoting " learned."

Shamshir Jang—" Sword of Battle " (a title of the Maharaja of Travancore).
Sidi—a variation of " Said." Sindhia—see under " Gaekwar."
Sri or Shri—lit. fortune, beauty : a Sanscrit term used by Hindus in speaking of a person much respected (never addressed to him ; nearly = " Esquire ") ; used also of divinities. The two forms of spelling are occasioned by the intermediate sound of the s (that of s in the German Stadt).
Subadar—Governor of a province ; also a rank of Native Officer in the Indian Army.
Sultan—like ' Sardar." Syed, Syud—mere variations of " Said."
Talukdar—an Oudh landlord. Talpur—the name of a dynasty in Sind.
Thakur—a Hindu term equivalent to " Bahadur," whether as affix or alone.
Tumandar—a Persian word denoting some office. Umara—term implying the Nobles collectively.
Wali—like " Sardar." The Governor of Khelat is so termed, whilst the Chiefs of Cabul are both " Wali " and " Mir."
Zemindar or Zamindar—a landowner ; orig. a Muhammadan collector of revenue.

(ii) NORTH AFRICAN, &c.

Those of the following marked* were kindly supplied us by the late Earl of Cromer.

Bey—a Turkish Governor, rather lower than a Pasha.
Dey—formerly the title of the Governors of Algiers, Tripoli, and Tunis.
Emir—like " Amir " of previous list. Ferik*—a Vice-Admiral.
Ghaly*—a word meaning " costly," but it is a proper name in " Boutros Ghaly Pasha."
Kaid*—used in Barbary of a high military or civil official ; in Tunis, a Governor of a province.
Khedive—formerly the hereditary Viceroy of Egypt.
Mudir*—a Governor of a province, or sometimes a director of a State Administration.
Pasha—the Governor of a Turkish province, or some other superior official in the Empire.
Yaver*—an A.D.C., but it is a proper name in ' Mustapha Yaver Pasha."

(XXIII.) OFFICERS OF ARMS.

The English College of Arms, or the Heralds' College, is a corporate body originally established by Richard the Third. Its officers are appointed on the nomination of the Earl Marshal, whose office is hereditary in the line of the Duke of Norfolk ; their only remuneration, beyond a nominal one, consists in the fees which they receive from private practice, though one Herald and one Pursuivant are regularly in attendance at the office. The Officers of Arms of Scotland and Ireland, on the contrary, are now immediately under Government instead of forming corporations ; they are in no degree connected with either the Earl Marshal or Garter. The duty of the various Officers is to attend to all matters of pedigrees, honours, and precedence ; and to arrange all state ceremonies in their respective countries. The rank of the three English Kings remains invariably in the order given below, but that of the Heralds and Pursuivants changes with personal seniority.

The three grades of Kings, Heralds, and Pursuivants are all attired officially in the tabard or sleeveless coat—that of the Kings being of embroidered silk velvet, that of the Heralds satin, and of the Pursuivants figured silk damask. The Kings of Arms are further distinguished by crowns of silver gilt figured with sixteen oak-leaves, and they wear gold collars of SS., which perhaps means " Spiritus Sanctus," but this, one of the Kings tells us, is " hotly controverted " (the term occurs in Shakespeare's ' Henry VIII.,' Act iv., Scene i.) ; they are assigned official arms to impale with their own (for Garter see further under that Order). The Heralds have similiar collars, but of silver ; their designation is solely in connection with " heraldry," the trumpeters attending them upon state ceremonies whenever the more ordinary function of a " herald " has to be performed.

(XXIV.) PRECEDENCE.

THE relative positions of the various grades have formed the subject of legal enactments from a very early period, the first apparently having been decreed in the reign of Edward the Third in the year 1339. After this we meet with a statute passed under Henry the Seventh, and a more important one in the 31st year of Henry the Eighth, which has since been looked upon as the primary authority on the subject, though it was little more than a conferring of legal force upon the practices then current. Several acts of less account have followed, mostly in reference to questions of special controversy or doubt. Many striking omissions occur in the table, among them being Colonial Governors, military and naval commanders, the sons of Peers' eldest sons, and (till end of 1905) the office of Prime Minister; the Chancellor of the Exchequer is still unrecognised, as are Secretaries of State who hold higher rank than that of Barons. Hereditary precedence as a rule comes only through a father, but a Peeress in her own right can confer it upon her offspring. Men possessing two claims to precedence, a personal and an official one, will be ranked according to whichever of these is the higher: yet this preference of the higher is not the invariable system, for if the son of a Duke, for instance, is summoned to the House of Lords in a Barony of his father's his rank forthwith sinks to that of a Baron; and similarly if an Irish Peer becomes a Member of Parliament it will be only in the latter capacity that he will be summoned to a Coronation. The children of a living Peer or Baronet rank before those of his predecessor, as they themselves will have the prior claim to succeed. A dignity which is exclusively official—as that of the Spiritual Peers and the Scottish Lords of Session—confers no precedence whatever upon the children, but those of a Life Peer now rank as only one degree lower than the younger sons of other Barons. No foreign title confers any precedence in England, but veritable Ambassadors rank before all except the Royal Family, whilst Envoys and Foreign Ministers have latterly been placed, 'Burke' tells us, between Dukes and Marquesses. Foreign Sovereigns visiting England would rank after our own King in order of seniority of accession alone, whether Emperors, Kings, or Presidents.

Table of General Precedence—Men.

Esquires.
Gentlemen.

In various classes, such as the Clergy, the Bar, and the Military, there are rules of precedence observed amongst themselves, but which confer no general rank whatever. In University Precedence we have Doctors (in the order—D.D., D.C.L. or LL.D., M.D., Mus. D., D. Litt., D. Sc.), Bachelors of the same faculties, then Masters of Arts, and lastly Bachelors of Arts. For Relative Ranks of Army, Navy, and Air Force, see the ALMANACK. The order of Legal Precedence (apart from those highest officials given under the general list above) is as follows after "Judges of the High Court":

Judge Advocate-General.
Attorney-General.
Lord Advocate of Scotland.
Solicitor-General.
King's Counsel.
Serjeants.
Recorder of London.
Common Serjeant of London.
Attorney-General of Duchy of Lancaster.
Masters in Chancery.
Masters in Lunacy.
Doctors of Civil Law.
Barristers with patents of precedence.
Other Barristers.
King's Remembrancer.
Proctors.
Solicitors.
Notaries.

Similarly for Clerical Precedence we must add after "Bishops":

Irish Bishops, Protestant or Roman Catholic.
Bishop of Sodor and Man.
Scottish Bishops.
Colonial Bishops.
Bishops Suffragan, Retired, Assistant, and Missionary Bishops.

Deans.
Archdeacons.
Canons.
Rectors of degree D.D.
Other Rectors.
Vicars of degree D.D.
Other Vicars.

Precedence among Ladies.

As a first general rule the rank of ladies is that of their husbands if married and of their eldest brothers if single: but there are many special instances. Our section upon the Marriage of Peeresses and Others, now placed under the heading "Nomenclature of Peers' Relatives," comprehends much that is applicable to our subject here. In particular, we may here repeat that whilst the eldest son of a Peer takes rank, say, as a Duke's son quite irrespective of his courtesy-title as Marquess, Earl, or Lord, the married daughter of a Peer may either retain a higher rank of her own by adhering to her former style, or take that of her husband by conforming to his. It must be added that the wife of an eldest son takes precedence over all daughters, but these in their turn have priority over the wives of younger sons. A dowager lady again (not necessarily so styled) ranks higher than the wife of the living Peer or Baronet, because, whilst neither can possibly succeed to the title, the elder comes the nearer to the original holder—a rule thus resulting which is the opposite to that observed in the cases of children, wherein those of the living Peer or Baronet take precedence on account of nearness to the future succession. The mere official rank of the husband as a rule confers no dignity whatever upon his wife; but even here there are exceptions in cases where the wives have a species of public duties to perform, as those of a Lady Mayoress and the wife of a Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The following is the order observed:

The Queen.
The Queen-Mother.
The Princess of Wales.
Sovereign's daughters.
Wives of Sovereign's younger sons.
Daughters of Sovereign's sons.
Wives of Sovereign's grandsons.
Sovereign's sisters.
Wives of Sovereign's brothers.

Wives of younger sons of Peers' younger sons.
Wives of younger sons of Baronets.
Wives of younger sons of Knights.
Wives of Esquires.
Wives of Gentlemen.

Local Precedence.

There is little of a general character that need here be noted. The person highest in rank in a county is the Lord Lieutenant, after whom comes the High Sheriff. In the City of London the order is—Lord Mayor (on City state occasions he ranks next to the Sovereign; in the County of London the Marquess of Crewe, as Lord Lieutenant, would have pre-eminence), Past Lord Mayors, Recorder, Aldermen not passed the Chair, Sheriffs, Chamberlain, Town Clerk, Common Serjeant, Comptroller, Remembrancer (no position is yet assigned to the office of Lieutenant, of which there are not far short of four hundred holders). In other corporate towns we have the Mayor first unless there is a High Steward, then the Recorder, Sheriff, and Aldermen. At Oxford and Cambridge the Sheriff takes precedence of the Vice-Chancellor.

Precedence in Scotland.

The Sovereign.
The Lord High Commissioner to the Gen. Assembly (while that Assembly is sitting).
The Duke of Rothesay (Pr. of Wales).
Younger sons of the Sovereign.

(XXV.) OFFICIAL GLOSSARY.

UNDER this heading we are presenting a series of brief explanatory notes upon such Public Establishments, Services, Offices, Observances, &c., as are not supplied in other portions of the Introduction. Necessarily this crowding of so wide a field into so narrow a compass must render the information extremely meagre, often also extremely commonplace. The subjects afford obvious scope for a huge volume by themselves, and that very fact must form an excuse for our treating them thus scantily or not at all. The notices given are intended for the amateur, and in particular the statements in respect of Naval and Military topics must seek pardon as provided for the "mere civilian."

ADJUTANT.—An assistant to the Commander of a Regiment. The Adjutant-General has the oversight of discipline and training for the entire Army, and has his local or divisional subordinates, termed respectively Deputy Adjutant-General, Assistant Adjutant-General, and Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General.

ADMIRALTY.—By this body all Naval affairs, except the duties of active service, are controlled. Formerly they were the concern of the Lord High Admiral, but that office has been practically extinct from 1708, its functions being now entrusted to a group of high officials termed Lords Commissioners, or more commonly Lords of the Admiralty. At their head is the First Lord, who is invariably a member of the Cabinet, whilst the five that follow are also part of the Ministry of the day. These five are known as the First, Second, Third, and Fourth Sea Lords, and the Civil Lord. For Staffs, Flag Officers, Commands, &c., see WHITAKER'S ALMANACK.

ADMIRALTY COURT.—This is linked with the Probate and Divorce Division of the High Court of Justice. There is also an Admiralty Court for Ireland, each having its own Judge and other officials, including a King's Proctor and in Ireland a King's Advocate.

AIDES-DE-CAMP TO THE KING.—These are both Naval and Military, the former holding the rank of Captain (R.N.) and the latter that of Colonel (offices usually equal in rank): they retire on attaining a higher promotion (called in the Navy "Flag Rank"). The Marquess of Milford Haven is a Personal Naval, and the Duke of Connaught, Prince Arthur of Connaught, and the Marquess of Cambridge are Personal Military A.D.C.'s. There are also a First and Principal Naval A.D.C. and Marine A.D.C.'s.

His Majesty in 1910 appointed also four Aides-de-Camp General, who are General Officers in the Army; in 1912 adding two from the Indian Army. General Officers have also their special A.D.C.'s. who are Captains or Subalterns. Admirals have Flag-Lieutenants to perform similar duties.

AIR, MINISTRY OF.—See "Royal Air Force."

ALMONER.—See "Grand Almoner."

ALNAGER.—See "Great Alnager."

AMBASSADORS.—The representatives from Great Britain to the leading Foreign Powers, as United States, France, Spain, Italy, Japan, Brazil, and Belgium. Their official residences are known as Embassies. The representatives to or from second-rate Powers are variously termed Envoys Extraordinary and Ministers Plenipotentiary, and their residences are Legations. In the case of States of a still lower rank, or those not independent, we have the terms Ministers Resident, Consuls-General (sometimes with "and Agents" added), Consuls, Vice-Consuls, and Chargés d'Affaires, their offices being Legations, Agencies, Consulates-General, Consulates, and Vice-Consulates.

ARCHES, COURT OF.—The highest of the Ecclesiastical Courts, under attachment to the two Archbishoprics. It is presided over by the Dean of the Arches.

ARMS, COLLEGE OF.—See "Officers of Arms" (ante).

ARMY.—The Commissioned Officers range down as—Field Marshals, Generals, Lieutenant-Generals, Major-Generals, Brigadier-Generals,* Colonels, Lieutenant-Colonels, Majors, Captains, Lieutenants, and Second Lieutenants (the ranks of Ensign and Cornet are abolished, except that the former is retained in the Royal Company of Archers); and in the Medical Service—Lieutenant-Generals, followed by the regular titles from Colonels to Lieutenants. For Warrant Officers we have—Sergeant-Majors, Corporal Majors, Master Gunners, Bandmasters, Conductors and Sub-Conductors in the Ordnance Department, Schoolmasters, and Superintending Clerks. The Non-commissioned Officers comprise such of these as have not obtained the higher qualifications, and with them Colour Sergeants, Sergeants, and Corporals. A Lance-Corporal (called in the Garrison Artillery a Bombardier) is a Private promoted on probation. A Brigade-Major is either a Major or Captain on the Staff of a Brigade; a Staff Captain is a Captain performing certain duties on the Staff: for Adjutant, Aide-de-Camp, Colonel Commandant, and Honorary Colonel, see those separate articles. The Military term "Brevet" denotes promotion to a higher rank in the Army, though not to such in the Officer's own Regiment or Corps. Brevet rank is given as a reward for special services, usually in the field. An Officer is said to be "seconded" (pronounced secon'ded) from his Regiment when holding a Staff or other extra-regimental appointment which necessitates the promotion of another Officer to perform the duties he has vacated.

ARMY COUNCIL.—Created in 1904 and holding transfer of the powers and functions previously possessed by the Secretary for War and the Commander-in-Chief. The Secretary of State is still at its head, and with him are the Parliamentary Under-Secretary, the Chief of the Imperial General Staff, the Adjutant-General, the Quartermaster-General, the Master-General of the Ordnance, and the Parliamentary and Financial Secretaries. The Permanent Under Secretary of State acts as its Secretary.

ASTRONOMERS ROYAL.—The first in estimation of these is at the head of Greenwich Observatory. After him come the Astronomer Royal for Scotland, at Edinburgh; the Royal Astronomer for Ireland, at Dublin; and the Government Astronomer at the Cape. The first and last of the four are officials of the Admiralty.

ATTACHÉS.—These are both Naval and Military, their attachment being to the Embassies or Legations at foreign capitals, whilst their duties consist in ascertaining by honourable means, and reporting to the Home Government, any movements or changes in their respective lines of service. There are also Commercial and general Attachés.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL.—The first legal adviser of the Government, of which he is invariably a member and is knighted. He also conducts State prosecutions and suits for matters concerning the Sovereign, but is free to act in private cases when not interfering, of course, with his official duties. The Attorney-General for Ireland is also a member of the Government, but he does not receive knighthood as such, nor is it even held essential that he should be a Member of Parliament. The corresponding Scottish official is the Lord Advocate.

BEDCHAMBER, LADIES AND WOMEN OF.—The former of these are invariably Peeresses: the latter are also of high rank but inferior to the former. The only duties of either at the present day are those of attendance at Courts and ceremonials. In the time of George the Second they were personally present at the toilet of the Queen. Both "Ladies" and "Women" are alike styled Ladies-in-Waiting.

BEEF-EATERS.—A conventional name for Yeomen of the Guard and Warders of the Tower. See under the former, where two suggestions for its origin are given.

BLACK ROD.—This official, who is mentioned under Order of the Garter, is the senior of the Gentlemen Ushers Daily Waiters, and holds his appointment by patent. The staff or wand which he carries gives him his designation, his principal duty being attendance at the House of Lords, where he acts in the maintenance of order, summons the Commons when required, and appoints subordinate officials. There is also an Usher of the Black Rod in Ireland, who is an officer of the Order of St. Patrick.

BODY GUARDS.—See "Gentlemen-at-Arms," "Royal Co. of Archers," and "Yeomen of the Guard.

CABINET, THE.—In normal times this consists of a committee of the leading members of the Government, whose number has ranged of late years from fourteen to twenty, all of whom are Privy

* This rank has been done away with from 1st January, 1921.

Councillors. The "War Cabinet" consisted of the Prime Minister, Lord President of the Council, and four Ministers without Portfolio.

CHAMBERLAIN.—See "Lord Chamberlain" and "Lord Great Chamberlain."

CHAMPION OF ENGLAND.—See "King's Champion" under "Regalia" in Section I., The Sovereign.

CHANCELLOR, LORD.—See "Lord High Chancellor."

CHANCELLOR OF THE DUCHY OF LANCASTER.—The once Palatine Duchy of Lancaster has been merged in the Crown ever since the accession of Henry the Fourth. Its revenues are thus vested in the Sovereign, who receives from them about £60,000, the total nett income being some £100,000.

CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER.—The first Finance Minister of the Crown, responsible for the annual balance of revenue and expenditure. The office of First Lord of the Treasury has no special connection with this, though of course when held by the Premier it is paramount over this as all other Departments. The Chancellor is still unrecognised in the Scale of Precedence.

CHAPELS ROYAL.—Of these there are two in St. James's Palace (one of them styled the Marlborough House Chapel) and one at Hampton Court Palace—all three being governed by the Dean of the Chapels Royal, who is usually the Bishop of London, but chosen by the Sovereign. There is also the Chapel Royal of the Savoy, which is in the Sovereign's private list as a "Royal Peculiar" and not under the Dean's jurisdiction.

CHAPLAINS TO THE KING.—Attached to the Household there are the Domestic Chaplains, Chaplains in Ordinary; and in both the Navy and Army there are his Honorary Chaplains, and in Scotland his Chaplains in Ordinary.

CHIEF BUTLER.—An office now nominal only. It descends by heredity to the Earl of Arundel (Duke of Norfolk), but the names of other claimants were recorded at King Edward's Coronation. The offices of Chief Cup Bearer and Chief Larderer (see others under "Grand Falconer") stand in a like position, for all three were concerned with the after proceedings in Westminster Hall which are now discontinued at Coronations.

CINQUE PORTS.—These, as the name signifies, were originally five—Dover, Hastings, Hythe, Romney, and Sandwich—but Rye and Winchelsea were added, and at the last two Coronations the "Barons of the Cinque Ports" were allowed to send one of their number from each of these seven towns as well as from Deal, Faversham, Folkestone, Lydd, Margate, Ramsgate, and Tenterden: indeed we hear of a still larger number, for a claim was made from the Ports of sixteen of their Barons to hold a canopy over the King and sixteen more over the Queen. Eighteen in all were invited, and the fourteen enumerated were understood to be participants. The office of Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, once held by the great Duke of Wellington, is no longer invested with more than a slight power of jurisdiction; at one time the Warden was a judge of appeal from the local courts, but could still be appealed from to the King's Bench, though we read that the "King's ordinary writ did not run" in the Ports.

CLERK OF THE CHEQUE.—There is one of these officials to each of the two English Body Guards of His Majesty.

COCKADES.—The Cockade, in present English usage, is a distinction of office rather than of title, it being a badge on the head-dress which can properly be worn only by servants of Royalty and of those holding commissions direct from the Crown, such as Naval and Military Officers, diplomatists, and the Lords Lieutenant, Deputy Lieutenants, and High Sheriffs of Counties. With these its colour is black—circular with a projecting fan for Military and semi-military men, and oval without fan for Naval Officers: there is also the Royal Cockade, much like the Military, but rather larger. Its introduction into England in these forms was due to the House of Hanover, those who adopted it signifying thereby their allegiance to that House; but cockades of various colours had been here known long previous to their time. Under Charles the First there was a scarlet cockade, but under his son the colour was changed to white, and "the white cockade" became the badge of the Pretenders or Jacobites, as the orange was that of King William (in accord with his title "Prince of Orange," a small principality now belonging to France). At that date "to mount the cockade" implied simply "to become a soldier," the white or orange denoting the party. The latter is still the colour in Holland, whilst other European nations adopt a large variety of hues, as is shown occasionally in the streets of London by the foreign liveries of carriage attendants —black and white for Prussia; black, white, and red for Germany; black and yellow for Austria; blue and white for Bavaria; the tricolour for France; scarlet for Spain; and black, red, and yellow for Belgium. The word was borrowed from the French cocarde, having originally been applied to the plumes of cocks' feathers worn by Croatian soldiers serving in the French army. Some such a plume, or in its place a bunch of ribbons, came to be used in pinning up the flaps of the hat into a cocked position, and thus gradually the word passed for the name of the "cocked" hat itself. (This paragraph is mainly based upon an article by Mr. F. Lee Carter in the Genealogical Magazine for June 1899).

COLONEL COMMANDANT.—An honour conferred upon distinguished General Officers of the Royal Regiment of Artillery, of the Corps of Royal Engineers, of the King's Royal Rifle Corps, of the Rifle Brigade, of the Royal Army Service Corps, (3), of the Royal Army Medical Corps, (4), of the Royal Army Ordnance Corps, (1), and of the Royal Army Veterinary Corps, (1).

It is now also conferred, as a temporary rank, upon officers commanding a brigade, or appointed upon the staff, in substitution for the obsolete Brigadiers-General.

COMMITTEE FOR PRIVILEGES OF THE HOUSE OF LORDS.—The body of Law Lords by which are decided all claims to Peerages or to titles implying any measure of connection therewith.

Comptroller of the Household.—The officer ranking next after the Treasurer in the Lord Steward's Department.

Comptroller of the Lord Chamberlain's Department.—The superintendent of accounts and the acting permanent head of the Department except as stated under "Lord Chamberlain."

Consistory Courts.—These Courts, of which every Archbishop and Bishop has his own, are for the determination of ecclesiastical questions within the Province or Diocese.

Constable of the Tower.—See "Tower."

Consul.—An accredited representative from England to some important town in a foreign country, or to or from a petty State, his duties being largely of a mercantile character. Sometimes he bears the title of Consul-General, or even with the word Agent prefixed, but this is most frequently the case when there are several Consulates in the same country and the one in question ranks at their head. There are also numerous Vice-Consuls. Many of both ranks are unsalaried. See further under "Ambassador."

Cornwall, Duchy of.—The revenues of this Duchy accrue to the Sovereign's eldest son (Duke of Cornwall) from the time of his birth, and if the title has been dormant they accumulate at interest till a successor appears. The annual amount paid to the Prince is now about £50,000, the total income being some £130,000. For the personal conditions attaching to the title see under "Prince of Wales" as per Index.

Court Dress.—In the official work published under the title of 'Dress Worn at Court' are detailed instructions given for the apparel of Gentlemen Functionaries of every class. For us to include all these would be simply to reprint the book; we must content ourselves with the directions to be followed by civilians who wear no distinctive uniform. For Courts, Levees, and Evening State Parties the choice is given between Velvet Court Dress of either New or Old Style and Cloth Court Dress; for Dinners, Balls, and Receptions the rule is Frock Dress. We here give the first and last of these in full; the others only so far as they differ from the first.

Velvet Court Dress, New Style.—Coat of black silk velvet, stand collar, single-breasted, cut narrow, so that the fronts do not meet; plain gauntlet cuffs; imitation pocket flaps hung from the waist seam, and with three points on the lower edge; six cut steel buttons (of a specially-embossed pattern figured in the book) on right forepart with corresponding notched holes on left: two buttons on each inner edge of the skirts (tails), one each being on the waist seam and one on the lower extremity: pockets in breast and in tails; lining of white silk for body and black for skirts. Waistcoat, white satin or black silk velvet, without collar, but with four small buttons to match coat. Breeches of black silk velvet with three small steel buttons above a steel buckle on outer side of each knee. Hose, black silk. Shoes, back patent leather with steel buckles. Hat, either black beaver or a silk cocked hat with steel loop on a black silk cockade or rosette. White bow Necktie and White Gloves. Sword, steel hilt with black scabbard and steel mountings, attached to a black silk web waist-belt worn under the waistcoat, with black velvet frog for the sword. Studs should be plain pearl or gold, watch chains should not be worn.

Velvet Court Dress, Old Style.—The variations on the preceding are these: Coat with seven buttons instead of six, and the foreparts meeting at the third button, where a hook-and-eye secures them; the gauntlet cuffs have three buttons on the back edges, and three notched holes; flaps (imitation pockets) have a button under each of the three points; on the inner edge of each tail there is a third button, midway between the upper and lower ones. A lace frill and ruffles hanging from the collar in front to below the second button; and at the back a "wig-bag" or "flash" of black silk is similarly attached and hangs to between the shoulders. Waistcoat with skirted fronts and with pointed flaps to pockets, with three buttons under each flap. Sling sword hung by slings to waist-belt.

Cloth Court Dress.—Varied from above New Style as follows: Coat of dark-coloured cloth, either mulberry, claret, or green; the six button-holes blind or dummy; lining wholly black silk; gold embroidery on collar, cuffs, and flaps; the buttons gilt, convex, with mounted imperial (heraldic) crown. Waistcoat, white corded silk or white marcella; buttons to match coat, but smaller. Breeches, same cloth as coat, with cloth buttons and gilt buckles. Shoes also with gilt buckles. Hat, if cocked, with the loop gold and button gilt. Court-dress Sword with gilt hilt and gold knot, the scabbard with gilt mountings and the belt with frog of cloth. At Levees, trousers of same cloth as coat, with row of gold lace down side-seams and plain military patent-leather boots.

A black or very dark Inverness Cape or long full dark Overcoat may be worn with either of the above three styles.

Frock Dress.—Black evening dress Coat lapelled, optionally faced with silk. Black or white evening-dress Vest. Breeches of plain black evening-dress material or stockinet, with three small black cloth or silk buttons and small jet or black buckles at the knees. Hose of black silk. Shoes, plain Court with bows, no buckles. Necktie, a white evening-dress bow. Gloves white. (No sword.) An ordinary opera hat is worn with this dress.

Alternative Dress.—In May, 1920, it was laid down that in lieu of either Civil Uniform or Court Dress, the following alternative Dress may be worn by gentlemen (other than Members of Their Majesties' Households and of the Diplomatic and Consular Services) on all occasions when Uniform or Court Dress is prescribed:—

An ordinary black evening-dress coat. Black or white evening-dress waistcoat. Breeches.—Plain black evening-dress material or stockinet, with three small black cloth or silk buttons, and small jet or black buckles at the knee. Hose.—Black silk. Shoes.—Plain Court, with bows, no buckles. Tie.—White evening-dress bow necktie. An ordinary black silk or opera hat is worn with this dress.

For Ladies.—Ladies must appear in full dress with trains and three white feathers mounted as a Prince of Wales's Plume slightly on the left-hand side of the head ; a tulle veil (not longer than 45 inches) is attached to the base of the feathers. The skirt of the gown should extend behind not less than 15 inches on the ground ; the regulation length of a Court train is 3 yards from the shoulders and the width at the end is 54 inches. White gloves only are worn, except in case of mourning, when black or grey is admissible. For ladies to whom illness or infirmity renders low dresses unadvisable the King has sanctioned the adoption of "High Court Dress," for which, however, previous permission must be obtained through the Lord Chamberlain. They can thus present themselves with Bodices in front, cut square or heart-shape, and allowed to be filled in with white only, either transparent or lined ; at the back high, or cut down three-quarter height : sleeves to elbow, either thick or transparent.

COURT OF CLAIMS.—A body of members of the Privy Council formed by special commission previous to a Coronation, their office being to determine the validity of claims to appear at that ceremony. A Lord High Steward is appointed to preside.

COURTS AND DRAWING-ROOMS.—The latter were the customary assemblies until the accession of King Edward, but they are now abandoned for the former. Ladies who have been previously presented at either must, if desirous of a second attendance, send in their names in writing to the Lord Chamberlain, after which as many as can be accommodated will receive invitations to attend ; but this is not unless exceptionally permitted, more than once in three years. They can then each present her own daughters and daughters-in-law and one débutante, whose first access can only be obtained through such introduction. Gentlemen are exceptionally allowed to accompany the ladies of their family.

CUSTOS ROTULORUM.—The Lord Lieutenant of a County (in Ireland "Lieutenant"), so styled as having charge of the county sessions rolls.

DEPUTY LIEUTENANTS.—Gentlemen so appointed by the Lord Lieutenant of their county. Three of them jointly can act in his absence, unless he has also appointed a Vice-Lieutenant.

DRAWING-ROOMS.—See "Courts."

DURHAM, COUNTY PALATINE OF.—The Bishop of this county was granted Palatine privileges by Prince Guthrun, and they were retained until 1836, when the Crown annexed them. In their original form they practically made the county an independent kingdom in alliance with England.

EARL MARSHAL.—Some information as to this high office is given in the Directory under the Duke of Norfolk, its hereditary holder, and its position at the head of the English College of Arms will be seen under that section in the Introduction. The Earl Marshal has the arrangement of state ceremonials and processions as well as the granting of armorial bearings. The present Duke of Norfolk being a minor, a Deputy Earl Marshal has been appointed, Viscount FitzAlan of Derwent occupying the office.

ECCLESIASTICAL COURTS.—See "Arches," "Faculties," and "Peculiars."

EMBASSIES : also ENVOYS.—See under "Ambassadors."

EQUERRIES.—These officials accompany the Sovereign's carriage on state occasions. The Chief or Crown Equerry, who was formerly styled Gentleman of the Horse, is the next officer to the Master of the Horse.

ESTATES OF THE REALM.—The three classes constituting the Legislature—the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal, and the Commons.

EXONS.—See "Yeomen of the Guard."

FACULTIES, COURT OF.—An Ecclesiastical Court presided over by a Master, who is the Dean of the Arches. It has, besides some other dispensations, the issuing of marriage licences, which must be applied for at the Vicar-General's office.

GENTLEMEN-AT-ARMS, HON. CORPS OF.—This Body Guard of the Sovereign, formerly called Gentlemen Pensioners, consists of retired Officers of the Regular Army or Marines. These are entitled to form "the nearest guard and principal military corps of the Household of the Sovereign." They have a Lieutenant, Standard Bearer, and Clerk of the Cheque.

GENTLEMEN USHERS.—Of these there are now four classes : 1, Gentlemen Ushers of the Privy Chamber, who come nearest in association to the King, attending him at chapel, and conducting him in the absence of the Lord Chamberlain ; 2, Gentlemen Ushers Daily Waiters, who officiate monthly by turns in the Presence Chamber, their senior being Black Rod ; 3, Gentlemen Ushers Quarterly Waiters, who attend in the absence of the preceding class ; 4, Gentleman Usher to the Robes, a new appointment substituted for that of Groom of the Stole (below).

GOLD STICKS.—This appointment falls in turn to the Colonels of the Regiments of Household Cavalry. The Captain-General of the Royal Company of Archers is Gold Stick for Scotland. The officer holding the appointment of Gold Stick walks behind the Sovereign on state occasions, bearing a gold-headed staff.

GRAND ALMONER OF ENGLAND, THE HEREDITARY.—An officer who attends at a Coronation to distribute certain alms collected on the occasion. Under him are the Lord High Almoner and Sub-Almoner. The Marquess of Exeter is Grand Almoner.

GRAND FALCONER, THE HEREDITARY.—A nominal post held by the Duke of St. Albans. There were formerly also the offices of Grand Carver and Grand Pannetier, the duty of the latter being to bear the salt, bread, and knives for the King's dining-table, whilst the Server or Dapifer arranged the dishes at a Coronation banquet. Compare under "Chief Butler" above.

GREAT ALNAGER OF IRELAND.—An Alnager was formerly an official having the duty of examining woollen cloth, and the title of Great Alnager, which was hereditary in the line of the Lords de Blaquiere, (a title now extinct), denotes an honorary headship of these.

GREAT SEAL.—See under "Lord Privy Seal."

GREEN CLOTH, BOARD OF.—A synonym for the Lord Steward's Department, located at Buckingham Palace.

GROOM OF THE STOLE.—An office now extinct, formerly the designation of the senior Lord of the Bedchamber. It gave place under a female Sovereign to the post of Mistress of the Robes ; now to the Gentleman Usher to the Robes. The Stole is the long robe worn by a King on state occasions.

GROOMS-IN-WAITING.—These officials rank next after Lords-in-Waiting and attend the Sovereign in rotation.

HERALDS' COLLEGE.—See "Arms, College of."

HERITABLE MASTER OF HIS MAJESTY'S HOUSEHOLD IN SCOTLAND.—An office held by the Duke of Argyll.

HIGH COMMISSIONERS.—The title borne by the Governors of Cyprus and of the British Islands in the Pacific ; also by the representatives in London of the Dominions of Canada, New Zealand, Australia, and South Africa and of the Empire of India. See also "Lord High Commissioner."

HIGH SHERIFFS.—See "Sheriffs," their more correct title.

HONORARY COLONEL.—The term has a two-fold significance. First, that of the honour conferred, in the case of the Regular Army, upon distinguished General Officers, and, in the case of the old Constitutional Force and the Territorial Service, upon distinguished officers or county residents, by placing them at the head of a Regiment (usually that in which the recipient of the honour has served). Secondly, that of honorary rank, superior to that held in the regiment, formerly conferred upon regimental officers of the Auxiliary Forces after a specified length of service as Lieutenant-Colonels.

HORNINGS, KEEPER OF THE REGISTERS OF.—"Horning" is the Scottish term for a form of personal service for debt. Letters of Horning are issued in the Sovereign's name and pass the Signet, instructing messengers to call upon the debtor to pay ; on his failure to do so a "caption" or warrant of apprehension is granted.

HOUSEHOLD, THE ROYAL.—See under the various officers.

INSIGNIA, RETURN OR RETENTION OF.—Under each Order of Knighthood we have given the official directions for its own case, but there may be a convenience in our here tabulating the entire series.

To be returned at Death to St. James's Palace : K.G., K.T., K.P., G.C.B. (except as below), Star of India (all Classes), G.C.I.E., K.C.I.E.

To be retained by relatives : G.C.B. Star and Badge, K.C.B., C.B., SS. Mich. and George (all Classes), C.I.E., Roy. Vict. Order (all Classes), British Empire Order (all Classes), O.M., D.S.O., and I.S.O.

To be returned on Promotion to a higher Class in same Order : All lower Classes to St. James's Palace, except those of Roy. Vict. Order, which go to Privy Purse.

INVESTITURE.—The ceremony of investing new Knights and Companions by the Sovereign.

IRELAND, LORD HIGH STEWARD OF.—See under "Lord High Steward."

KEEPER OF THE PRIVY PURSE.—One of the highest of the personal officers of His Majesty. The Privy Purse was made a fixed annual sum under the Regency, and its present amount is £110,000.

KING'S BODY GUARDS.—The Hon. Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms, the Yeomen of the Guard, and (Scotland) the Royal Company of Archers.

KING'S COUNSEL.—Barristers specially so dignified by the King. They are distinguished by the wearing of silk gowns (hence "took silk" at such a date) The title is dropped on their attaining to a Judgeship in one of the higher Courts (not a County Court nor as a Recorder). See under "The House of Lords" ante as to retention by a Peer.

LADIES-IN-WAITING.—See "Bedchamber."

LANCASTER, DUCHY OF.—See "Chancellor."

LEGATIONS.—See under "Ambassadors."

LEVEES.—This word (commonly but improperly spelt with an accent, the French word levée having no such meaning) denotes the attendances and presentations at Court of Gentlemen, as "Courts" is applied (more especially, though not quite exclusively) to the like visits of ladies. Admission is to be obtained by application to the Lord Chamberlain, but Officers of the Navy or Army, or persons connected with India, the Colonies, or any Government Department, should apply respectively to the First Lord of the Admiralty, the Adjutant-General, the Private Secretary to the Secretary for India or the Colonies, or an official connected with such other Department as may include themselves ; legal gentlemen to the Secretary to the Lord Chancellor.

LIEUTENANT OF THE TOWER.—See under "Tower, Constable of."

LIEUTENANTS OF THE CITY OF LONDON.—These gentlemen are chosen by the Lord Mayor and appointed by the Home Secretary, the appointment being for life unless for some valid reason. The present number is between 350 and 400, and is made up chiefly of Aldermen, Deputies, Members of Parliament for the City, Directors of the Bank of England, and personal friends of the appointing Lord Mayor.

LORD ADVOCATE.—The principal Law Officer of the Crown in Scotland, corresponding to the Attorney-General in England and Ireland. He is the leading Scottish Minister in the Commons unless the Secretary for Scotland is also a member of that House.

LORD CHAMBERLAIN OF THE HOUSEHOLD.—To this functionary is entrusted the control of all the officers and servants "above stairs," as the Lord Steward presides over those "below." But not only the Bedchamber and Wardrobe, but also the State Band, the Sergeants-at-Arms, Trumpeters, Messengers, &c., and the Royal Physicians, Surgeons, Chaplains, and officers of the Chapels Royal, are all under his charge, and he has the regulation of Courts and Levees, the custody of furniture in the Houses of Parliament, and also the licensing of dramatic entertainments. In his absence the Vice-Chamberlain acts as his deputy; at other times he is his assistant.

LORD CHIEF JUSTICE OF ENGLAND.—The President of the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice, in which Court are now merged those of Exchequer and Common Pleas. There are 16 additional Judges, all holding knighthood and designated "Honourable," as are the Judges and Justices in the following Courts: the Court of Chancery (Lord Chancellor and seven Judges); the Court of Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty (President, who is "Right Hon.," and one Justice); and the Court of Bankruptcy (one Justice).

LORD GREAT CHAMBERLAIN.—This hereditary office—the history of which is given in the Directory under its last holder, the Marquess of Cholmondeley—is of great dignity at the time of a Coronation by virtue of his holding the control of the Palace of Westminster; he is also to the fore at the opening of Parliament by the Sovereign or at the trial of a Peer or Peeress, but has none of the various duties of the Lord Chamberlain above. On the Coronation Day he attends the King in his bedroom and hands him his wearing apparel; at the main ceremony he stands on his left, fastens the clasp of the imperial mantle, and arrays him in his purple robes before leaving the Abbey: he also serves the King with water for washing his hands before the banquet. The fitting up of Westminster Hall when required for a state purpose used to fall to his lot, but this use of the Hall is now in abeyance. He receives "forty ells of crimson velvet for his own robes," and is entitled to the gilt basin and the towels used at the above hand-washing, and also now some £200 in lieu of the furniture of the King's bedroom, his former perquisites.

LORD HIGH ADMIRAL.—This office is now held in Commission, as stated under "Admiralty."

LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR OF GREAT BRITAIN.—The nobleman holding this post is the highest judicial officer of the Crown and the first lay person after the Royal Family, ranking as he does between the two Archbishops. He is created by the mere delivery of the Great Seal into his custody, and is nominally the appointee of the Crown, though in modern usage he holds office with the Government of the day. He is ex officio a Privy Councillor and Speaker of the House of Lords (see under that House), and issues writs for the assembling of Parliament. He appoints all judges of both Superior and County Courts, as well as all Justices of the Peace, and presides over the Court of Chancery and the Supreme Court of Judicature. He possesses a special jurisdiction over matters relating to charities and trusts, is visitor of royal foundations, patron of Crown livings, and guardian (through the Masters in Lunacy) of infants, idiots, and lunatics. The style has been accorded him of "Keeper of the King's Conscience." Till the time of James the First this post did not carry with it an hereditary peerage, but such is invariably now conferred if not already possessed. Formerly it was held by ecclesiastics, especially by the Archbishop of Canterbury. Cardinal Wolsey's name occurs prominently in this connection, but King Henry, when bent upon overthrowing the Church, transferred the appointment to Sir Thomas More.

LORD HIGH CONSTABLE OF ENGLAND.—An office once hereditary but now held temporarily only, being granted at each Coronation to some distinguished person (in 1902 and 1911 the late Duke of Fife), whose duty it then became to accompany the Earl Marshal in the procession and during the ceremony.

LORD HIGH CONSTABLE OF SCOTLAND.—This post continues to be hereditary, and is vested in the Earl of Erroll, who is thus entitled to walk in the Coronation procession carrying a silver baton tipped with gold at each end, and beneath those tips the Sovereign's arms at one end and his own at the other.

LORD HIGH STEWARD.—Another office which (as far as England is concerned) has ceased to be hereditary and is conferred by special appointment at a Coronation (in 1911 on the Duke of Northumberland). The Peer chosen walks immediately in front of the Sovereign, carrying St. Edward's Crown upon a velvet cushion; he is attired in white satin and gold under-dress, with a long red mantle and ermine tippet. For his appointment and functions on the trial of a Peer see as per Index. The Lord High Steward of Scotland is the Prince of Wales, as Duke of Rothesay (for whom the Earl of Crawford has been appointed deputy at the last two Coronations), and of Ireland the Earl of Shrewsbury, who as such carries a white staff.

LORD MAYOR OF LONDON.—There had been "Mayors" of the City from 1189, but the earliest official document known in which the term "Lord Mayor" occurs is dated 1486. The Aldermen (26 in number) fill this post as a rule in order of seniority. The Lord Mayor acts as a magistrate at the Mansion House and Guildhall. He receives £10,000 for his year of office, but is understood usually to expend much more than that in dispensing hospitality and maintaining the dignity of his post. His State Coach weighs over $3\frac{3}{4}$ tons and is drawn by six horses. For some years past he usually has received a baronetcy on or before retirement.

LORD PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL.—The Chairman of the British Privy Council, a post changing with the Ministry, but regularly held by a Peer; recently, however, Arthur James Balfour held it before his promotion as Earl of Balfour.

LORD PRIVY SEAL.—The functionary to whom the Privy Seal is entrusted. This must be affixed, on the warrant of the Sovereign, to charters, pardons, and other such documents before they are passed for the Great Seal. The post is usually held by a Peer (though lately by J. Austen Chamberlain, and previously by A. Bonar Law), and it ranks him before all Dukes and after the Speaker of the House of Commons.

LORD STEWARD OF THE HOUSEHOLD.—The authority of this official extends over all officers and servants except those of the Chamber, the Chapel, and the Stables (see "Lord Chamberlain" and "Master of the Horse"). His office is known as the Board of Green Cloth.

LORD WARDEN OF THE CINQUE PORTS.—See "Cinque Ports."

LORD WARDEN OF THE STANNARIES.—See "Stannaries."

LORDS-IN-WAITING.—Peers appointed by the King, who attend the Court in turn and reside at the Palace while on duty.

LORDS LIEUTENANTS OF COUNTIES.—These are always gentlemen of high position or standing, but not necessarily titled. They have charge of the Sessions Rolls (styled as such Custodes Rotulorum), appoint Deputy Lieutenants and if needful Vice-Lieutenants, and recommend to the Lord Chancellor gentlemen suited to act as Justices of the Peace. It may be noted that in Yorkshire there is a Lord Lieutenant to each Riding, though there is a single Sheriff to the entire county. The same office is held in the counties of Scotland, but in Ireland the term is "Lieutenant" only.

MAIDS OF HONOUR.—These ladies attend upon the Queen in rotation. Upon marriage they resign their post. All Maids of Honour, whether appointed to a Queen-Regnant, a Queen-Consort, or a Queen-Dowager, bear the title of "Honourable," and this remains with them through life.

MASTER OF THE HORSE.—A member of the Ministry who has charge of the royal stables. He is the third great officer at Court, and in state processions his place is next behind the Sovereign. The Equerries and Pages of Honour are under his superintendence.

MASTER OF THE HOUSEHOLD.—An official ranking next after the Comptroller, and having charge of the accounts and oversight of the servants.

MASTER OF THE ROLLS.—A Judge of the Court of Appeal ranking next after the Lord Chief Justice. He is officially in charge of the Public Record Office.

MINISTERS PLENIPOTENTIARY.—See under "Ambassadors." The second official at the Paris Embassy now always bears this title.

MINISTRY.—See "Cabinet," and for complete list of the officials both within and without that circle see WHITAKER'S ALMANACK.

MISTRESS OF THE ROBES.—The superintendent of the Maids of Honour and nearest attendant of the Queen on state occasions. A Mistress of the Robes is also at the head of the Ladies of the Household of the Queen Mother.

MODERATOR OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND.—The appointment to this high office is made in May in each year. The Moderator is styled "Right Reverend" and the Ex-Moderators "Very Reverend."

NAVY.—The Officers in the Navy, though fewer in number than in the Army, display a greater variety of titles. Of those Commissioned we find in the "Military" Department—Admirals of the Fleet, Admirals, Vice-Admirals, Rear-Admirals (these are styled "Flag Officers"); Commodores (a temporary appointment), Captains, Commanders, Lieutenant-Commanders, Lieutenants, and Sub-Lieutenants; in the Engineering Department—Engineer-in-Chief of the Fleet, and Engineer Rear-Admirals, Captains, Commanders, Lieutenants, and Sub-Lieutenants: in the Medical Department—Director-General, Surgeon-Vice-Admiral, also Surgeon-Rear-Admirals, Captains, etc.; in the Pay Department—Paymaster-Rear-Admiral, Paymaster-Captain, etc.; after these come—Chaplain of the Fleet, Chaplains, and Roman Catholic Chaplains; Naval Instructors. Of Warrant Officers (some of whom are also Commissioned) the list runs—Carpenter Lieutenants, Chief Gunners, Gunners, Chief Boatswains, Boatswains, Chief Signal Boatswains, Signal Boatswains, Chief Carpenters, Carpenters, Chief Artificer Engineers, Artificer Engineers, Chief Schoolmasters, Head Schoolmasters, Head Wardmasters, Midshipmen, Clerks, and Cadets. Of Petty Officers we have such of the preceding as have not obtained the full qualifications. The obsolete post of Staff Captain in the Navy bore no resemblance to the position of that Officer in the Army, for instead of being allotted to superior duties he was rather in probation; and so with Navigating and Supplementary Lieutenants. See also "Admiralty" and "Aides-de-Camp." A Table showing the relative ranks of Officers of the Navy, Army, and Royal Air Force is given in WHITAKER'S ALMANACK.

PAGES OF HONOUR.—These are always youths connected with noble families, and their present duties are the attendance on the Sovereign at Court and other ceremonies. Their number is four; but at Coronations Peers with certain duties to perform are attended by their own Pages of Honour. Besides the four preceding, who belong to the Department of the Master of the Horse, there are enumerated under that of the Lord Chamberlain—Pages of the Back Stairs, State Pages, Pages of the Chambers, Pages of the Presence, and Men Pages.

PECULIARS, COURT OF.—This Court, if it still possesses any more than a nominal existence, has the charge of some 13 "Peculiar Benefices," which lie within the London Diocese but were not till recently under the jurisdiction of the Bishop. The Chapel Royal of the Savoy is still a Royal Peculiar.

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS TO THE KING.—Of these there is a large staff entered under the Royal Household (as per WHITAKER'S ALMANACK), and in addition His Majesty has his Physicians and Surgeons in Ordinary in Scotland and Ireland, and his Honorary Physicians and Surgeons in both the Navy and Army.

PREMIER OR PRIME MINISTER.—The head of the Government of the day and the intermediary between the Cabinet and the Crown. He appoints not only his own Ministers, but all officials coming under the patronage of the Crown, ecclesiastics included. No salary is attached to this office as such, so that he always holds some other in addition, usually that of First Lord of the Treasury. He has lately been granted precedence next to the Archbishop of York.

PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL.—See "Lord President."

PRIVY PURSE.—See "Keeper."

PRIVY SEAL.—See "Lord Privy Seal." There is also a Keeper of the Privy Seal in the Duchy of Cornwall.

RECORD OFFICE, THE PUBLIC.—This office dates its foundation from the reign of Henry the First. The Keeper of the Records is the Master of the Rolls, and he has his Deputy and Assistants.

ROYAL AIR FORCE.—Instituted in 1918 as a Department of State to manage the Flying Services and presided over by a Secretary of State. At present the Force is administered by the War Office with an Under-Secretary of State. The Commissioned Officers are entitled :—Marshal of the Air, Air Chief Marshal, Air Marshal, Air Vice-Marshal, Air Commodore, Group Captain, Wing Commander, Squadron Leader, Flight Lieutenant, Flying Officer (or Observer), Pilot Officer. For relative rank with Navy and Army see WHITAKER'S ALMANACK.

ROYAL COMPANY OF ARCHERS.—The King's Body Guard for Scotland, its Captain General being one of the Gold Sticks.

ROYAL WARRANT HOLDERS.—Tradesmen who, being accustomed to supply the Royal Household, have received a warrant entitling them to use the Royal Arms.

SCOTLAND, LORD HIGH CONSTABLE OF.—See "Lord High Constable."

SERGEANTS-AT-ARMS.—Officials who walk before the Sovereign on state occasions bearing maces of silver-gilt; they wear silver collars marked "SS." (see Section XXIII.). The Sergeants-at-Arms in the Houses of Lords and Commons have charge of the exclusion of intruders and the apprehending of persons committed by order of the House.

SESSION, COURT OF.—The most important judicial body in Scotland. It is divided into an Inner and an Outer House, of which the former has two subdivisions styled First and Second and presided over respectively by the Lord Justice-General (who is also Lord President of the entire Court of Session) and the Lord Justice-Clerk; the Outer House has no special President, but its five Judges are styled Permanent Lords Ordinary. In each Division of the Inner House there are four Judges (including the Presidents), and the entire body of Judges, together with the Lord Advocate and Solicitor-General for Scotland, constitute the High Court of Justiciary. Every Judge of either House, and also the Chairman of the Scottish Land Court, has the bench-title of "Lord" (equivalent to the English "Lord Justice," but implying no peerage rank, though the wife is now to be styled "Lady"—see "Peerage outside of the House," ante): in a few instances this is prefixed to a title which is not the surname, but all who are neither Peers nor Privy Councillors take the designation "Hon." instead of "Rt. Hon."

SHERIFFS OF COUNTIES.—These gentlemen are in the first place nominated, on the Morrow of St Martin (Nov. 12) in each year, by the Lord Chancellor, the Lord President of the Council, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the body of Judges (or some of them), when three names for each county are selected and passed to the Sovereign, by whom, on the Day of the Purification (Feb. 2) one of these three presumably the first, is definitely appointed by the ceremony of "pricking" or punching the parchment against the name chosen. The Sheriffs in England and Ireland (conventionally known as "High Sheriffs") are responsible for the due carrying out of the judgments of Courts, including sentences of death, and they have power to compel any person to assist them in arresting a felon. In Scotland "Sheriffs Principal," having their deputies, "Sheriffs Substitute," carry out the duties performed in England and Wales by County Court Judges and Chairmen of Quarter Sessions.

SHERIFFS OF THE CITY OF LONDON.—These are chosen annually by the citizens, the election taking place on Midsummer Day, and their entry into office at Michaelmas. They usually obtain a knighthood. Till 1888 they were Sheriffs of "London and Middlesex."

SIGNET, WRITERS TO THE.—The Signet Office is a branch of the General Register House in Edinburgh and the Duke of Montrose is the Keeper of the Signet. Its certificated writers have passed a legal examination and constitute as such a high rank in that profession; they are authorised to append "W.S." to their names.

SILVER STICKS.—The Lieutenant-Colonels of the Household Cavalry Regiments act in this office as attendants for a month each in rotation. The origin of the office was coincident with that of the Gold Sticks, Charles the Second having presented a silver-headed staff to the second Officer of the Life Guards.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL.—The second legal adviser of the Crown, in position and duties similar to the Attorney-General; a member of the Ministry and of the House of Commons, and always knighted. There are Solicitors-General for Scotland and Ireland, but these are not knighted as such, nor is it even peremptory that they should be Members of Parliament.

SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.—The chairman and controller of the proceedings of the House. He is elected by the votes of the Members, practically therefore by the party which is in majority at the time, but when once elected he is usually accepted by both sides, and thus continues in office till he voluntarily retires: when this takes place he has latterly received a Viscounty. At each new Parliament, however (not each session), he has to undergo re-election. He does not take part in the debates, nor give his vote unless a casting vote is required—thus being altogether in a different position from that of the Lord Chancellor in the Lords. He has, besides his salary of £5,000, a furnished residence contiguous to the House, and now ranks in the scale of Precedence next after the Lord President of the Council.

STANDARD-BEARER, HEREDITARY.—For England, Scotland, and Ireland this office (at Coronations) was allotted by the Court of Claims respectively to Frank S. Dymoke, Esq., Henry Scrymgeour Wedderburn, Esq., and The O'Conor Don.

STANNARIES.—The Stannary Courts of Cornwall and Devon were established for the administration of justice among the miners of those counties, there having existed some peculiar usages and regulations amongst them. The Lord Warden presided over these Courts, or in his absence one of the Vice-Wardens, of whom there was one for each of the two counties. They are now modified into ordinary county courts, but the Lord Warden retains his titular designation and is principal officer of the Duchy of Cornwall and first member of the Council of the Prince of Wales. See "Cornwall, Duchy of."

SURGEONS TO THE KING.—See "Physicians."

TEINDS, LORD ORDINARY OF.—A Judge of the Court of Session who is specially allotted the jurisdiction affecting "teinds" (tithes). The Judges of the entire Inner Houses are Lords Commissioners for Teinds.

TOWER, CONSTABLE OF THE.—Both this officer (the Governor), the Lieutenant and the Major hold their posts by patent from the Crown.

TREASURER OF THE HOUSEHOLD.—The officer next below the Lord Steward, and his deputy in his absence.

TREASURY, FIRST LORD OF.—A practically sinecure office which has been most frequently borne by the otherwise unpaid Premier, or sometimes by some other Leader of the Commons.

USHER OF THE BLUE ROD.—See the Order of St. Michael and St. George.

USHER OF THE GREEN ROD.—See the Order of the Thistle.

USHER OF THE PURPLE ROD.—See the Order of the British Empire.

USHER OF THE SCARLET ROD.—See the Order of the Bath.

USHER OF THE WHITE ROD OF SCOTLAND.—This post it was decided at the Coronation of King Edward attaches by right to the Walker Trustees.

VICEROY OF INDIA.—Since the transfer in 1858 of the Government of India to the Crown, a Governor-General has been the chief executive authority, and his tenure of office is usually for five years. His procedure is subject to the control of the Secretary of State in England. He has an Executive Council consisting of eight members, including himself and the Commander-in-Chief. The Indian Legislature consists of the Governor-General and two Chambers—the Council of State and the Legislative Assembly.

WARDERS OF THE TOWER.—See "Yeomen of the Guard."

WARRANT HOLDERS.—See "Royal Warrant Holders."

WARRANT OFFICERS.—The term is used in both the Navy and Army, and includes certain ranks intermediate between Commissioned and Non-commissioned. In itself the term implies that the appointment has been made by warrant from a superior or a department instead of by commission.

WOMEN OF THE BEDCHAMBER.—See "Bedchamber," where the distinction between "Women" and "Ladies" of this service is noticed.

WOOLSACK.—The seat of the Lord Chancellor in the House of Lords, placed in front of the Throne. Its origin is stated to be that when the export of wool was forbidden, in the reign of Elizabeth, the texture in question was thus dignified in token of its importance to the national prosperity.

YEOMEN OF THE GUARD.—The English Body Guard of the Sovereign in conjunction with the Gentlemen-at-Arms. Their quaint costume (in which they are known as Beef-eaters) consists of a red tunic faced with blue and gold, red breeches and stockings, a broad-brimmed dark blue hat, waist and shoulder belts, knee-bows, shoe rosettes, white muffs, &c. Their Captain is a Peer, the Lieutenant must have been a Lieut.-Colonel in the Army, and their Ensign a Major; there are also a Clerk of the Cheque and four Exons (a word corrupted from the French sound of "exempt," i.e., an officer who had once been, but was no longer, in the Garde du Corps). They attend the Sovereign only. The Warders of the Tower are similar in attire except that they omit the cross-belt: they are also known as Beef-eaters, but are a body totally distinct. As to this term of "Beef-eater" it is questioned whether it is a corruption of the French buffetier (a buffet-keeper) or a slang designation from their portly appearance.

(XXVI.) MODES OF ADDRESSING PERSONS OF TITLE.

 For conclusions of Letters see near the end of section.

ADMIRAL.—The title and name only, any other ascription following the office thus: "Vice-Admiral Lord A.," "Rear-Admiral the Earl of C." (or "the Hon. C.D."). See Officers, Naval and Military.

ALDERMAN.—If of London, and having passed the chair, officially addressed "Right Worshipful;" in all other cases "Worshipful."

AMBASSADOR.—"Your Excellency" (but a Duke "Your Grace"); "His Excellency Sir Y.Z., H.B.M.'s Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary to the Court of R." (but see Envoy or Minister for any lower rank). Wife, no title.

ARCHBISHOP.—"My Lord Archbishop," "Your Grace," "His Grace the Lord Archbishop of C.;" in formal addresses "The Most Reverend Father in God, John, by Divine Providence, Archbishop of Canterbury;" elsewhere, "by Divine Permission." (The Abp. of Armagh is in Ireland styled "His Grace the Lord Primate of All Ireland.") Wife, no title (nor precedence).

ARCHDEACON.—"Venerable Sir," "Sir" (in repeating), "The Venerable A. B.," or "The Venerable the Archdeacon of C."

BARON.—"My Lord," "Your Lordship," "The Right Hon. Lord A." Baroness, "Madam," "Your Ladyship," "The Right Hon. Lady A." (but "Baroness A." if the title is in her own right). The term "My Lady" is relegated to servants, and even "The Right Hon." is usually cut down to "The Lady A." (no Christian name), the word "The" being understood as a substitute for "Rt. Hon." and distinguishing a Baron's Lady or the daughter of a Peer from the wife of a Baronet or Knight. See also at end of Duke. Son or daughter, "Sir," or "Madam," "the Hon. C. D." Son's wife, "The Hon. Mrs. D." (of eldest son of present Peer) or "The Hon. Mrs. John D.," unless her own rank is higher, in which case see Note on "Marriage of Peeresses," under "Nomenclature of Peers' Relatives."

BARONET.—"Sir" ("Dear Sir Thomas" is common, but without the surname it is rather too familiar to be used by inferiors), "Sir T. A., Baronet" ("Bt." preferred to "Bart."). Note the "General Remarks" in Sec. XV. Wife, "Madam," "Your Ladyship," "Lady A." (without any Christian name unless she is a Lady by birth, as daughter of a Duke, Marquess, or Earl, in which case "The Lady Mary A.;" if daughter of a Viscount or Baron, "The Hon. Lady A.;" otherwise "Lady A." without "The"—see preceding paragraph). For widow, see under Dowager Ladies. Son or daughter as commoners.

BISHOP.—"My Lord," "Your Lordship," "The Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of D.;" formally, "The Right Reverend Father in God, John, by Divine Permission Lord Bishop of D." Wife as a commoner. Colonial Bps. the same, and so also by courtesy Bishops Suffragan, and Irish, Scottish, American, and even Missionary Bps., unless they are known to object to the word "Lord" (this word requires address by the diocese and not the surname). Retired Bishop, "The Right Reverend Bishop A." (the surname), but "My Lord." The Bishop of Meath takes the style of "Most Reverend."

CANON.—"Reverend Sir," "Sir" (in repeating) "The Reverend Canon B."

CARDINAL.—"Your Eminence," "His Eminence, Cardinal B." (or "H. E. Joseph, Cardinal B.").

CLERGYMEN.—"Reverend Sir," "Sir," "The Rev. E. F." "The Rev. Lord F." If an "Honourable," "The Rev. the Hon." (so "Right Rev. the Hon." "Rev. Canon the Hon."), better than "Hon. and Rev.," though this latter form is far more common, even among those in a position supposed to know. In the Gazette we sometimes find the form "The Rev. and Hon."

COMPANIONS AND COMMANDERS OF KNIGHTHOOD.—No distinction: "E. F., Esq., C.B."

CONSUL.—"B. C., Esq., H.B.M.'s Consul at D."

COUNTESS.—See Earl.

COURTESY LORDS.—Eldest sons of Dukes, Marquesses and Earls, precisely as if their own title was that of an actual Peerage. For other sons, see under Duke, &c.

DEAN.—"Very Reverend Sir," "Mr. Dean," "Sir" (in repeating), "The Very Rev. the Dean of B." But a Dean ought not to be addressed as Dean with his surname.

DIVORCEES.—In the absence, in this country, of any fixed custom it is impossible to lay down here hard and fast rules as to how ladies thus unfortunately situated should be addressed. On the whole, illogical though it seems, the most usual practice is to make no change whatever. Untitled ladies sometimes prefer to resume their maiden names, usually with the prefix "Mrs." instead of "Miss," but in cases where a title of any kind has been acquired by marriage it is exceedingly rare to find any disposition to discontinue it. Moreover it was actually laid down in the Cowley case that the retention of the title and name of a former husband cannot be interfered with by a Court of Law. Of course nobody can claim precedence derived from a marriage which has been annulled.

DOWAGER LADIES.—Directions for the correct use of the term "Dowager" or its substitute will be found under "Peers' Widows" in Sec. VI. The forms of address will then be such as "The Most Hon. Maria, Marchioness of A.," "The Right Hon. the Dowager Lady B.," "Her Grace the Dowager Duchess of C.," or with a Baroneless, "The Dowager Lady D." (the article here seems indispensable and does not do duty for "Rt. Hon.," as in the case cited under Baron), or "Emily, Lady E." A Knight's widow suffers no change of title, for there can be neither Dowagers nor confusion between mother and wife where there is no hereditary succession; still a Christian name can be prefixed to "Lady" when there are more than one of the same surname. There appears to be no settled practice as to whether the word "Dowager" shall precede or follow the essential term of honour. We once even met with an advertisement commencing "Dowager the Lady H. will gladly," &c.

DUKE.—"My Lord Duke," "Your Grace," "His Grace [or "The Most Noble"] the Duke of A.;" formally, "My Lord Duke, May it please Your Grace." Duchess, "Madam," "Your Grace," "Her Grace the Duchess of A." For widow, see under Dowager Ladies. Eldest son and his wife addressed by the courtesy-title, and precisely as if it was a genuine Marquessate or Earldom as the style may be (for the children of these, see under "Nomenclature of Peers' Relatives," and again address precisely as if their father was an actual Marquess or Earl). Younger son, "My Lord," "Your Lordship," "The Lord Henry C." Daughter, "Madam," "Your Ladyship," "The Lady Sophia C.;" so younger son's wife, but "The Lady Henry C.," unless herself a Duke's daughter, when "The Lady Sophia" will again be correct. For the status of married daughters of Dukes and other Peers, see also as above. The prefix "Right Honourable" is by courtesy assigned to younger sons and all daughters of Dukes and Marquesses, and to the daughters of Earls (i.e., to those taking the title "Lord" or "Lady"), but it is seldom used in any of these cases; the substitution of "The" is, however, imperative, but still only by courtesy.

EARL.—"My Lord," "Your Lordship," "The Right Hon. the Earl of A." Countess accordingly, but see Baroness. Eldest son and any daughter as under Duke (with necessary conformation); younger son as Baron's son.

EMPEROR.—"Sire," "Your Imperial Majesty."

ENVOY.—"A. B., Esq., H.B.M.'s Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary at the Court of B."

FOREIGN PEER.—Only the article "The." But Canadian, "Rt. Hon.," and see "Maltese."

GENERAL.—See Admiral.

GOVERNOR OF A COLONY.—"His Excellency Sir A. B., the Governor of D." (if a Duke "His Grace"); "His Excellency Governor B." Wife, "Her Excellency" (if she resides in the Colony).

IRISH ANCIENT TITLE-HOLDER.—Titles like "The O'Donoghue" are complete without "Mr." or "Esq." Wives are addressed as "Madam."

JUDGE OF A COUNTY COURT AND OF CITY OF LONDON COURT.—" Sir," " Your Honour " (on the bench), " His Honour Judge A." (after retirement).

JUDGE OF SUPERIOR COURT.—" Sir," " My Lord " (on bench), " The Hon. (Sir) Henry B." (not after retirement). If a Peer, address as such.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE.—Officially, " Your Worship," " The Worshipful."

KING.—" Your Majesty," " The King's Most Excellent Majesty." Commence " Sire," or, " May it please Your Majesty."

KING'S COUNSEL.—" A. B., Esq., K.C."

KNIGHT.—As Baronet, substituting for " Bt." the correct initials, and if a Knight Bachelor, omitting any affix, though " Knight " is appended in formal style. Wife also as Baronet's. For a widow, see under Dowager Ladies.

KNIGHT OF THE GARTER, THISTLE, OR ST. PATRICK.—A Peer bearing any of these titles should have the respective initials appended to his name—in fact, the initials of any Order.

LORD ADVOCATE.—" Sir," " The Right Honourable."

LORD OF APPEAL.—As other Barons. So wife, and now so children also.

LORD CHANCELLOR.—" My Lord," " Your Lordship," " The Right Hon. the Lord High Chancellor."

LORD CHIEF JUSTICE.—Similarly, but " The Rt. Hon. the Lord Chief Justice of England."

LORD HIGH COMMISSIONER (Scotland).—" Your Grace," " His Grace the Lord High Commissioner of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland."

LORD JUSTICE OF APPEAL.—" My Lord," " Sir," " The Right Hon. Lord Justice E." (or " Sir William E.")—Distinguish " Lord of Appeal."

LORD LIEUTENANT OF IRELAND.—" His Excellency [" Grace," if a Duke—so Ulster's book of Rules] the Lord Lieutenant," and according to rank. Wife, " Her Excellency " (see " Precedence among Ladies ").

LORD MAYOR.—" My Lord," " Your Lordship," " The Right Hon. the Lord Mayor of B." (no distinction retained after retiring). Wife, " The Right Hon. the Lady Mayoress," and as Baroness.

LORD PROVOST.—" My Lord ; " In Edinburgh and Glasgow, " The Right Hon. the Lord Provost." Wife as commoner.

LORD OF SESSION (Scotland).—" My Lord," " Your Lordship," " The Hon. Lord A." Wife, " Madam," " Your Ladyship," " Lady A."

MAGISTRATE.—See Justice.

MAID OF HONOUR.—" Madam," " The Hon. Alice B." (not " Hon. Miss " in any case).

MALTESE NOBLE (of any rank).—" My Lord," " Your Lordship " or " Ladyship," " The Most Noble the Baron B."

MARQUESS.—" My Lord Marquess," " My Lord," " Your Lordship," "[The Most Hon. the Marquess of A." (avoiding the common error of " Most Noble "). Marchioness, " Madam," " Your Ladyship," " The Most Hon.," &c. Sons, &c., see under Duke, treating the heir's title as a genuine Earldom or Viscounty.

MASTER (Scottish).—" The Hon. the Master of," and as Barons' sons. Wife, " The Hon. Mrs. A."

MASTER OF THE ROLLS.—" Sir," " My Lord " or " Your Lordship " (on bench), " The Right Honourable." (Is not a Lord Justice.)

MAYOR.—" Sir," " The Worshipful the Mayor of D.," in a few cities " Right Worshipful." Wife, no distinction.

MEMBERS OF COLONIAL MINISTRIES, &c.—" The Honourable." Wife, no distinction.

MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT.—No distinction as such beyond the letters " M.P.," which follow " Esq.," " Bt.," &c., when these occur.

MINISTER ABROAD.—" Sir," " A. B., Esq., H.B.M.'s Minister " (or " Minister Resident "). See Ambassadors and Envoy.

MODERATOR OF GENERAL ASSEMBLY (Scotland).—" Right Reverend Sir," " The Right Reverend." Ex-Moderator—" Very Reverend."

OFFICERS, NAVAL AND MILITARY.—See under Admiral. Lieutenants in the Army and Sub-Lieutenants in the Navy are addressed as " Esquire," affixing R.A., R.E., R.N., &c., when correct. When the prefix " Honourable " occurs there is not even in practice the same licence as under Clergymen, but the arrangement must be " Capt. the Hon.," as " Hon. Capt." implies " Honorary Captain."

PREMIER.—According to rank, adding after the name, " Head of His Majesty's Government."

PRIMUS OF EPISCOPALIAN CHURCH (Scotland).—" Most Reverend Sir," " The Most Reverend the Lord Bishop of C." (or " Most Rev. Bishop A.").

PRINCE OR PRINCESS.—" Your Royal Highness," " His [Her] Royal Highness Prince [Princess] A." (or " the Duke [Duchess] of B."). Commence " Sir," or " Madam."

PRINCIPAL OF A SCOTTISH COLLEGE.—" Very Reverend " (if in orders).

PRIVY COUNCILLOR.—" Right Honourable " (unless a Duke or Marquess). Commence " Sir " (unless holding rank). Wife, as commoner.

QUEEN.—" Your Majesty," " The Queen's Most Excellent Majesty." Commence " Madam," or formally, " May it please Your Majesty."

RECORDER.—" Sir," " Your Worship," " The Worshipful ; " but in London, " Right Worshipful."

SECRETARY OF STATE.—" His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the H. Department," prefixing rank, if any.

SERJEANT-AT-LAW.—" Mr. Serjeant A."

SHERIFF OF LONDON.—As Recorder of ditto.

SPEAKER.—" The Right Honourable the Speaker."

VISCOUNT.—" The Right Hon. Viscount [or " Lord Viscount "] A.," otherwise as a Baron. Viscountess, " The Right Hon. the Viscountess A." Son or daughter, precisely as under Baron.

WIDOWS.—See Dowager Ladies.

CONCLUSIONS OF LETTERS.—As these are too lengthy for general insertion in individual cases as above, we may here present a few examples :

Prince.—" I remain, Sir, with the greatest respect, Your Royal Highness's most dutiful and most obedient servant."

Duke or Archbishop.—" I have the honour to be, My Lord Duke [Archbishop], Your Grace's most obedient and humble servant."

INDEX TO THE ROYAL FAMILY.

 There is an unavoidable imperfection in the following index, consisting in the fact that the generality of royal personages possess each a long string of names from which it is often impossible to select with certainty the one or two which are conventionally used. When, however, a name is found cited under some variation—say, if Prince Adalbert of Prussia is termed "Prince Berengar"—a reference to "Prussia" would conduct the searcher to the only possible houses under which the name could stand. The employment of parentheses commonly marks a junior member of a family; thus in this same instance we have to read "Prince Adalbert of Prussia" and not "Adalbert Prince of Prussia." German names are usually anglicised in the index, whilst French names are allowed to retain their native forms.

ORDER OF SUCCESSION TO THE THRONE.

The rules furnished earlier on, with reference to the Descent of the Nobility, will enable any person to draw up for himself as long a list of heirs to the Throne as he may desire, the only difference to be observed being that daughters are eligible for succession in order of their own seniority, but not till after the youngest of the sons. Thus after the four sons of His Majesty would come his daughter; then, as he has no brother, his sisters, with the children of the eldest in preference to the second sister; then the second daughter of the late Duke of Saxe-Coburg, his eldest daughter, now the Queen of Roumania, having formally renounced on her marriage all possibility of claim to the British Throne. After traversing the Saxe-Coburg branch, we treat similarly those of Connaught and Albany. Having thus exhausted the families of all Queen Victoria's sons we turn to her daughters, beginning with the house of the late Empress Frederick; but as this line, with the German Emperor at its head, is wholly out of practical bounds, it would be profitless to pursue the investigation any further Tyrone ; town res., 68 Mount St., W.1.

CREATIONS. Scot. : Ld. of Paisley, 1587 ; Ld. of Abercorn, 1603 ; E. of Abercorn, and Ld. of Hamilton, Mountcastle, and Kilpatrick, 1606. Irel. : Ld. Hamilton, Bn. of Strabane, 1617 ; Visc. Strabane and Bn. Mountcastle, 1701 ; D. of Abercorn and M. of Hamilton, 1868, a Bt. abt. 1660. Gt. Br. : Visc. Hamilton, 1786 ; M. of Abercorn, 1790. France : Duc de Châtelhérault, 1549 (see that art.).—Among the ancestors of this line were the Scottish Lords of Cadzow and Earls of Arran (the former title feudal and extinct, the latter now passed to the Duke of Hamilton). The 2nd son of the 2nd Earl was created Marquess of Hamilton, and is the founder of that elder branch of the family from which, though afterwards only on the maternal side, the Dukes of Hamilton derive their origin. The 4th son of the same Earl was given the Paisley Lordship, and his successor was made Lord and afterwards Earl of Abercorn, with the accompanying titles of 1606. The two Peerages thus parted off : the 3rd Marq. of Hamilton was made Duke of the same, and the marriage of his daughter and successor with the Earl of Selkirk, son of the 1st Marq. of Douglas, constituted the Hamilton line of Dukes the representatives on the female side of the older branch of the house of Hamilton, whilst the male heirship passed to the 2nd Earl of Abercorn, through whose relatives the younger branches continued in the present Dukes of the latter title—their line having all along followed male descent and thus made them the heads of the house of Hamilton, as the Hamilton Dukes are of that of Douglas. A brother of the 2nd Earl of Abercorn was made Lord Hamilton of Strabane, being thus the first in the house to hold an Irish title in this distinctly Scottish family ; the 6th Earl, who resided mostly in Ireland, was promoted to be Visc. Strabane in the same Peerage. The 1st Duke of Abercorn was Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland : he was the 10th Scottish Earl, the 8th having received the British title of Visc. Hamilton, and the 9th that of Marq. of Abercorn. The French Dukedom was conferred upon the 2nd Earl of Arran, as stated under "Châtelhérault." The and Duke was a M.P. for 20 years before his succession and held various Court appointments.

Savernake, 1821.—The 2nd E. of Elgin was granted the English Earldom of Ailesbury for his devotion to the two Charleses. It became extinct in 1747 on the death of the 3rd Earl, but was revived to his nephew, whose son, the 2nd Earl by the new creation, was elevated to the Marquessate. The name Bruce was assumed by the 1st Earl of this later creation. The Barony of Brudenell was conferred upon Sir Thos. Brudenell, 1st Bt., and later on his devotion to the Royalist side was rewarded with the Cardigan Earldom (both he and the 1st Earl of Ailesbury had been imprisoned): the two titles came into the Ailesbury line under the 2nd Marq. in 1868 upon the death of the 7th E. of Cardigan (who led the Balaclava Charge). The 3rd Earl under the older creation had been given the Bruce of Tottenham Barony, and this by a special remainder passed to the above Sir Thos. Brudenell, from whom it eventually came back to the Ailesbury line.

CREATIONS. Scot. : Ld. Ogilvy of Airlie, 1491 ; E. of Airlie and Ld. Ogilvy of Alyth and Lintrathen, 1639. "Ld. Ogilvy" is the courtesy-title of an eldest son.—The 1st Lord Ogilvy was Ambassador to Denmark ; his grandfather had been High Treasurer of Scotland. The 7th Lord was created Earl. The history of this line is involved in two Acts of Attainder which have given rise to confusion among authorities as to the number who are fairly to be classed as Earls. We have followed 'Burke' and 'Foster' ('Lodge') in regarding the present Peer as the 9th, but some term him the 11th or 12th, 'Debrett' the 7th de facto. The earlier of the two attainders cancelled the title of the elder son of the 3rd E., the latter that of the elder son and grandson of the 4th : indeed this 4th E. himself, and his younger son whom we accept as the 5th, were considered during their lifetime as also legally excluded, and this certainly gives warrant to their omission by 'Debrett,' but the subsequent Parliamentary recognition of the 6th E., their immediate descendant, seems to have been regarded as tacitly removing their own disabilities. The former of the two attainders, it may be added, was in consequence of participation in the Earl of Mar's rebellion of 1715, the latter for siding with the Pretender at Culloden.

CREATION. Bn. Amherst of Hackney, U.K. 1892 (with special remainder, in default of male issue, to eld. daughter and her issue male). The original name of the family, though very variously spelt, was taken from a place called Amherst, near Tonbridge. Late in the 18th century an heiress succeeded to the title and to the Tyssen property (mainly in Hackney) and married Mr. Wm. George Daniel, who therefore appended " Tyssen " to that surname. But this his son exchanged for " Tyssen-Amhurst," the son of the latter again reverting to the original spelling of the last syllable.

CREATIONS. Bn. Paget, Eng. 1553 by writ ; E. of Uxbridge, Gt. Br. 1784 ; M. of Anglesey, U.K. 1815 ; a Bt. Irel. 1730.—The 1st Bn. Paget was executor to Henry VIII. and raised to the Peerage under Edward VI. The 9th Bn. obtained the Uxbridge Earldom, he being cousin of a previous Earl of that title, which had subsisted 1714–69. His successor was raised to the Marquessate, having been greatly distinguished in the Peninsular War and having at Waterloo led the grand charge which is considered to have decided the victory ; he was afterwards twice Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The line of succession from 1769 has descended from Sir Nicholas Bayly, 2nd Bt., who had married the heiress of the Paget Bny., and whose son, the above 9th Bn. and 1st Earl, immediately assumed the ancient family name. A former Earldom of Anglesey belonged to a distinct family—that of Villiers—and lasted 1623–60 ; this was followed in 1661 by the awarding of the same title to the 2nd Visc. Valentia, but it also expired as noticed under the latter peerage.

CREATION. E. of Antrim and Visc. Dunluce, Irel., new patent 1785 modifying orig. of 1620.—A family of Scottish origin, descended from John MacDonald, Lord of the Isles, who married a daughter of King Robert II. As to the altered form of the name, the original of the entire Clan was spelt in Gaelic Mac Domhnaill, the different branches having diversely varied it: that of Antrim, by marriage associations with the family of MacDonell, took to that form and eventually the present. The above ancestor was murdered by one James Campbell. His descendants were more than once in rebellion, and after the execution of one of them, with four of his six sons, in 1494, the two surviving sons fled to Ireland, but returned later on, and in 1529 "ravaged the lands of the Campbells with fire and sword" ('Burke'). The next representative of the family was at war with both the Irish and English, but became possessed of land in Ireland and eventually settled down as a faithful subject of Queen Elizabeth. He was made a free citizen of Ireland, and married the daughter of the Earl of Tyrone. His son Sir Randal MacSorley McDonnell obtained the Peerage. The 6th Earl, having no male issue, procured the right of succession for his daughters and their male issue, so that there was never any interruption in the line: the present Earl is therefore actually the 12th, though holding his title from a patent under which he is only the 7th. The 2nd Earl of the original creation was promoted to be Marq. of Antrim, but that title expired upon the death of the 6th, not being included in the extended remainder to daughters. The 2nd of these married Lord Mark Robert Kerr, but her son, on succeeding as 9th Earl, resumed the former name of McDonnell.

Sundridge, 1766, and Bn. Hamilton of Hameldon, 1776. U.K.: D. of Argyll, 1892.—Sir Colin Campbell, of Lochow, who was knighted in 1280 by Alexander III., was called by the Gaelic title Mac Caiden Mòr—i.e., Mac Cailein or Colin the Great. This chief was slain in a conflict with the Lord of Lorn, but the two houses were in time united by marriage. Sir Colin's descendants adhered to the fortunes of the Bruces, and came to be created successively Lords Campbell and Earls of Argyll. The 7th Earl long afterwards was made Ld. of Kintyre. The 8th received the title of Marq. of Argyll, but it died with him, he being executed, with the instrument termed "the Maiden," for having supported Cromwell. The 9th was sentenced to the same fate for refusing to subscribe the Test Act; he escaped from prison in the disguise of a page holding up the train of his stepdaughter, but was taken in an attempt to invade Scotland, and the previous sentence was then carried into effect. The 10th Earl was created a Duke in the Peerage of Scotland, and the 2nd Duke an English Duke of Greenwich; the late 8th Duke nearly two centuries later obtained the U.K. Dukedom. The 9th D., who married H.R.H. Princess Louise, dau. of Queen Victoria, was Gov.-Gen. of Canada. The British title of Bn. Sundridge was awarded to the 5th Duke, and his wife was shortly afterwards made Bnss. Hamilton of Hameldon in Leicestershire.

 The ancestry numbers among its collaterals both Friar Bacou and Sir Francis, Bn. Verulam, commonly, but incorrectly known as Lord Bacou. The famous Lord Chancellor never held the title of Baron Bacon, and it is the confusion between "Lord Verulam" and "Lord Chancellor Bacon" that has given rise to the common error. He was Sir Francis Bacon, Kt., Bn. Verulam (not Earl), and Visc. St. Albans (a fac-simile of his autograph in Doyle's 'Baronage' gives it as St. Alban), all his titles becoming extinct at his death. Neither he nor Roger Bacon left any children, and the founder of the family was Sir Nicholas Bacon (Kt.), Lord Keeper to Queen Elizabeth, whose eldest son, Sir Nicholas, half-bro. of Sir Francis, became 1st Bt.

CREATIONS. Eng.: Bn. Botetourt, 1803 (orig. 1305 by writ), Bn. Herbert of Ragland, Chepstow, and Gower, 1506; Bn. Herbert of Herbert, 1509; E. of Worcester, 1514; M. of Worcester, 1642; D. of Beaufort, 1682.—The Botetourt Bny. was first granted to Jno. de Botetourt, but fell into abeyance on the death of his son in 1406, so continuing till 1764, and again from 1776 to 1803, when it was revived to the 6th Duke. The Herbert of Herbert Bny. is stated to have been first conferred upon Wm. Herbert, afterwards Earl of Pembroke, beheaded 1469. His son succeeded him, and had his Earldom exchanged for that of Huntingdon. Sir Chas. Somerset, K.G and Kt. Banneret, a natural son of Henry Beaufort, Duke of Somerset, was created Bn. Herbert of Ragland, &c., but, having married the heiress of the preceding, he was summoned to Parliament as Bn. Herbert of Herbert, thus uniting the two Baronies. Sir Charles was afterwards created Earl of Worcester. The 5th Earl was raised to the Marquessate: the 2nd Marq. before succession was addressed by the King as Earl of Glamorgan, but this title does not appear to rest on any actual creation. Nor does that of Visc. Grosmont, though the ruins of Grosmont Castle still exist in the late grounds of the Duke in Monmouthshire. The 3rd Marq. was created Duke of Beaufort.

Bernard Fitzalan Howard, M.B.E., heir to Bny. of Howard of Glossop. Seat, Carlton Towers, Carlton, Yorks.; town res., 15 Manchester Sq., W.1.

CREATION. Bn. Beaumont, Eng., 1309 by writ.—The 1st Bn., Henry de Beaumont, was son of Louis de Brienne (by an heiress of the Beaumonts of Normandy, whose name he assumed), and grandson of John de Brienne, King of Jerusalem, by Berengaria, sister of Ferdinand, King of Castile and Leon, being thus 2nd cousin to Edward II.; he was also a relative and companion-in-arms of Edward I. in his Scottish wars. The 2nd Baron, John, married Eleanor Plantagenet, daughter of Henry, Earl of Lancaster, who was grandson of Henry III., and great-grandson, through his mother, Blanche d'Artois, of Louis VIII. of France. Isabel, daughter of the 1st Baron, married Henry, Duke of Lancaster, and was grandmother of Henry IV. On the death of the 7th Bn. in 1507 the Peerage fell into abeyance, and so continued until 1840. A second but much briefer abeyance followed in 1895 when the 10th Bn. left at his death two daughters, to the elder of whom the succession was awarded by the Crown in the next year. The 6th and 7th Bns. held the title of Visc. Beaumont (1440–1507), this constituting the first creation of that rank in England.

CREATIONS. Eng.: Bn. Russell of Chenevs, 1539; E. of Bedford, 1550; Bn. Russell of Thornhaugh, 1603; D. of Bedford and M. of Tavistock, 1694; Bn. Howland, 1695.—An Earldom of Bedford and two Dukedoms had existed between 1150 and 1495, but had all become extinct: the earliest to hold the Dukedom was a brother of King Henry V., who became Regent of England and Constable of France during the next King's minority. The above Bny. and Earldom were conferred upon John Russell, a gentleman residing on the Dorsetshire coast, whose cousin Sir Thos. Trenchard had hospitably entertained the Archduke Philip of Austria, who, in a voyage from Flanders to Spain, had been driven into Weymouth by a violent hurricane. Sir Thomas acquainted the Court with the presence of the illustrious visitor, but disputed the actual attendance upon him to Mr. Russell, who had lately returned from the Continent and was familiar with the Spanish language. He was in consequence introduced (with the Archduke) to Henry VII., by whom he was taken into favour, and this continued under his three successors to the throne. The 5th Earl obtained the Dukedom and Marquessate, the 2nd Duke before succession being given the Howland Barony, that of Thornhaugh having been awarded to the 4th son of the 2nd Earl, whose own son succeeded as 4th Earl. William, Lord Russell (courtesy-title; he was "Hon. Wm. Russell" until the death of his elder brother), the distinguished statesman who was beheaded in 1683 on a charge of high treason, was 2nd son of the Earl who became 1st Duke. The youngest brother of the 9th Duke became 1st Bn. Ampthill, as stated in loc.

BERGAVENNY, BARON (Eng. 1392, confirmed 1450) —see "Abergavenny, M. of."

BERKELEY (pron. Barkly), family name of BERKELEY Earldom (not Barony), Lady Catherine below.

BERKELEY, BARONESS. EVA MARY FITZHARDINGE Foley Bnss. 16th in line (21st of orig. creation ; Eng.), M.B.E. ; dau. of prev. Bnss. and of Maj.-Gen. Gustavus H. L. Milman, R.A. : b. March 4, 1875 ; suc. 1899 ;

mar. 1903 Col. Frank Wigram Foley, C.B.E., D.S.O., Royal Berks Regt.

CREATION. Bn. Berkeley, Eng. 1421.—The 6th feudal Lord of Berkeley had accompanied Edward I. in his Welsh wars, and was the 1st Bn. B. by writ under a summons of 1295. His successors each received the same summons till the death of the 5th Bn. in 1417. This nobleman left an only child, a daughter, Elizabeth, to whom by right the title should have descended. The writ, however, was issued in 1421 to Jas. de Berkeley, nephew of the late Peer, and this Sir H. Nicolas regards as a new creation and "the beginning of the present Barony of Berkeley." As to the title de jure, it passed from the above Elizabeth to her three daughters, involving an abeyance which has never been terminated. The 5th Bn. was knighted on Flodden Field by the Earl of Surrey. The 9th Bn. was created an Earl, but the succession to that title was not open to females as in the case of the Barony, so that on the death of the 6th Earl without issue in 1882, the two Peerages became separated as at present. The Bnss. 15th in line (née Berkeley) changed the family name by her marriage with Maj.-Gen. Gustavus Milman, and her daughter the present Peeress has again (1903) introduced a change by her union with Maj. Foley.

CREATIONS. Scot.: A Bt. 1625; E. of Breadalbane and Holland, Visc. of Tay and Paintland, Lord Glenorchy, Benederaloch, Ormelie, and Weick, 1677. The U.K. Marquessate, Earldom and Barony awarded to the 7th E. in 1885 became extinct on his death in 1922; a previous creation lasted 1831–62.—Sir John Campbell, 5th Bt. of of Glenorchy, who, like Bn. Blythswood, was descended from the same line as the Argylls, was the recipient of all the Scottish Peerages. An invasion by him of the lands of the Earl of Caithness was the origin of the song "The Campbells are Coming." Owing to an heraldic error, King Charles II. had awarded him also the title of Earl of Caithness and this invasion was his mode of enforcing his claim; but in 1681 the mistake was discovered and the wrong title dropped, though the precedence of 1677 was certified for the remaining honours. The original title is given in 'Burke' as "Braed Albane."

Douglas of Kinmont, Middlebie, and Dornock, 1706 (orig. 1684, but resigned and obtd. new patent). Engl.: E. of Doncaster and Bn. Scott of Tyndale, 1663 (Scott forfeited 1685, but restored 1743 with orig. precedence).—Sir Walter Scott (Kt.), Warden of the West Marches (third of the name and second of the office), was recipient of the first of the above titles. His great-grandfather, the first of the three Sir Walters, was also a daring chief, and his unsuccessful attempt to rescue King James V. from the Earl of Angus is the foundation of the story told by his later namesake in the "Lay of the Last Minstrel." Sir Walter, the 1st Ld. Scott, had carried on a predatory warfare against the English, but on the conclusion of a peaceful arrangement he was delivered up as a hostage, and when in England was brought before Queen Elizabeth, who imperiously demanded of him how he had dared to engage in such deeds. But for once the haughty woman had found her match, for the ready answer came, "What is there that a man dare not do?" Struck with the reply, she turned to a Lord in Waiting and said, "With ten thousand such men our brother of Scotland might shake the firmest throne in Europe." This "brother" was James VI., who, on becoming James I. of Gt. Britain, among his first acts made a Lord of the intrepid warrior. His successor obtained the honours of 1619. The Ctss. 4th in line married James, Duke of Monmouth (a natural son of Charles II.), who thereupon assumed her name and received the Dukedom of Buccleuch with the Dalkeith Earldom. He was afterwards executed for rebellion, but the titles were unaffected, being held jointly by his wife, to whom those of 1606 and 1619 had come by inheritance. The Queensberry Dukedom (see "Queensberry, Marq."), with other titles of 1796, came into this line through the 3rd Duke of B. becoming successor to the 4th of Q. The original surname was Scott, to which the 4th Duke prefixed Montagu, and then the 5th inserted Douglas.

CREATIONS. Scot.: A Bt. 1627; Ld. Crichton of Sanquhar 1488 (S.S.); Visc. of Air (or Ayr), 1622; E. of Dumfries and Ld. Crichton of Cumnock, 1633; E. of Bute, Visc. Kingarth, Ld. Mount Stuart, Cumbrae (prob. orig. Cumra—see that art.), and Inchmarnock, 1703. Gt. Br.: Bn. Mount Stuart, 1761; Bn. Cardiff, 1776; M. of Bute, E. of Windsor, and Visc. Mountjoy, 1796.—'Burke' gives as the founder of this family Jno. Steuart, son of King Robert II., who about 1385 constituted Bute and the adjacent islands into a county and appointed the son of the above its Hereditary High Sheriff. A descendant was created 1st Bt. In a distinct family, Sir Robt. Crichton was made Ld. C. of Sanquhar for repelling an English invasion of Scotland. The 6th of this title was hanged for procuring the assassination of a person who, seven years previously, had deprived him of an eye in a fencing-match. The 7th Ld. obtained the titles of 1622–33: among these was the Dumfries Earldom, the 6th holder of which became 2nd Marq. of Bute (his mother, daughter of the 5th Earl of D., having married the 1st Marq.). Sir James Stuart, 3rd Bt., one of the Commissioners engaged in arranging the Union with England, was recipient of the 1703 Scottish honours, which included the Earldom of Bute. The wife of the 3rd Earl was created Bnss. Mount Stuart of Gt. Britain, whilst her son, the 4th Earl, became 1st Marquess, having, before succeeding to either of the older titles, been himself created Bn. Cardiff.

Fitzroy, son of 7th D. of Grafton. Res., Thrumpton Hall, Derby; town res., 64 Burton Ct., Chelsea, S.W 3

CREATION. Bn. Byron, Eng. 1643.—Sir Jno. Byron, Kt. of the Bath and M.P. for Nottingham, who (like his brother, who succeeded him by special remainder) was a devoted officer in the army of Charles I., was the 1st Baron. The 5th Bn. was arraigned before his Peers for killing Mr. Chaworth in a duel, but by privilege escaped with a fine on the strength of a statute of Edward VI. His successor, the poet (George Gordon Noel-Byron), was his great-nephew: his grandfather, the 2nd son of the 4th Bn., being the renowned Adm. Byron, whose adventures after being wrecked in the S. Pacific are expressively depicted in a paragraph of Campbell's "Pleasures of Hope." The poet Byron himself, however we may lament his intermixture of errors with some admirable qualities, is all but universally acknowledged to have been a minstrel of surpassing genius, and many regard him as the greatest of English poets since Milton. He was remarkably free from avarice, whilst the nobleness of his conduct in throwing himself into the struggle of Greece for freedom—dying of a fever, on what is now "Primrose Day," at Missolonghi in 1824 when but 36 years of age—must ever endear his name with all who can appreciate deeds of true generosity.

Tyrone; Old Lodge, Uckfield, Sussex.

CREATIONS. Irel.: Ld. Stuart, Bn. of Castlestuart, 1619; Visc. Castlestuart, 1793; Earl Castlestewart, 1800. A Bt. Scot. 1628. "Visc. Stuart" is the courtesy-title of the heir when a son.—The ancestry includes two Dukes of Albany, four Lords Avondale, and two Lords Stuart of Ochiltrie. The successor of these last sold his Barony, but was afterwards created Ld. Stuart of Castlestuart, the 6th Ld. becoming Visc. and Earl. The orthography of the above title is variously given, but by the courtesy of the late Earl we are able to give a clear account of the confusion. When he proceeded to prove his right, it came to light that in the patent of his leading title he was created "Earl Castlestewart," whilst in those of both the Barony and Viscounty the form was "Castlestuart."—N.B. The Imperial Barony of the Moray Earldom, which of course is wholly distinct, is given in the Roll of the Peers as "Stuart of Castle Stuart"—essentially identical in form with one in the first line of this paragraph. The 5th Earl bore the name Stuart-Richardson after his marriage.

CHATELHERAULT, DUKE OF. Two Dukes in our Peerage hold the French title of Duc de Châtelhérault—the D. of Abercorn by inheritance from James Hamilton, E. of Arran, who received it in 1549; and the D. of Hamilton, who obtained it by a new creation from Napoleon III. in 1864. (Both their Graces are of the Hamilton line.)

 The original Dukedom passed from the 3rd E. of Arran to the 2nd Marq. and 1st and 2nd Dukes of Hamilton, but upon the death of the last of these without male issue the succession devolved upon the 2nd E. of Abercorn. The new creation of 1864 is thus the restoration of a former honour.

CHOLMONDELEY (pron. Chumley), MARQUESS OF. GEORGE HENRY HUGH Cholmondeley, 4th Marq. (U.K.), Visc. Cholmondeley (Irel.); P.C. (Gr. Br. 1901), Joint Hereditary Lord Gt. Chamberlain (acted during last reign), a D.L. for Norfolk, formerly Chesh. Yeom.: son of Charles George Cholmondeley, who died 1869 (son of Lord William Cholmondeley, who in 1870 became 3rd Marq., succeeding his elder bro.); b. July 3, 1858; suc. 1884 (C.); mar. 1879 Winifred Ida, O.B.E. (Civ. 1920), dau. of the late Col. Sir Robt. N. F. Kingscote, K.C.B. Seat, Cholmondeley Castle, Malpas, Cheshire.

CREATIONS. Irel.: Visc. Cholmondeley, 1661; Bn. Newborough (Wexford), 1715. Eng.: Bn. Cholmondeley, 1689; Earl Cholmondeley and Visc. Malpas, 1706. Gt. Br.: Bn. Newburgh (Anglesey), 1716. U.K.: M. of Cholmondeley and E. of Rocksavage, 1815.—Robt. Cholmondeley was the first to receive the Irish Viscty., together with other honours, but he died without issue and these all lapsed, after which his nephew was recreated 1st Visc. The 2nd Visc. obtained the English Earldom and other Peerages of 1689 and 1706; his successor, the 2nd Earl, was awarded the Baronies of Newborough and Newburgh; and the 4th Earl was raised to the Marquessate.

The post of Lord Great Chamberlain is held jointly by the Marquesses of Cholmondeley and Lincolnshire and the Earl of Ancaster, who exercise its functions alternately, reign by reign, the Marq. of Lincolnshire being now in office. We find first mention of it as conferred by Henry I. upon the father of the 1st Earl of Oxford, and it remained for centuries in that now extinct line; but the sister and heiress of the 17th Earl married the 12th Bn. Willoughby de Eresby, and their son the 13th Bn. established his claim as successor to the appointment. It thus passed down, with the Barony itself, to the Baroness numbered 21st, and jointly to her younger sister, who married the 1st Marq. of Cholmondeley: the two sisters had been joint heiresses to the Barony and therefore to the Chamberlainship also (a lady holding the office would doubtless have acted by deputy), the post being thus divided between them, whilst the Peerage went into abeyance till awarded by the Crown to the elder of the two. Almost precisely the same procedure followed the death of the 23rd Bn., who had become Joint Lord Great Chamberlain with the Marquess. He left two sisters as joint heiresses: the elder, after an abeyance, was awarded the Barony, whilst the younger married the 2nd Bn. Carrington and thus introduced a line of third partners to the post under notice. The question of succession under the last reign was the subject of a contest before the Committee of Privileges of the House of Lords, the Duke of Atholl also advancing a claim (as senior heir general of the 14th Earl of Oxford). But after prolonged deliberation the Committee decided that the previous arrangement was the correct one, the office being vested in the lines of the three former holders, whose duty it now was to choose one of their number to exercise its functions. Naturally this choice was determined by order of rotation. The Marq. of Cholmondeley thus succeeded to the then Earl of Ancaster, until the death of his late Majesty King Edward, when he was succeeded in his turn by the Marq. of Lincolnshire (then Earl Carrington).

The 9th Bn. was made Earl of Lincoln, and the two titles were associated till the death of the 5th Earl in 1692, when the Barony fell into abeyance till 1721 (see "Newcastle, Duke of"). A second abeyance followed in 1751, but was removed in 1760 by the death of one of the ladies ; the other, who succeeded, marrying the 2nd Earl of Orford, their son becoming 3rd Earl and 16th Bn. ; but the Earldom expired at his death, till re-created in 1806, whilst the Bny. went to a cousin. The 20th Bn. in 1867 assumed by licence the additional names Hepburn-Stuart-Forbes, he having married the heiress of Sir Jno. Stuart Forbes, 8th Bt. of Pitsligo, who himself had assumed the name Hepburn, and whose whole estates went to this daughter.

CREATIONS. Eng. : A Bt. 1618. Gt. Br. : Visc. and Bn. Cobham, 1718 ; Ld. Lyttelton, Bn. of Frankley, 1794 (orig. 1756, but extinct 1779 with 2nd Bn. of 1st creation). Irel. : Bn. Westcote, 1776.—Wm. Henry Lyttelton, a younger son of the 4th Bt., received the Westcote and Lyttelton Baronies. Sir Richard Temple, 4th Bt. of Stowe, was the 1st Visc. Cobham (revival of a former title in same family, 1313–1619, the preceding Bny.)—see " Buckingham and C. Dukedom." The Barony was originally granted in 1714, but an extension of the remainder was effected simultaneously with the granting of the Viscty., and this alone preserved them both from lapsing. The titles passed by regular descent to the holder of the above Dukedom, and then in 1889 by special remainder (on the failure of male issue in that line) to the late 5th Bn. Lyttelton as 8th Visc. ; a descendant of one of the sisters of the 1st Viscount (it being left to these " and their heirs male ").

CONYERS, BARONESS—see "Fauconberg and Conyers."

 The three Baronies of Fauconberg, Darcy de Knayth, and Meinill, Peerages by writ which had been in abeyance for several centuries, were in 1903 brought before the Committee of Privileges of the House of Lords as jointly accruing to the two daughters of the 12th Bn. Convers. The decision arrived at was that in the lines of Fauconberg and Darcy the said ladies were strictly the co-heiresses, but not in that of Meinill, it not being certain that any person had ever sat in the Lords under that title. His Majesty shortly awarded one of the two Baronies to each of the two sisters as presently stated. The elder of these had already obtained the Convers Barony by a like determination of abeyance in 1892, this having lasted for the four years from her father's death, whilst she had previously become by marriage Ctss. of Yarborough, as her sister in 1890 became Ctss. of Powis. The award consequently makes the Ctss. of Yarborough Bness. in her own right of Fauconberg and Conyers, and the Ctss. of Powis similarly Bness. of Darcy de Knayth.

Henry Conyngham, M.P., was the 1st Bn., that title having originally been awarded him in 1753, but without the special remainder to his nephew which the later creation contained. He had also received the Earldom and Viscty., but these lapsed at his death and were granted afresh to the 3rd in line, and followed by the Marquessate and its accompanying honours. The nephew who was his immediate successor was his sister's son, William Burton, M.P., who then assumed the surname Conyngham: it was to the latter's son that the revived titles (of 1789 and onwards) were awarded.

CREATIONS. Scot. : E. of Crawford and Ld. Lindsay of Crawford, 1398 ; Ld. Lindsay of Balcarres, 1633 ; E. of Balcarres and Ld. Balniel, 1651. U.K. : Bn. Wigan, 1826. "Lord Balniel" is now the courtesy-title of eldest sons.—This house has a remote feudal and even legendary history, an early ancestor being reputed to be descended from "Thor." Walter de Lindesay was sitting in the Scottish Parliament in 1145, though his precise designation is unknown, and each Lord appears at this period to have been styled after his personal estates (Ercildun, Luffness, Brenevil, Lanberton, and so on). The 9th Ld. of Crawford was created Earl, apparently for his prowess exhibited in "a passage of arms with Lord Welles upon London Bridge before King Richard II. and his Queen." The 6th Earl was one of the many Scottish nobles who fell at Flodden Field. The 16th Earl fought on the Royalist side at Marston Moor. On his death without issue the Earldom passed to that of Lindsay (see note there), but the Lordship to another collateral who was made Ld. Lindsay of Balcarres, his successor becoming Earl of the same and Ld. Balniel. The 6th Earl of Balcarres succeeded as 23rd of Crawford, and the 24th Earl of Crawford obtained the U.K. Barony. The 26th E. had been a M.P. and was Pres. of Roy. Astronom. Soc.

CREATION. E. of Cromartie, Visc. Tarbat and Bn. Castlehaven and MacLeod, U.K. 1861.—This is a revival of an earlier Peerage, which was granted to the 2nd Bt. Mackenzie of Tarbat, but forfeited by the 3rd Earl (Cromarty, sic) through his share in the risings of 1745. The later creation was bestowed upon Anne, Duchess of Sutherland, descendant in 5th generation from the 3rd Earl of the older line. Upon her death her 2nd son, Francis, succeeded, but he left no son, and the terms of limitation, which ran into six clauses, appeared to necessitate investigation, which caused a delay of 15 months in the succession of the present Countess. The expression "called out of abeyance" was adopted in the legal instrument, but of course there could be no abeyance in the usual technical sense in the case of a Peerage by patent. The family name till quite recently was Sutherland-Leveson-Gower; then successively Mackenzie, Blunt, and Blunt-Mackenzie.

DARCY DE KNAYTH, BARONESS. VIOLET IDA EVELYN Herbert (née Lane-Fox), Bnss. 16th in line (Eng.), by mrrge. Ctss. of Powis: younger dau. of 15th Bn. D. (de jure) and 12th Bn. Conyers (who died 1888); b. June 1, 1865; title called out of abeyance 1903, having, through the misapprehension stated below, been dormant from 1778; mar. 1890 4th E. of Powis, under whose name refer for heirs and relatives.

CREATION. Eng.: Bn. Darcy de Knayth, 1332 by writ, called out of abeyance by patent with former precedence and limitations 1641, and again on investigation in 1903.—The 1st Bn. was John Darcy, brother of Philip, 8th Bn. Darcy of Nocton, whose line is presumed to have been in abeyance from his death about 1340 up till now. The 1st Bn. of the line of 1332 was distinguished in the Scottish wars. His successor married Elizabeth, Bnss. Meinill in her own right, thus giving occasion to the view that this title also accrued to the petitioners in the late suit (see "Conyers"). Her descendant the 6th Bn. D. and 5th Bn. M. died in 1418 without male issue, whereupon his titles both fell into abeyance, which endured as to them both until 1641, when Conyers Darcy, who was descended through his mother from the lines of both Darcy and Conyers, received two patents of "restitution and creation" according him the titles of Bn. Darcy and Bn. Conyers. This is regarded by Nicolas as a new and distinct creation, leaving the old Barony by writ in its existing abeyance—especially as the patent limited the succession to heirs male. But in the argument before the Committee of Privileges it was demonstrated that this limitation was an error as being contrary to the terms of the title which it was expressly meant to restore; hence the conclusion that in 1778 the late creation expired and the older one remained as in 1418 is pronounced erroneous, for the abeyance had been terminated in 1641, and the title really passed, together with that of Conyers, to the wife of the Marq. of Carmarthen, and from her to the 6th and 7th Dukes of Leeds. The 2nd Bn. Darcy and Conyers was created Earl of Holderness, and that title endured up till the death of the 4th Earl in the above year 1778. The joint titles of Darcy and Conyers also, as now corrected, existed de jure up till 1888, when they did in reality fall into abeyance between two sisters, to each of whom, by the successive determinations of 1892 and 1903, one of the two titles has been assigned (another Bny., that of Fauconberg, going also to the possessor of that of Conyers). There are five Bnies. of Darcy mentioned by Nicolas, all of the same original house, and the above 1st Bn. Darcy and Conyers derived his descent from the Knayth line through the medium of that of Darcy of Darcy: another line was that of Darcy of Navan; a fourth that of Nocton, is mentoned above; and the fifth was that of Chiche, out of which the Colchester Viscty. is stated to have arisen.

DARE, KNIGHT. Adm. Sir CHARLES HOLCOMBE Dare, K.C.M.G. (1919), C.B. (Mil. 1917). M.V.O. (4th Class, 1904), R.N. ret. (1909), rendered servs. at Aux. Patrol base, Milford Haven, from 1915, b. 1854. Res., Hill Ho., Erwarton, Ipswich.

DARNLEY, EARL OF. IVO FRANCIS WALTER Bligh, 8th Earl (Irel.), B.A., a Repres. Peer for Ireld. (el. 1905), a D.L. and Co. Ald. for Kent, formerly Hon. Col. 4th Vol. Bn. Roy. W. Kent Regt., is heir pres. to the Clifton Bny.: son of 6th E. and bro. of 7th; b. March 13, 1859; suc. 1900 (C.); mar. 1884 Florence Rose, D.B.E. (1919), dau. of the late Jno. S. Morphy, of Victoria. Seat, Cobham Hall, Cobham, Kent.—See also next art.

CREATIONS. Irel.: Bn. Clifton (of Rathmore), 1721; Visc. Darnley, 1723; E. of Darnley, 1725.—Jno. Bligh, M.P. for Meath, son of the Rt. Hon. Thos. Bligh, was the 1st Irish Peer (all three titles). The older English Barony, Clifton of Leighton Bromswold, has become a separate Peerage; it came to the 1st Earl by marriage with Theodosia, 4th in line from Sir Gervase Clifton, who was made 1st Bn.; but, being a Barony by writ and thus open to female succession, it passed at the decease of the late 7th Peer to the daughter who was his sole issue. The courtesy-title borne by the eldest son therefore represents the Irish Barony.

DE.—Note on the treatment of that Prefix in this work:

This prefix, which is usually either French or Dutch in its origin, has been adopted in many names of our own aristocracy and others, and is then sometimes combined with the name as a single word. In alphabetising we mostly treat it and similar prefixes (including even "Castle" and "Mount") precisely as if they were all thus conjoined. In the list that follows, however, there are many names or titles which are foreign altogether, and in the case of these we have hesitated as to entering the names under the prefix, for this often seems on its very face like entering an English title under the word "Of." In fact, the unsightliness of that plan in the eyes of a foreigner has been so urged upon us that we have felt compelled to forego the practical convenience of uniformity, and to remove from the prefix to the leading word such names as appear to be territorial titles preceded by ac or de la, van, van der, or von. The Italian di is never made the leading word, and our French adviser informs us that the practice in France is similarly to disregard all prefixes, whether prepositions or articles. This is a clear and consistent rule, but for our English use we are not at present prepared to adopt it in the case of an article. Hence a complication arises. The Editor was informed about 25 years ago that the authorities of the British Museum were disposed to make the distinction rigorous, and to carry it to the extent of entering names in de la under la, and those in van der under der; but they did not adopt that plan, and without some high authority neither shall we. But, again, we have the inseparable prefixes containing both preposition and article—du and des in French, della in Italian, and aa in Portuguese, and in all these cases the prefix is to lead. In other instances the rules we shall endeavour to follow are these: An article alone (French le or la and Dutch de) is also always to be the leading word; a preposition alone is not to lead if the title appears to be territorial and not a part of the surname; and the compounds de la and van der are to be treated as simple prepositions, just as if there was no article in the case. It is, however, but a minority of our entries that will be affected by these alterations, and references will be given whenever it appears that a name would reasonably be looked for elsewhere. As to capitalising the prefix, experience has shown that no rule can be laid down, each family having its own preference for De or de, though we may presume that the former denotes an essential part of the original name, and the latter points to a territorial association.

CREATION. Bn. de Clifford, Eng. 1299 by writ.—Sir H. Nicolas mentions four Bns. by tenure of this title dating from the reign of Henry II., Robt. Clifford, the grandson of the last of these, was the 1st Bn. by writ. The 9th Bn. was slain in 1461 in the Civil Wars, and his honours were forfeited; but they were restored to his son, whose existence his mother had kept concealed from his birth in 1454, she bringing him up as a shepherd. The 11th to 13th Bns. were also Earls of Cumberland, but that title now passed to a brother and shortly became extinct. The titles of Countess of Dorset, Earl of Thanet, and Countess of Leicester appear subsequently in the line, but the old Barony eventually emerged as a title by itself.

CREATIONS. Eng. : Bn. De La Warr, 1572, with precedence of 1299 (writ). Gt. Bt : Earl De La Warr and Visc. Cantelupe, 1761. U.K. : Bn. Buckhurst, 1864.—The original creation of the De La Warr Barony was in 1299, its recipient being Roger La Warr, who had attended Edward I. in his wars with France ; but the line fell into abeyance in 1554, together with that of West (1342 and 1402), conferred on Sir Thos. West (who had fought under the 3rd Edward), and repeated to his grandson of same name, the title having by marriage become merged in that of De La Warr. The abeyance was never formally terminated, but a nephew of the latest Bn., Sir Wm. West (Kt.), who had served in the English Army in France, was re-created in the title of De La Warr in 1572. The 7th in his line, a General in the Army and Knight of the Bath, who had been Governor of New York and of Guernsey, was elevated to the Earldom. The family name of West became altered by the marriage of the 5th Earl with Lady Eliz. Sackville, daughter of the 3rd Duke of Dorset. On the death in 1843 of the 5th Duke, with extinction of his male line, the Earl prefixed his surname to that of West ; the 7th Earl dropped West altogether. The above Lady Elizabeth was created Bnss. Buckhurst, and the 4th son of her marriage with the 5th Earl obtained the Sackville Bny. (q.v.).

CREATIONS. Eng.: E. of Derby, 1485 ; a Bt. 1627. U.K.: Bn. Stanley of Bickerstaffe, 1832 ; Bn. Stanley of Preston, 1886 (Peerage granted to late Earl whilst his bro. held the Earldom).—Sir Thos. Stanley, K.G., Lord Lieut. of Ireland for six years and Comptroller and Chamberlain to Henry VI., was raised to the Peerage in 1456 by the title Bn. Stanley, his son being advanced to the Earldom in recognition of his services at the Battle of Bosworth Field, where he placed King Richard's crown upon the head of Richmond. Sir Edwd. Stanley, 2nd son of this 1st Earl, figured later on at Flodden Field, being rendered famous by " the last words of Marmion." For this service he was raised to the Peerage by Henry VIII. as Bn. Monteagle (of Hornby Castle, Lancs), a title which has been in abeyance from about 1686. The original Barony of Stanley also fell into abeyance between daughters on the death of the 5th Earl (the Earldom itself going to a brother), but was called out in 1921 (see under " Loudoun, Ctss. of "). Note, however, two recent Baronies as above, that of Bickerstaffe, granted to the 13th Earl. The 14th Earl, the well-known statesman of the middle of last century, was summoned to the Lords in his father's lifetime by the title of this last Barony. He entered the Commons in 1821, and held various offices during his career in both Houses (under Lord Goderich and others) till himself appointed Premier in 1852, 1858, and 1866. He was Chancellor of Oxford University and author of a blank-verse translation of the 'Iliad.' His sons the 15th and 16th Earls also had distinguished careers in both Houses of Parliament, the former having been Secretary of State for India, Foreign Affairs, and the Colonies, whilst the latter was Secretary for War and the Colonies and Governor-General of Canada.

CREATION. Bn. de Ros, Eng. 1264 by writ, Premier Baron of England on the Roll. and as such the late Peer did homage for the Barons at the Coronation of 1902.—Robert de Ros, one of the Barons who took a leading part against Henry III., and grandson of one of the 25 appointed to enforce the observance of Magna Charta, was awarded this title by Sir Simon de Montfort, and the House of Lords in 1841 allowed this title and that of Le Despencer to stand as from that date (see note in " Historic Peerage "). Sir H. Nicolas, who spells the name " de Roos," enumerates dve Bns. by tenure previous to the above Robert. The 4th Bn. de Ros led the 2nd division of the English army at Crécy. The 13th Bn., Thos. Manners (female succession having caused a change in the surname), was created Earl of Rutland, but on the death of the 6th Earl (18th Bn.) this title passed to a brother, and then on the latter's death to a cousin, who is the founder of the line of the present Dukedom. The Barony went to the previous Earl's daughter, who married Geo. Villiers, 1st Duke of Buckingham (assassinated 1628). Their son became 2nd Duke and 20th Bn. He died without issue in 1687, when the Dukedom expired and the Barony fell into abeyance until 1806, when that condition was terminated in favour of Charlotte, daughter of Hon. Robt. Boyle-Walsingham and wife of Ld. Henry FitzGerald, descended on her mother's side from the above 6th Earl's sister ; she assumed the additional name of De Ros after FitzGerald, but the marriage of the present Baroness has affected another change.

Limerick (destroyed 1922); Walreddon Manor, Tavistock; Ford House, Newton Abbot, Devon.

Creations. Engl.: E. of Devon, 1553; a Bt. 1644. "Lord Courtenay" is the courtesy-title of an eldest son.—This Earldom has been five times extinct and once dormant, and the history of its line given in 'Burke' records four attainders and four beheadings (two of the latter by order of Edward IV. for their devotion to the Lancastrian side, a third falling at Tewkesbury at the head of Margaret's rearguard). Its earliest appearance is in the reign of Henry I., the surname then being De Redvers; but on the death of the 9th Earl this line came to an end. The title was revived some 60 years later to the Courtenays, who by marriage had become connected with the older line. Other creations followed under the 7th and 8th Henries, the latest of these being accompanied with the dignity of Marq. of Exeter; but its holder, on losing Henry's favour, was attainted and beheaded. The final creation was made by Queen Mary, and in the person of Edwd. Courtenay, son of Henry VIII.'s late victim; but on the death of this Earl in 1566 the title became dormant and so remained for 265 years (except that another Earl who left no successor, was created in 1603), until in 1831 it was awarded by the House of Lords to the 3rd Visc. Courtenay. On his decease four years later the Viscounty became extinct, but the Earldom has this time survived, though with the usual accompaniment of a conflict as to the number who may be regarded as Earls de jure. Only a few of this last creation have actually borne or even claimed the title, but the late Mr. Cokayne enumerated 33 when all are told from the first creation.

DEVONSHIRE, DUKE OF. VICTOR CHRISTIAN WILLIAM Cavendish, 9th Duke (Eng.), K.G. (1916), P.C. (Gt. Br. 1905), G.C.M.G. (1916), G.C.V.O. (1912), B.A., LL.D., Sec. of State for the Colonies and a memb. of the Cabinet since 1922, Gov.-Gen. and Com.-in-Ch. of the Dominion of Canada 1916–21, Lord Lieut. of Derbysh., Chmn. of its Territ. Force Assoc., Chanc. of the Univ. of Leeds, High Steward of Derby, and a D.L. for Lancs, a Kt. of Justice St. John of Jerus., May or of Chesterfield 1911–12, late Maj. Derb. Yeom., is Hon. Col. 5th Bn. Sherwd. Foresters (Terr.) also (late Comdt.) of Derbysh. Vol. R., has been a M.P., Treas. of the Househd., Civil Lord of the Admiralty, and Financl. Sec. to Treasury; Mayor of Eastbourne 1909–10: son of the late Lord Edward Cavendish and nephew of the late Duke: b. May 31, 1868; suc. 1908 (U.); mar. 1892 Lady Evelyn Fitzmaurice, a Lady of Justice St. John of Jerus., late Mistress of the Robes to H.M. Queen Mary, dau. of 5th M. of Lansdowne. Seats, Chatsworth House and Hardwick Hall, Chesterfield, Derbysh.; Bolton Abbey, Skipton, Yorks; Compton Pl., Eastbourne; Lismore Castle, Co. Waterford.

CREATIONS. Eng.: Bn. Cavendish of Hardwick, 1605; E. of Devonshire, 1618; D. of Devonshire and M. of Hartington, 1694. U.K.: E. of Burlington and Bn. Cavendish of Keighley, 1831 (titles awarded to a younger bro. of 5th Duke).—Sir Wm. Cavendish, Kt. of the Bath, obtained the Barony and Earldom, the 4th Earl being created Duke and Marquess. The Cavendishes were a Suffolk family, who migrated to Derbyshire. The 7th Duke was a K.G. Chancellor of Cambridge University, and a Senator of that of London. His successor, the 8th Duke, also a K.G., was long known in the House of Commons as the Marquess of Hartington, and be there for six years was the chosen leader of the Liberal Party (afterwards L.U.), Mr. Gladstone having retired from vexation at their electoral defeat in 1874, though eagerly returning to the leadership and the "spoils of office" when victory was achieved in 1880. The late Duke, however, held in succession the posts of Secretary for War (twice), for India, Chief Secretary for Ireland, Postmaster-General, a Lord of the Admiralty, and Lord President of the Council, whilst at his death he was Chancellor of the two Universities of Cambridge and Manchester. We may note that the 1st E. of Burlington and the 1st Bn. Chesham were both younger sons of the 4th D.; the 2nd Earl of Burlington succeeding as 7th Duke.

No record exists of any family connection with the county of the title, but we have been obligingly supplied by Mr. Cokayne with a solution of its origin. As noted above, it was previously an Earldom, and the titles of Earls used formerly to be habitually taken from some county, so, as that of Derby was already appropriated, Devonshire was selected as the next in order that was vacant.

DILLON, family name of CLONBROCK Barony, q.v. for all "Hons.," and DILLON-LEE, that of DILLON Viscounty (below), q.v. for Hon. Harry Lee-Dillon. We have Lord Dillon's repeated authority for asserting that for some 150 years the strict family name has been Dillon-Lee, assumed originally by Hon. Chas. Dillon, aftds. 12th Visc., on inheriting the estates of his maternal uncle the 3rd E. of Litchfield (an extinct line bearing the patronymic Lee), though Dillon is a conventional form.

DILLON, BARON (Freiherr—Holy Rom. Emp. 1782)—see "Dillon, Sir J. F., Bt."

DILLON, BARONET of Lismullen. Sir JOHN FOX Dillon, 7th Bt. (U.K. 1801), Baron of Holy Rom. Emp., a D.L. for Meath, formerly Hon. Maj. Roy. CREATION. Visc. Dillon, Irel. 1622.—Sir Theobald Dillon (Kt.), who commanded a troop in Queen Elizabeth's reign, was created 1st Visc. after having been made a Knight Banneret on the field in 1599 by the Earl of Essex. 'Burke' relates of him that "he had so numerous a progeny that he assembled at one time in his house above a hundred of his descendants." The 7th Visc. was outlawed in 1690 for having raised the Dillon Regiment in support of James II. The 12th Visc. conformed to the Established Church: it was he who assumed the additional name of Lee as noticed under the family name above. The present heir to the title has lately rejoined the older religion.

trar-Gen. for Engld. and Wales 1902–9, is a D.L. for Wigtownsh. : son of 7th Bt. and bro. of 8th, b. 1844, suc. 1904, mar. 1878 Nina Susanna, dau. of the late Alfred Douglas-Hamilton, uncle of 13th D. of Hamilton. Heir pres., his 1st cousin JAMES GEORGE HAWKER ROWLAND D. (b. 1862 ; 2nd heir, another 1st cous., Richard Taylor, b. 1855). Seats, Mochrum Pk., Kirkcowan, Wigtownsh. ; Earn Bank, Bridge-of-Earn, Perthsh. ; town res., 8 Onslow Sq., S.W.

. The late Baronet wrote to us in 1904 expressing an objection to our term "2nd heir," or rather to the use of the word "heir" at all. There appears to exist an old legal pronouncement, "Nemo hæres est viventis" (No one is heir of a living person) ; but in Johnson's quarto Dictionary we find the leading dennition "One that is inheritor of anything after its present possessor," and this is fortified by quotations from Locke, Shakespeare, Pope, and Swift ; whilst the frequent employment of the word in Scripture (e.g. "One born in my house is mine heir," Gen. xv. 3 ; and "This is the heir, let us kill him," Matt. xxi. 38) is surely, in conjunction with the preceding, abundant justification for what is now the all but universal usage.

DUNBAR, BARONET'S WIDOW of Mochrum. Lucy, LADY D. (Lucy Blanche Cordelia, dau. of the late Chas. T. C. Grant), mar. 1882 Sir Uthred J. H. Dunbar, 8th Bt. (d. 1904). Res., Galloway Lodge, Boscombe, Bournemouth.

DUNBAR (DUFF-SUTHERLAND-), BARONET of Hempriggs. Sir GEORGE Duff-Sutherland-Dunbar, 6th Bt. (Scot. 1706), has King's Police Medal, Maj. 31st Punjabis, I.A., Cmdt. Assam Mil. Police ; servd. in Abor Expedn., 1911–12, and France and India (on Staff) 1915–18 ; son of the late Garden Duff-Dunbar, and grandson of 5th Bt. de jure (who never assumed the title) : b. 1878, suc. 1897, mar. 1921, 2nd wife, Dorothy, dau. of Lt.-Col. G. Hewlett, of E. Cowes. Heir, his son GEORGE COSPATRIO (b. 1906 ; 2nd heir, his nephew, Kenneth James, b. 1916). Seats, Hempriggs and Ackergill Tower, both nr. Wick, Caithness-sh.

. This Baronetcy is open to "heirs whatsoever," and is therefore allowed to descend through (but not to) females. The present Bt. succeeds through his gt. grandmother, Louisa, eld. dau. of 3rd Bt. The 1st Bt. was 2nd son of 2nd Bn. Duffus, and the 3rd Bt. assumed that title. But his son left no issue, and a nephew succeeded to the Btcy.

DUNBAR (HOPE-), BARONET of Baldoon. Maj. Sir CHARLES DUNBAR Hope-Dunbar, 6th Bt. (Scot. 1664), a D.L. for Co. Kirkcudbright, R.F.A., ret. 1918 ; S. Africa 1899–1902, Europ. War 1914–5 ; son of late Capt. John Hope, R.N. (grands. of 4th E. of Hopetoun and of 5th E. of Selkirk) : b. 1873, claim estab. 1916, additional name of Dunbar then assumed, mar. 1906 Edythe Mary, dau. of Richard Ramsden. Heir, his son BASIL DOUGLAS, b. 1907. Seat, St. Mary's Isle, Kirkcudbright.

. A Scott. Btcy. inheritable through females, orig. Dunbar.

DUNBLANE, BISHOP OF—see "St. Andrews."

DUNBLANE, VISCOUNT, otherwise "Dumblane" or "Dumblaine" (Scot. 1675)—see "Leeds, D. of."

DUNBOYNE, BARON. FITZWALTER GEORGE PROBYN Butler, 26th Bn. by writ (Irel.), 17th by patent, Capt. R.N. (ret. 1911) ; served with Witu Expedn. 1890 : son of 25th Bn. : b. Clare ; res., 5 The Esplanade, The Hoe, Plymouth.—See also next art.

CREATIONS. Bn. of Dunboyne, Ird. 1274 by writ, 1541 pat., giving the precedence—William le Petit, Lord of Dunboyne and Mullingar, was, according to 'Foster' (now styled 'Lodge'), summoned to the Irish Parliament by King John in 1207, but Sir Thos. le Botiler, who on a like summons took his seat in 1324 counts as the 1st, according to 'Burke,' of the series of 26 Barons. ('Burke' still gives 1274 in his summary of creations, and the late Peer gave same date to ourselves, but neither authority makes mention of any summons being issued in that year.) He was younger brother of an Earl of Carrick (created by Edward II. and soon extinct). The 10th Bn. obtained the patent. The 21st Bn. was R.C. Bishop of Cork. The late Baron, formerly Sen. Master of the Supreme Court of Judic. and King's Remembrancer, was an Irish Repres. Peer.
